"Locally elected officials are frustrated by their inability to effectively keep up with policy changes," Hasbargen said. "It is our job to assist them in better understanding their tax system under which they operate. But to do so requires an integrated model, like the one being created."

Wet conditions continue to keep farmers out of fields

Rain in the northwest corner of the state continued to stall harvest of small grains for most of the week last week, according to the Minnesota Agricultural Statistics Service. The little harvesting progress that was made in the upper Red River Valley was completed by farmers who have their combines equipped with tracks or who have four-wheel drive machines. Farmers in the southern part of the Red River Valley were able to make some progress in harvesting small grains.

The return to cooler-than normal-temperatures across the state didn't help the development of corn and soybeans which are now about three to four weeks behind normal. Farmers are hoping for at least 45 more days of above-normal temperatures before the first frost, currently not a likely prospect.

Minnesota's spring wheat crop is 57 per cent cut or swathed versus last year's 46 per cent and the average of 88 per cent. Combining has reached 48 per cent, ahead of last year's 30 per cent but significantly behind the 85 per cent average. Spring wheat rated very poor to poor gained six more percentage points this week because of wet conditions in the northwest. Currently 94 per cent of the spring wheat crop is rated very poor to fair. Producers have cut or swathed 94 per cent of the oat crop, close to target with last year's 90 per cent and the 97 per cent average. Combining of oats has reached 87 per cent. Barley producers report that 80 per cent of their crop is cut or swathed versus last year's 72 per cent and the average of 94 per cent. Combining stands at 74 per cent complete against last year's 54 per cent and the average of 90 per cent. Corn in the milk stage reached 83 per cent, behind last year's 97 per cent and the average of 99 per cent. Far behind, only 35 per cent of the corn crop is in the dough stage versus last year's 74 per cent and the average of 92 per cent. Denting is at a slow pace at eight per cent while last year's progress was 18 per cent contrasting sharply with the average of 60 per cent. Soybeans setting pods reached 91 per cent versus last year's 99 per cent and the average of 100 per cent. Developing at a snail's pace, only five per cent of soybeans are yellowing versus 12 per cent in 1992 and the average of 49 per cent.

Topsoil moisture was 40 per cent adequate and 60 per cent surplus. An average of 3.7 days were suitable for field work over the past week.

Strandquist

F. Myrtle Vagle

The Strandquist Senior Citizens met the week preceeding the holiday and 19 of them enjoyed a noon meal at Irene's Cafe in town. Later they met at the Center and worked on crafts and had coffee and shared goodies. They met again on Thursday, September 9 with 17 members and seven guests: Melvin Kittleson, Alyce Andeson, Adrienne Lefrooth, Clara Nelson, Marian Pederson, Lillian Germundson and Elsie Lefrooth. Blood pressures were taken and the afternoon was spent working on crafts for their fall sale in October. Donna Renstrom was the hostess and Lorraine Setten won the door prize.

Many of you already know that I've been gone for a couple more months due to my daughter's illness and three weeks ago flew back to Fargo to be with Roy who was having a stay at the hospital there. In the meantime some news sent in the mail got mixed up in the accumulation and did not get in on time. Please excuse me, I really do appreciate the effort each one has done and I will try to do better.

Sunday supper guests at J. R. Kleinwachter's to help Toni celebrate her birthday were Frank and Judy Kleinvachter, Terry and Betty Pietruszewski, Michael and Kevin, Ben Kleinwachter, Mark, Brian and Sara, Wayne Larson, Abby, Kate and Rebecca and Fr. John Kleinwachter of Mahnomen.

Chana Chaffee spent the weekend at Morris Anderson's. Saturday supper guests were Kathy, Jared and Allison, Britten, Paul, Kristopher and Kendrick Anderson.

After another two-day summer this year again, I was looking forward to a long Indian summer; but looking out the window as most weather announcers do, I can only report we are a long way into fall. The wind is cold and from the northwest and the TV says it is snowing in Williston, ND.

This will be the last installment from Ebba Sihlberg, the Potato Bug Queen, on how her garden is faring for this year. She says that when her potatoes drowned out the mature bugs moved over to her tomatoes and worked them over. She says the potatoes and tomatoess are cousins so they do like some people and move in with relatives when the going is rough. They do have the last names "Atoes" so it could be so.

Ebba was up to Karlstad to visit her brother Alvin Erickson and his wife Dolores at the nursing home. Visitors at her home this week have been Pastor Norquist, Art Kleinwachter, Elphie Adlis, Viola Fredricks, Donavan and Kelly Donarski and Jeff and Margaret Donaldson.

Barb and Tom Woodruff of St. Charles, MO were overnight guests at Isaac and Betsy Thompson's on Saturday. Tom and Barb are over-the-road team drivers and were here to show the family their beautiful new truck. Sunday dinner guests were Tom and Barb, Richard, and Karl Thompson of Red Lake Falls and Robert, Cathy, Andrew and Lisa Thompson. Merle and Lloyd Nelson of Kennedy stopped in in the afternoon.

Yo-Yo Balloons, crafts being sold by Dominick Nelson and Jessica and Randy Fugero from Grafton, ND, were displayed at Everybody's Market in Thief River Falls Saturday.

Memorial fund for Sam Bigger is established

To commemorate Sam Bigger's memory and recognize his contributions to agriculture in the area, the Sam Bigger Memorial Fund has been established.

Bigger died August 26 from injuries received in a farm accident. He was an agricultural education teacher in the 1960s, served with the University of Minnesota extension service for 25 years, and finally was assistant director of development for the Northwest Experiment Station and University of Minnesota—Crookston.

Bigger's widow, Norma Marie, who had been in poor health for some time, died Friday, September 10.

Contributions to the Sam Bigger Memorial Fund will be used to promote agriculture related activities which are to be designated after consultation with the Bigger family. These may include designations for such activities as research, student scholarships, professional development for faculty, staff and extension service personnel or other projects.

Those who wish to donate may send their gifts to the Sam Bigger Memorial Fund, Office of External Relations, White House Alumni Center, University of Minnesota, Crookston, MN 56716-9989.

IMPRESSIONS

Beth Johnson

I've been considering the word "consistent." What does consistent mean? One definition of consistent is the holding to the same principles or practice, such as in consistent behavior.

In my considering of this word consistent, I am led to consider various behaviors. It's always easy to look at the behaviors of others and find points of inconsistency. It's harder to look at ourselves and find the areas in which we may be inconsistent. But, I'm not considering the word "inconsistent," but, rather the word "consistent."

Consistent behavior is behavior that allows another person to at least know what you are going to do, or at least not be terribly shocked when you do whatever you do. Consistent behavior is not always good behavior. I can be consistently bad in my behavior towards you. In spite of my bad behavior, you at least know what to expect from me.

Children thrive with consistent positive parental expectations. The parents who consistently show respect and love to their children will most likely develop children whom they too can respect. The parents who consistently praise their children's worthy behaviors will find that the children they are raising will be children of whom they can be proud.

Likewise, children do not thrive when the behavior from their parents towards them is consistently negative. Children who are consistently mocked and taunted by their parents will most likely grow into children who their parents can not respect. Children who are consistently criticized will most likely develop into people who question their own value.

Consistent behavior, positive or negative, is a foundation of the value systems our young people learn to develop. I tend to think that we adults have a long way to go before we can look at ourselves and truly say that our behavior has been consistently a positive influence on the children around us. All of us need improvement in our ability to be consistent positive influences.

When consistency fails, in inconsistency reigns, then it is that whatever positive influence we purport to have with others falters. Children can easily spot our inconsistent behavior. They quickly determine how, for instance, they can play one parent against the other, knowing that the parents just may not be consistent and united in their parental decisions.

In any government – local, state, or national – when inconsistency takes the place of consistent expectations, the people are left to falter, or at least to question who much they should trust their governing bodies.

I observed some inconsistent behavior this week in our local school system. The powers that be in school have decreed that hats cannot be worn in school. That is a consistent dress code of sorts that has been in practice for some time. But, now school officials have said that no hats can be worn at any athletic event. On of the reasons for this expanded ban on hats is because of the advertising on the hats. Some of this advertising is for drug and alcohol related products. It is admirable that the school authorities feel strongly enough about trying not to promote drug and alcohol abuse among our children that they are banning a means of advertising these unwanted substances. But, if the school system feels this strongly to enforce an expanded dress code, then should they not feel just as strongly about the meeting places they choose for school meetings??

Let me explain – last week there was a meeting of a school group called Target. It was an informational breakfast meeting for parents and their students who have been identified as leaders by their coaches or fine-art instructors. This breakfast meeting was located in a bar. This group has as its purpose to target you people for drug and alcohol free leadership. Consistent behavior by the persons in charge of this meeting??? Perhaps this is more an example of inconsistent behavior. From which expectation will our student leaders develop their behavior – the positive expectation of the group that expects alcohol and drug free living? – or, the actual behavior of adults who didn't deem drug and alcohol free living important enough in their decision of a meeting place? Was this consistent with the reason for the ban on headgear?

Consistent behavior, particularly positive behavior should be our goal. Is you behavior positive as well as consistent? Is mine? Where it is not, a change for the positive and for consistency can only be good.

OUR ADVERTISERS SAVE YOU MONEY!

Scoping meet on Red River basin set here

One of two public scoping meetings on preparation of an environmental review document for the Red River of the North drainage basin has been scheduled for Thief River Falls. The session will be Tuesday, October 5, at 7:30 p.m. at Lincoln high school.

The other meeting will be Monday, October 4, at 7:30 p.m. at the Northwest Technical College in Moorhead.

The U.S. Corps of Engineers and the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources are holding the meetings.

The environmental review document will address the cumulative impacts associated with impoundment projects in the basin that require Clean Water Act permits. These include projects identified by the Red River Watershed Management Board, watershed districts, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. The study will also address alternatives to impoundments such as: no action, levees, diversion, greenbelts and others.

Purpose of the public meetings is to help identify issues, resources and alternatives of concern to the public and other meeting participants. These concerns will then be considered for inclusion and evaluation in the study.

Resources tentatively identified include fish, wildlife, vegetation, cultural, agriculture, water, wetlands, tribal trust and threatened and endangered species.

Geographic boundary of the study will be limited to the Minnesota portion of the Red River of the North drainage basin. These public meetings will not address permit activities in North Dakota.

An information packet is being prepared which will expand on the purpose and organization of the meetings. It will be distributed about 10 days prior to the meetings and will also be available from local Department of Natural Resources offices.

Those who would like to furnish written comments concerning the study may provide them by Oct. 31, 1993, to Paul Richert, St. Paul District, Corps of Engineers—Regulatory Branch, 190 Fifth Street East, St. Paul, MN 55101-1638.

Persons who have questions may direct them to Tom Balcom, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, Office of Planning, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55155, phone (612) 296-4796 or Richert at his address above or by calling (612) 290-5372.

SPEAKING OF

Sherry LaCoursiere

. . . Now, What to Eat

It is very difficult to know what foods are good for me and what are not any more. Things that used to be good are now bad, and things that were bad have become good things. In fact, I am so old that some things that were once good for me got to be bad for me and then, all of a sudden, got to be good for me again (and vice versa).

Now that you are thoroughly confused, let me try to explain.

I never know from one day to the next which foods are good for me and which are not. It seems as though everything I ever learned about nutrition has changed around. Sometimes foods seem to change from good to bad or bad to good overnight. Sometimes I go to bed at night thinking something is good for me and wake up in the morning to read in the morning newspaper that is is not good for me any more.

I am thinking about starchy foods, like potatoes, rice and breads. When I was a child all I heard was "eat your potatoes, eat all of your rice, eat you bread crusts" ("They will make your hair curly.")

When I was in my 20's, having babies every few years and gaining too much weight, starchy foods were bad for me. The doctor said to stop eating so much starch and concentrate on meats, fruits and vegetables instead.

Not that I am really old, those same potatoes, rice and breads are all very good for me and I should eat several servings a day.

Nowadays meats are not so good for me. I am only supposed to have three or four ounces a couple of times a day. Eggs are not so good for me either. I should only have three a week. I distinctly remember being told by the doctor that I could eat all of the meats and eggs I wanted with my fruits and vegetables.

Cheese used to be good for me. The doctor said I could eat that, too. It was filled with calcium and protein, wasn't it? Now I am told it is also filled with fat and cholesterol, so it is bad for me. So are other calcium rich foods, like milk, butter and cream.

Margarine used to be a suitable substitute for butter. Now they are telling me that it isn't good for me either. I do not like plain, dry toast. I would rather not eat it at all if I have to eat it dry. But then I would not be able to get my five servings of grain each day, would I?

When I was a child, coffee was for grown ups but I could have tea when I was feeling sick. Teas was good for me. Suddenly coffee and tea became bad, too much caffeine. Three cups of coffee or tea each day were the maximum anyone should have.

Just the other day I heard that coffee is being given to people in the hospital to stop pain or some such. Now it is good again? Fine, I am going to drink all the tea I want. If coffee is good again it won't be long before they find out that tea is good, too.

"A nice, red apple a day will keep the doctor away." "Bring a nice, red apple for the teacher." Not. There was something nasty put on or in the red apples to make them red, so we were not supposed to eat them. We could eat yellow and green apples. But who wants to eat an apple that isn't nice and red? Who wants to bring their teacher a yellow or green apple?

Gee, remember the good old days when breakfast consisted of bacon, eggs, hot buttered toast and coffee laced with cream and sugar? Now all you can have of that sumptuous breakfast is one-half of an egg, no bacon at all, dry toast and black coffee (maybe).

Remember when lunch was a creamy bowl of soup, a meaty sandwich slathered with mayonnaise, and a nice glass of milk? Now no creamed soups, no meat, no mayonnaise and better make that milk the skimmed kind.

Remember when dinner consisted of roast beef, gravy, mashed potatoes, a hearty vegetable or two, salad with plenty of dressing, rolls with butter and a glass of wine? Make that just three ounces of beef, no gravy, no butter or milk in the mashed potatoes, uncooked vegetables with no butter on them, undressed salad greens and plain rolls, but go ahead and have the wine. What about my liver getting pickled in alcohol? Not to worry, wine is now supposed to be good for the heart.

I'm really tired of this. I think I'm going to just keep on eating what I like and not worry about it so much. The way things are going, sooner or later somebody will decide the things that are bad are good and the things that are good are bad and it will all even out anyway.

Special RIM signup period ends Oct. 27

Special signup period for the Reinvest in Minnesota (RIM) program will be held through October 27, according to the Marshall-Beltrami Soil and Water Conservation District office.

The signup is to restrict the allocation of dollars to areas that were most severely impacted by the 1993 floods—cropped riparian lands located in the 100-year floodplain, cropped wetland restoration areas and cropped type 1 and 2 wetlands for the Permanent Wetland Preserve (PWP) program.

Applications are being taken statewide and those funded will receive 50 per cent of the easement payment (up to $15,000) upon the completion and recording of the conservation agreement (pending Gov. Arne Carlson's execution of an emergency executive order allowing the payment). This initial payment is intended to financially assist farmers who were impacted by the floods and choose to participate in these perpetual conservation easement programs.

Between October 27 and November 27 RIM signup will be back under the regular rules of the program.

For more information and answers to questions on the RIM program, contact the Marshall-Beltrami Soil and Water Conservation office in Grygla at 294-6144.

Part II

Although water resources records have been kept only since 1880, we know of several early Red River floods from the writings of early visitors and settlers.

Back in 1776, a French man named Louis Nolin canoed to Pembina via the Red Lake and Red Rivers in the midst of what he later said was the greatest flood in the history of the region.

The Great Flood of 1826 recast the lives of struggling colonists who lived in what is now "The Forks" of present-day Winnipeg. Since 1812, colonists had struggled to establish homes there, but had been unable to ever raise enough food to enable them to stay the winter. Each fall they had been forced to move to Pembina where there was adequate food.

Rains fell all the summer of 1825 to overflow every lake, river and hollow. In December occurred one of the greatest blizzards ever and in the new year snow kept falling until snow was up to the eaves of Kildonan homes at "The Forks" and at St. Boniface. Red River ice thickened to five and six feet. Spring thaw came late, to melt accumulated snows of Red River, its tributaries, and lakes. Red River pushed the combined waters north to hurl a solid wall of ice floes across still frozen Lake Winnipeg.

Over 700 settlers lived in Kildonan; and they filed to a ridge three days walk east. The cold and hungry colonists huddled while waves and ice cakes of an horizonless sea bowled over every structure in Kildonan. When they returned to the sites of their vanished homes in June, they were of two minds.

One group decided to remain and start over on higher ground. The larger group had had enough and decided to move to Fort Snelling.

Those that remained prospered. The floods had brought a resurgence of plant life and farms prospered, producing enough food to get them through the winter. Fine homes were built and Fort Garry and Lower Fort Garry were constructed.

On the other hand, the 450 people that left Kildonan suffered a slow and fearsome three-month journey. Then when they finally arrived, they received a chilly reception at Fort Snelling. The self-sufficient soldiers and their families at the fort were shocked at the bedraggled refugees. Colonel Snelling had neither the authority nor the desire to colonize near the fort. So, when they were able to again travel, most refugees went on down the Mississippi to found river port towns from Galena to St. Louis. Some crossed the Mississippi River to become the earliest settlers at Mendota or of Pig's Eye (St. Paul) and some stayed on the west side to found St. Anthony (Minneapolis).

And so flooded-out Red Riverites were some of the first white people to build homes in Minnesota.

Today Kildonan is protected from flood by the gigantic circular floodway built on the perimeter of Winnipeg.

City council to do battle with large budget deficit intent to stick with a 5.8 per cent increase in the levy limit as the projected budget deficit is based on a 5.8 per cent increase.

Although this is an increase, it will not raise more funds for general fund use. Because of an increase in the 1994 debt service tax levy over 1993 by $40,000, and an increase in the amount of property tax aid, the net local tax levy available for general fund purposes is down. Delinquent tax collections are also expected to be down by about $10,000, which is based on history of prior years' collection.

The proposed tax levy for 1994 is expected to raise $910,324. In 1993, the levy raised $860,420. In 1992, the tax levy raised $813,216.

Roger DeLap, city finance officer, provided the council with a preliminary review of the 1994 proposed governmental budgets.

The two main types of funds within the city that the council works with in the budget process are the governmental funds and the enterprise funds. Governmental funds include the general fund, debt service funds, all special revenue funds and the police relief association. These types of funds rely primarily on state aids, tax levies and grants, and are controlled or influenced more by political decisions than the enterprise funds. Enterprise funds rely on sales or user's fees for their source of revenue. Their level of services, transfers, activities, or reserves are determined by the volume of sales or the level of rate structures that apply.

Obviously, a large percentage of operating funds for the city of Thief River Falls comes from other sources than general property taxes. Actual 1992 general fund revenue was $3,423,889. Only 20.8 per cent of that total came from property taxes. Nearly 50 per cent (49.7 per cent or $1,701,575) came from intergovernmental revenue. Transfers from other departments accounted for 16.7 per cent or $570,975. Department revenue accounted for 8.2 per cent or $280,588. Licenses and fines accounted for 3.1 per cent or $104,858 of the total general fund revenue. Miscellaneous general revenue accounted for 1.6 per cent or $55,087 of the total general fund revenue.

Charts with information dating back to 1986 show that over the years, while taxes have increased, property taxes have accounted for a smaller portion of the total revenue. For example, property taxes accounted for 25 per cent of the total general fund revenuo in 1986, compared to 25.5 per cent in 1988, 21.7 per cent in 1990, and 20.8 per cent in 1992. Total transfers, which includes transfers from the electric utility fund, liquor dispensary and other sources, has also decreased over the years. In 1986, transfers accounted for 24.1 per cent of the general fund. In 1992, transfers accounted for 16.7 per cent of the total general fund revenue.

Reliance on Intergovernmental revenue, which includes local government aid, Minnesota property tax aids and other intergovernmental aid, has increased over the years. In 1986, intergovernmental aid accounted for 41.5 per cent. In 1992, it accounted for nearly 50 per cent.

Where is the money spent? Much of the general fund in 1992 was spent on public safety (34.6 per cent or $1,145,652). General government accounted for 18.4 per cent or $609,026 of general fund expenditures. Streets and highways accounted for 16.7 per cent or $552,589. Park and recreation accounted for 16.3 per cent or $541,685. Expenditures under miscellaneous general fund accounted for 14.1 per cent or $466,043.

It is interesting to note that since 1986, despite the increases in expenditures, the percentages of where that money was spent remained about the same. Public safety, for example, accounted for 33.7 per cent of the expenditures in 1986. In 1992, it accounted for 34.6 per cent of the general fund expenditures.

In other business, the council approved a motion to have a contractor put down bituminous for the basketball courts at Engelstad Park. City Engineering and Technical Services Director, Ron Lindberg, explained that he talked with the contractor. The contractor will be in town for various other projects, and he agreed to pave the basketball courts at $42 per ton. The contractor's previous bid on the entire project, which also included tennis courts, was rejected by the council. The motion approved by the council Tuesday gives the contractor the go ahead to pave the basketball courts at $42 per ton and an option to complete the tennis courts at the same price if the contractor the go ahead to pave the basketball courts at $42 per ton and an option to complete the tennis courts at the same price if the contractor has time and is inclined to do the project.

Graduation based on outcomes for 1996?

by Marie Hvidsten
Northern Outreach Coordinator for the Center for School Change

The term "Outcome Based Education" (OBE) has been in Minnesota education jargon for the past few years. In fact, the State Legislature has mandated that by the year 1996 all ninth grade students will graduate based on outcomes rather than credit hours.

What exactly does this mean? What is the school district in this community doing to prepare itself for graduation based on outcomes and for 1996? Several examples may help us understand what graduation based on demonstration of outcomes is all about.

Remember when you received your driver's license? You had to pass a written test and then a test behind the wheel of a vehicle. Those folks who didn't get enough points had to take it again until they could demonstrate that they knew the material. This method of teaching and testing (assessment) is demonstrating an outcome.

Another popular method is used in 4-H. In this organization, you learn by doing something that will demonstrate your knowledge of an area. The project is "graded" on how well the project stacks up against the criteria the judges have for that particular area.

In both of these examples, the learner (student) knew before beginning the project what was expected of him/her in order to demonstrate the outcome.

The second step of graduation based on demonstration of outcomes is the testing (assessment). You may have heard terms such as portfolio, performance and authentic assessments. In order for learning to have meaning and testing to be authentic, the two parts—learning and testing—need to match.

The driver's test that was mentioned earlier was an authentic assessment. People do drive in real life; it's not a test that was made up so a teacher could give out a grade to a student. The test and the learning had meaning for the student's life. That meaning and real life experience are essential attributes of authentic assessment as well as authentic learning.

Performance assessments are tests where the student is asked to demonstrate his/her knowledge about an area. I can remember, when I was 13 years old, giving demonstrations about how to make a milkshake in 4-H. I received a grand champion ribbon for that demonstration.

The judges (teachers) asked me to show them that I knew how to make a milkshake. Could I have done that by writing a report, or answering a multiple choice test? Possibly, but would you really know that I knew how to make a milkshake?

The same is true in learning in school. Performance assessment needs to take place more often so students can demonstrate their knowledge, not just answer multiple choice questions or do a written test.

Portfolio assessments are demonstrations of learning where the actual work is put into a folder of some kind so future employers and post secondary schools can see it along with a transcript.

Employers are telling schools that they want to see the actual work students have done rather than just have the grades. What does a grade really tell you? Paul Bressel of Michigan State University says:

"A grade is an inadequate report of an inaccurate judgement by a biased and variable judge of the extent to which a student has attained an unidentified level of mastery of an indefinite amount of material."

As school gets underway this fall, inquire with your school personnel about what is being done regarding outcomes and assessments. You will become better informed about your school and your district's teachers, administration and board of education will know the citizens of the district are interested in education.

One of Gajen's brothers, who earned a Master of Mechanical Engineering degree at the University of Toledo, is now working for an American company in the construction of a nuclear power plant in South Korea.

Gajen first earned an Associate in Science degree in data processing from the University of Toledo's technical college. He went on to earn his Bachelor of Business Administration degree in business accounting and a Master of Business Administration degree in information systems, all at the University of Toledo, and will soon have his MSA degree in accounting from the same university.

During his years in the United States Gajen has been able to gain some valuable experience toward being effective in his present position. He has worked as a computer consultant, was a computer programmer on the IBM mini-computers for two years with a programming company, was a graduate assistant, taught accounting management and computerized accounting since January of 1989 at the University of Toledo Technical College, and for the past six months taught accounting at Owens Technical College in Toledo.

Hired for the position late last spring, Gajen said he has been looking forward to beginning his position as an instructor here. While his brother urged him to go into private industry where he could "make big bucks," he said his interest is to teach.

"I first tell my students what accounting is about and what it is like," he said. "Then I will have people in different areas of the field come into the class and talk to them about their experience in those areas. I want very much to help the students to do better in life."

He is already planning for the business club members to make a trip to Winnipeg and to participate locally in the volunteer income tax assistance program. And he has a friend who he hopes to bring to the community to help his students in learning how to write a resume in seeking employment.

He said he appreciates the friendliness of the community and the cooperation of the college administration and staff. He said he received a positive first impression when he first arrived in the community about 1 a.m. after driving straight through from Toledo without stopping to eat.

"I had a room at the Super 8 Motel and went to The Lantern restaurant. There were two girls working there and they were getting ready to close at that time in the morning. I told them I was very hungry after the long drive and I would please like something to eat. They said 'sure' and prepared food for me.

"I kept looking and was surprised there were no men working there. In Toledo it would be unheard of to have just two girls at work in a restaurant at that time of night."

Gajen said he chose to come to a smaller community at least in part to get away from the larger city's problems with crime and drugs. And he is prepared for the cold weather which he has been warned to expect.

"I don't mind cold weather," he said. "You can dress for it. When it is too hot and humid there is nothing you can do."

He also taught psychology at the Gallup branch of the Western New Mexico University and psychology and biology at New Mexico State University in Grant, NM.

Making the move to Thief River Falls meant leaving his family behind in New Mexico where his wife, Irene, is serving as a counselor in the Gallup McKinley County School District and completing work on her master's degree in counseling at Western New Mexico University.

The family also includes five children. Elizabeth, 17, is a freshman at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque. Agatha, 16, is a junior in high school; Theresa, 14, is a freshman in high school and proud to be a member of the pompon squad; Solomon Jr., 11, is in sixth grade; and Xavier, four, attend pre-school classes.

Solomon said he is "here with their blessing" and that they will join him probably within the next year. He arrived on September 1 and said he appreciated the efforts of Northland staff member Becky Holthusen and of fellow new instructor Gajen Ramanathan for helping to find an apartment for him.

Solomon also said he was happy to be here and is finding the people to be very friendly. He thanked Northland president Dr. James Haviland and the staff for being very supportive and said he would be willing to speak to student and community groups and organizations about the culture and way of life in his native Nigeria where his mother still lives. He also has a brother and four sisters.

Carolyn Bjerke of Oviedo, FL accompanied her grandparents, John and Clara Helley, to Plummer earlier in the summer to visit for two months here. Later Carolyn's parents, Jerry and Barbara Bjerke and children Tammie and Krysten, came to the Helleys and Carolyn for a month and to have little Kyrsten baptized.

Baptism

Reverend Robert Schurr officiated at the baptism of Kyrsten Bjerke in the Presbyterian church. Present for the occasion were her parents: Jerry and Barbara Bjerke, sister and brother Carolyn and Tommie; grandparents John and Clara Helley Sr. of Plummer; Duane and Darlene Bjerke, Patti, Peggy and Jordan all of Thief River Falls; Arlene Kelly, Pony Toulouse, and Hilma Hemstad of Plummer and the congregation. Coffee and rolls were served to all after church by Barbara Bjerke, Idella Rewertz and Clara Helley.

The John Helley family and grandson Josh Veselka of Middle River and the Bjerke family enjoyed a week at "Veterans on the Lake" resort in Ely and after that they all left for Wheeling, IL. From there the Bjerkes left by plane for their home in Oveido, FL. John and Clara returned last week to Plummer and will be making their home here permanently. We welcome them back after a naval career and years of teaching Naval Science in Wheeling, IL. John was recently elected for a four-year term on the Bemidji State university alumni board at a meeting in Walker on August 21 and 22.

Word was received by John and Clara Helley that their granddaughter Kyrsten Bjerke had undergone kidney surgery successfully at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, TX. Barb and Kyrsten returned to Florida the following Sunday.

New Arrival

Congratulations to Tom and Brenda Fisher of Thief River Falls on the birth of Hayley Marie. She was born on August 30 and has a big sister, Corbi, at home. Grandparents are Joe and Helen Fisher of Plummer.

Erika and Lindsey Vettleson recently performed in the cast of "Beauty and the Beast" a play given in Oklee. Erika played the role of the old woman and Lindsey was the magic picture. Congratulations to the girls for their excellent performance!

Heroes of Life
Dave Dravecky

TO WITNESS THE HERALDING STORY OF DAVE DRAVECKY!

Dave Dravecky made his livelihood on a mound of dirt, throwing a baseball with a strong left arm. He was, for nearly a decade, a professional ball player. He was a pitcher who stood on the doorstep of athletic greatness.

When it counted most, he excelled at the game he loved. He threw superbly in the 1984 National League Championship Series and in that season's World Series for the San Diego Padres. He was virtually unhittable in the 1987 National League championship Series for the San Francisco Giants. He baffled the American League's best batsmen in the 1983 All-Star Game in Chicago.

But the biggest victory of Dravecky's life–the one that sustained him when cancer finally defeated his once-powerful throwing arm–didn't take place on a diamond with 50,000 spectators in the stands. It didn't show up in his statistical record on his baseball card.

RLCC gains first Valley Plains win

■ Mustangs edge Gators 22-13

Both teams moved the football, but Red Lake County Central crossed the goal line one more time than Badger/Greenbush-Middle River Friday as the Mustangs beat the Gators 22-13 in Valley Plains Conference high school football at Badger.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River netted 220 yards on the ground; Red Lake County Central had 219.

"It was a good, hard-hitting football game," reported Red Lake County Central coach Gary Brantl, whose team won its first Class C game after being elevated from the Nine-Man ranks this fall. "The kids were pretty excited," noted Brantl. "It was our first win in our new conference. They played pretty well. They played with a lot of enthusiasm and a lot of intensity."

A long return of the game-opening kickoff set set up a 4-yard Brian Walsh touchdown run as Badger/Greenbush-Middle River grabbed an early 7-0 lead.

A 27-yard Darin Hofstad touchdown run and a 1-yard Adam Lundeen touchdown dive following a long pass play from Scott Lorenson to Paul Melby gave Red Lake County Central a 14-7 halftime edge.

The Gators came back with a 1-yard Sheldon Ruud touchdown after a Red Lake County Central fumble on the Mustangs' first offensive snap of the third quarter, but the winners clinched it with a 7-yard fourth quarter touchdown run by Hofstad.

Walsh wound up with 118 yards on 16 carries and teammate Erik Heggedal added 85 yards on just 8 carries.

Hofstad finished with 103 yards on 16 carries, Lundeen had 52 yards on 12 carries and Shannon Willet netted 45 yards on 8 attempts.

Lorenson was 4-for-5 passing for 52 yards. Ruud was 4-for-10 for 25 yards.

"We were able to run the ball pretty well," said Brantl. "We used the pass sparingly, but effectively."

Most of the Mustangs' yards came off the left side of the line, behind the blocks of guard Shawn McMullen, tackle Chad Pahlen and end Paul Melby, with Lundeen also providing lead blocks from his fullback position.

Lundeen was in on 19 tackles to lead the Mustangs' defense. Brad Mossestad, Aaron Rosten, Lorenson, and Hofstad all had a hand in 7 tackles. Mossestad came up with two interceptions.

The 1-1 Mustangs play Waubun Friday at Oklee. The 0-2 Gators visit Red Lake Falls that night.

Both Blaine and White Bear Lake are among the top 15 ranked teams in Class AA, while Blue Earth is ranked among the top 5 teams in Class A.

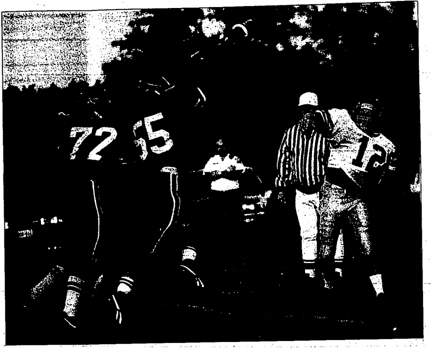
TRFAHA meeting is slated Sept. 20

Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association (TRFAHA) meeting will be held Monday, Sept. 20, at 7 p.m. in the Lincoln High School cafeteria.



A pass rush by Alexandria defensive linemen Tim Hanson (72) and Darrin Keller (55) didn't stop Thief River Falls quarterback Jeff Twomey from getting off this first quarter pass during Friday's high school football game at Alexandria. The Prowlers dropped to 0-2 with a 39-6 loss to the 2-0 Cardinals. Thief River Falls will host Wadena-Deer Creek Friday at 7:30 p.m.

■ Quick start leads Alexandria past Thief River Falls 39-6

Defending Class A state champion Detroit Lakes was first. Class AA Alexandria came next. Net result: an 0-2 Thief River Falls start to the 1993 high school football season.

The Lakers and Cardinals, arguably the two toughest opponents appearing on the Thief River Falls schedule, have handed the Prowlers nearly identical season-opening scoreboard lickings. Detroit Lakes beat them 41-6. Alexandria won a Friday night mismatch 39-6.

Thief River Falls figured to have trouble against Detroit Lakes, but the Prowlers felt they had shot at beating Alexandria. Not. The host Cardinals scored on their first three possessions for a 19-0 halftime lead and were never challenged.

"Alex is good," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm. "They're not a Detroit Lakes, but I hope we don't see anybody as good the rest of the year."

It was not a good night for the Prowlers. They fumbled away their first possession, dropped a low punt snap on their third offensive series and threw a mid-field interception on their fourth set of downs. They ended the first half with more penalty yards (50) than rushing yards (34), along with three turnovers.

"That's about as poor as you can play physically and mentally," said Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm. "We made just about every kind of mistake you can possibly make. Most of the mistakes were mental, and as a coaching staff, that's what bothers you the most."

The Prowlers had trouble from the start, picking up a 15-yard illegal block penalty on the opening kickoff and the losing a fumble three plays later at their own 18-yard line.

Alexandria promptly scored as 200-pound fullback Aaron Torfin reached the end zone on a 1-yard dive for a 6-0 head start with 3:06 gone.

The Cardinals' Ryan Noetzelman had an 85-yard punt return for a touchdown erased by a penalty, but Alexandria did turn its second possession into an 11-play, 76-yard touchdown drive. Sophomore quarterback Chad Hacker rolled left and hit Chris Howell with a 24-yard scoring strike, then added the conversion kick for a 13-0 lead with 1:42 left in the first quarter.

Forced to punt on the ensuing possession, the Prowlers found themselves in another hole when Steve Burslie couldn't find the handle on a low snap. He was nailed for a 16-yard loss back at the Thief River Falls 38.

Five plays later Hacker and Noetzelman hooked up on a screen pass that went 36 yards for a touchdown and a 19-0 cushion midway through the second quarter.

Wingback Nick Neydt burst through the right side and out-ran the Thief River Falls defense for a 71-yard touchdown and a 26-0 spread with 6:41 left in the third quarter.

The Prowlers came back with a 7-play, 67-yard scoring drive that ended with quarterback Jeff Twomey lofting a 17-yard touchdown pass to tight end Joby Looker in the back of the end zone.

However, it was a short-lived celebration. Noetzelman returned the kickoff 79 yards for a touchdown to maintain a 32-6 spread with 3:04 to play in the third quarter.

Eric Bjorgaard was intercepted at mid-field late in the fourth quarter, and the Cardinals' Kelly Hawkinson took a bootleg to the left on a 42-yard touchdown run with 48 seconds left to complete the scoring.

Heydt carried only four times, but wound up with 94 yards rushing. Fullback Brian Howe led the Prowlers with 55 yards on 10 carries. Hacker was 5-for-7 passing for 90 yards, while Twomey, who missed the opener because of a hand injury, went 6-for-12 for 61 yards.

High school volleyball tournament...

TRF fourth in Roseau meet

Thief River Falls wound up a fourth place finisher in an eight-team field Saturday at the Roseau Invitational high school volleyball tournament.

Warroad outlasted Thief River Falls 2-1 to start the round-robin pool play portion of the tournament, with the Prowlers bouncing back to beat both Blackduck and Steinbach 2-0.

That put Thief River Falls in the third place match against Tri-County. The Wildcats won 2-1.

Warroad won the ping-pong opener 10-15, 15-12, 17-15.

"We had so many chances against Warroad," noted Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson, " but they kept digging up what we tried to put down. We tipped too much."

Jamie Martell (14 last-touch points/5 kills) and Kelly Skeim (13/7) led the Prowlers.

Thief River Falls trailed 5-0 before coming back to beat Blackduck 15-10, 15-5 behind the serving of Skeim and some strong net play. Carrie Lawrence had 7 last-touch points and 3 kills for the winners.

Skeim took over setting duties for an injured Kendra Dimich as the Prowlers beat Steinbach 15-2, 15-11 by scoring heavily from the service line.

"Kelly did a nice job stepping in for Kendra," noted Anderson.

Lawrence had 7 last-touch points and 2 kills. Martell was credited with 6 last-touch points.

A hard-hitting Tri-County team beat Thief River Falls 15-9, 11-15, 15-10.

"We made too many mistakes," explained Anderson. "Tri-County has an experienced team with a lot of nice hitters."

Thief River Falls struggled at the start, got untracked offensively in the second game, but then fell behind 5-0 at the start of Game 3 before pulling within 13-10.

Lawrence finished with 10 last-touch points and 2 kills. Skeim and Martell both had 7 last-touch points. Maren Thorson matched Lawrence with 2 kills.

"It's still early yet," mentioned Anderson, whose team finished its first week of the 1993 season 3-2. "With some work on our blocking, we will see improvement at the net, and hopefully do a better job stopping our opponents' offense."

The Prowlers had a pair of North Sub-Section 8AA foes on the schedule this week – Tuesday at home against Detroit Lakes and Thursday in Bemidji.

Roseau Invitational Results

■ Team places - 1. Roseau; 2. Warroad; 3. Tri-County; 4. Thief River Falls; 5. Badger/Greenbush-Middle River; 6. Blackduck; 7. Kittson County North; 8. Steinbach.

■ TRF last-touch points - Carrie Lawrence 31, Jamie Martell 27, Kelly Skeim 30, Maren Thorson 19, Sarah Huschle 11, Jenny Drury 8, Kendra Dimich 7, Heather Holthusen 3.

Wadena-Deer Creek will visit TRF Friday

Thief River Falls will try to break into the win column Friday when the Prowlers begin a three-week homestand with a 7:30 p.m. Section 8A high school football game against Wadena-Deer Creek.

Staples and Park Rapids will follow the Wolverines to Prowler Field.

Thief River Falls is off to an 0-2 start after losing to Detroit Lakes 41-6 and Alexandria 39-6. Wadena is 2-0 with back-to-back shutout wins over Pine River-Backus 26-0 and Aitkin 6-0.

Wolverines quarterback Ryan Carlson could present problems for the Prowlers' defense. He had a big game in the season opener against Pine River-Backus when he rushed for 173 yards and went 8-for-19 passing for 154 yards. Carlson scored once himself and threw for a touchdown.

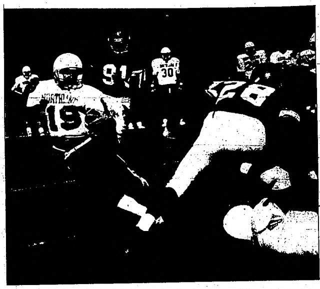
In other games involving Section 8A teams over the weekend, Detroit Lakes handled Park Rapids 47-14, East Grand Forks out-scored Staples 37-22, Crookston beat Holdingford 15-12, Fergus Falls fell to Orono 30-8, and Long Prairie-Grey Eagle lost to St. Cloud Cathedral 26-6.

Boosters Club will meet on Thursday

Lincoln High School girls tennis coach Jay Forney and girls swimming coach Ryan Lokken will be the guest speakers Thursday at the 12-noon Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club luncheon meeting at the Elks.

The public is invited.

"We have been encouraged by the number of downtown businessmen and other civic leaders who have taken part in the Boosters meetings to this point," said club president John Michael Anderson. "We hope to continue to grow and have a number of people take part in our regular meetings each and every Thursday."



Northland quarterback Jason Svir put a move on Fergus Falls defender David Boyd as the Spartans' David Moscho gave chase from behind during Saturday's community college football game in Fergus Falls. The Pioneers lost the season-opening match-up 21-0.

MCC Invitational is set Saturday

Marshall County Central will play host to an eight-team high school volleyball tournament on Saturday in Newfolden.

First round quarterfinals feature Marshall County Central vs. Stephen at 9 a.m., Warren-Alvarado vs. East Grand Forks Sacred Heart at 10 a.m., Bemidji vs. Argyle at 11 a.m., and Kittson County North vs. Grygla/Goodridge at 12-noon.

Play continues throughout the day in championship and consolation round matches.

Warroad	3
Grygla/Goodridge	0

Grygla/Goodridge coach Tim Mostrom was satisfied with the Wolverines' performances in season-opening losses to Marshall County Central and Badger/Greenbush-Middle River last week. However, he wasn't as enthused about a Monday showing in a 15-10, 15-5, 15-8 loss to Warroad in Goodridge.

"I was kind of disappointed," said Mostrom. "We took a step backwards. We just weren't there mentally."

Carlye Schuler did turn in a consistent effort, pointed out Mostrom, and Sara Newton came off the bench to go 9-for-9 at the service line.

The 0-3 Wolverines play Lake of the Woods Thursday in Baudette and will take part in the Marshall County Central Invitational Saturday.

Marshall County Central overwhelmed shorthanded Stephen 15-1, 15-2, 15-1 Monday at Newfolden.

"We got a chance to play everybody," noted Marshall County Central coach Mark Jorgenson. "The kids off the bench did a nice job."

Sophomore Darlene Nelson was one of the Nordics' reserves who took advantage of the playing time opportunity and turned in a solid all-around performance, said Jorgenson.

Marshall County Central, 3-0, will meet Badger/Greenbush-Middle River Thursday in Greenbush before the Nordics play host to their MCC Invitational Saturday.

Lake of the Woods	3
B/G-Middle River	0

Lake of the Woods left quite an impression on Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Gwen Borgen Monday after the Bears rolled to a surprisingly easy 15-4, 15-1, 15-12 win over the Gators at Greenbush.

"They (Bears) are in tournament form already," pointed out Borgen. "They've got it all together. They have a very good ball club. We can play better, but if I have to lose, at least I lost to a good team."

The Gators took a 3-3 record into a Tuesday match against Roseau. They play Marshall County Central Thursday in Greenbush.

TRF swim team takes part in Bemidji Relays

The host team was the winner Saturday in the Bemidji Relays invitational girls high school swimming meet.

Bemidji finished the ten relay events with 138 points, followed by Hibbing with 108, Brainerd 104, Detroit Lakes 72, Park Rapids Area 56, Thief River Falls 50, and Crookston 50.

Second place finishes in the 200 freestyle and cresendo relays represented the Prowlers' best showing of the day. The same foursome had both second places – senior Lisa Ulrich, juniors Mandy Johnson and Theresa Giauque, plus seventh grader Nicole Kopari.

The relay format allowed the Prowlers to experiment with their line-up. " It was a good opportunity to see a lot of kids in a lot of different events," explained Thief River Falls coach Ryan Lokken.

Brainerd won the junior varsity portion of the event with 118 points, followed by Hibbing with 108, Bemidji 106, Detroit Lakes 88, Thief River Falls 64, Crookston 48, and Park Rapids Area 0.

PREMIUM AUDITS

Premium Audits are typically performed on commercial insurance policies providing worker's compensation, general liability, and garage liability coverages.

When these polices are issued, you are asked to pay an estimated premium or "advance premium". Advance premiums are based on the nature of your business and your estimate of exposures (such as payroll, sales, etc.) for the policy period.

Once your policy expires, the company will conduct an audit by collecting information on actual exposures and operations. From this information gathered, the company will determine the final earned premium.

Larger and more complicated policies are handled by a field auditor who will schedule an appointment with you a few weeks after the policy expires, to go over your records.

Smaller, less complicated policies may only require that you gather the necessary data and send it to the company.

For more information on premium audits, or your other insurance concerns, stop at NORTHERN STATE AGENCY. Our office is conveniently located in the Northern State Bank building. Office hours are 8:30-4:30 Mon.-Fri., 8:30-6:00 Thurs.

Fergus Falls receiver Adam Steege managed to spin out of the grasp of Northland defensive back Antonio Parker at the 5-yard line and stepped into the end zone to complete a 7-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Scott Strohmeier in the third quarter of Saturday's community college football match-up. The Spartans shut out the Pioneers 21-0.

Fergus Falls wins football opener 21-0...

Spartans shut down NCC

Fergus Falls scored on its first two possessions Saturday afternoon and went on to beat Northland 21-0 in a nonconference season-opening community college football game played on the Spartans' sun-drenched field.

The outcome was hardly a surprise. Fergus Falls has won six Minnesota Community College Conference football divisional titles in the past eight years, and features a number of players off last year's MCCC state runner-up team. Northland, meanwhile, is in the process of rebuilding its entire offensive line – a project that has been slowed because of a rash of preseason injuries.

The result was a non-existent Northland running game that netted all of 14 yards for the day. Freshman quarterback Jason Svir was forced to scramble for his life on most snaps. He was sacked four times and found little room to run the option, losing 16 yards on 17 carries. He did manage to complete 7 of 21 pass attempts for 74 yards.

"We knew we were going to have trouble on offense with an inexperienced line," acknowledged Klinke, "but I never thought we'd have that much trouble running the ball. Our passing game will be twice as effective when we can run the ball."

Still, Klinke was hardly dismayed at the results.

"Hey, people said we were going to lose by 50," he noted. "We only lost by 21. We did better than expected. Fergus Falls is a good football team, but they won't go unbeaten, and we won't be 0-8. We didn't play up to our capabilities, but we approached it as the nonconference game it was, and the loss doesn't hurt us. We'll just have to make some adjustments and get some of our injured people back. If we can do that, we'll be all right."

It couldn't have started much worse for the Pioneers, who went nowhere on the game's first offensive series and then gave the Spartans the ball at the Northland 28 when punter Rick Anteau ended up with a 5-yard pop-up into a stiff wind.

Fergus Falls started with a five-yard illegal procedure penalty, but the next snap was good for a 33-yard touchdown run by Rodney Edlund, who popped through the middle of the line and into the clear. The kick by Adam Riedel made it 7-0 with just 2:51 elapsed.

Four plays later Fergus Falls was back on offense – an 11-play, 54-yard scoring drive that ended with a 1-yard quarterback sneak by Scott Strohmeier after Edlund carried six times for 45 yards.

Northland appeared to have cut the two-touchdown deficit in half when Freddie Jenkins wound up with a mis-played ball on a Fergus Falls punt return near the end of the first quarter. Jenkins ran nearly half the length of the football field untouched. But as the teams line-up for the conversion, officials met at mid-field, talked to both coaches and finally ruled it to be a non-returnable muff instead of a returnable fumble – Northland ball at the Fergus Falls 42 instead of a touchdown.

"That was a big play," pointed out Klinke. "We had a touchdown taken away. That would have made it a one-touchdown game. The officials admitted to us after the game they made a mistake. It should have been a touchdown."

Another punting situation – this one late in the third quarter – led to the third Fergus Falls touchdown of the game when the Spartans recovered a kick that bounced off a Northland return man at the Pioneers' 33-yard line. Strohmeier promptly lobbed the ball to John Mulford for a 26-yard gain, then went to Adam Steege on a swing pass that turned into a 7-yard touchdown when Steege spun away from a would-be tackler at the 5.

"We had trouble with the punting game," acknowledged Klinke. "We gave them the ball twice in scoring range because of poor punting situations. We gave them two of their three touchdowns off punts."

Northland did have two scoring opportunities. Four short Svir passes set up a first down at the Fergus Falls 20 in the final minutes of the first half, but three incompletions and a missed field goal attempt from the 27 killed that chance. A 21-yard Svir pass to Kenny Barker gave Northland a first down at the Fergus Falls 14 at the start of the fourth quarter, but a holding penalty moved them back and a interception kept the shutout intact.

Edlund, a 6-2, 190-pound sophomore from Battle Lake, carried 15 times for 112 yards, with all but three carries and four yards coming in the first half. He was dropped by a hard hit early in the third quarter and did not return to the game.

The Pioneers' defense surrendered only 136 yards on the ground. The Spartans did add 145 yards passing, but completed only 12 of 29 attempts, and were sacked seven times.

Northland will open its 1993 MCCC-counting schedule at home Saturday with a 1:30 p.m. game against Hibbing at Prowler Field. The tenth annual Pepsi Bowl includes distribution of Pepsi products at the gate prior to the start of the contest.

Eagles out-score Nordics 40-20

Chris Meyer did a number on Marshall County Central Friday as the East Grand Forks Sacred Heart runningback rushed for 217 yards and four touchdowns to lead the host Eagles past the Nordics 40-20 in Top of the State Conference Nine-Man football.

Meyer had touchdown runs of 45, 4, 1, and 42 yards as the winners built a 32-6 halftime lead.

Marshall County Central scoring came on a 1-yard run by Kent Rokke, a 20-yard Rokke touchdown pass to Lee Kuck and a 45-yard run by Kuck.

"Our line play, both offensively and defensively, was poor," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Kent Warne. Injuries to front line performers had a part to do with the performance, he noted.

Aaron Skadsem led the Nordics' ground game with 45 yards on 10 carries. Rokke was 10-for-15 passing for 87 yards, with Scott Zak catching four passes for 35 yards.

Defensively, the Nordics' Trever Magner was busy with 12 tackles and 9 assisted stops.

The 0-2 Nordics will try to break into the win column Friday when they host Kittson County North in a 7:30 p.m. game at Newfolden.

Pioneers lose pair of matches in Friday volleyball triangular

UND-Lake Region and Rainy River Community College handed host Northland a pair of losses Friday in a season-opening volleyball triangular.

The Royals beat the Pioneers in a 3-out-of-5-game match 15-7, 15-12, 16-14. The Voyageurs defeated Northland 15-9, 15-8 in a 2-four-of-three-game contest.

Rainy River rallied for a 12-15, 15-17, 15-4, 15-3, 17-15 win over UND-Lake Region to complete the triangular.

"We're not at all dissatisfied with the outcome," reported Northland coach Deb Jacobson. "Lake Region and Rainy River have good volleyball teams, and we did a lot of experimenting with the line-up, putting different combinations together to see what they can do. That took its toll on the team chemistry, I suppose, but we've got to do it now before we get into the conference season."

Blue Devils are 1-1 after 26-24 defeat

Tri-County gave up a touchdown and a conversion with 2 1/2 minutes left, but corralled the ensuing onside kick attempt and ran out the clock Friday to hold off Grygla/Goodridge 26-24 in a Top of the State Conference Nine-Man high school football game at Goodridge.

"It was a good, hard-hitting football game," noted Grygla/Goodridge coach Darwin Hagen. "It was back-and-forth. It was an entertaining game for the fans, I'm sure."

The loss dropped the Blue Devils to 1-1 for the year. "At times we looked pretty good, but other times we didn't look so good – a case of early-season inconsistency," said Hagen.

Grygla/Goodridge lost the services of top runningback Jason Grandstrand during the game when he re-injured an ankle. Sophomore Trevor Kiesow filled in for Grandstrand and played well, according to Hagen.

Eldon Quam was in on 17 tackles to lead the Blue Devils' defense. "He's always around the ball," said Hagen. "Defensively we had problems with their speed. Any time they got out in the open we were in trouble."

No scoring details were made available.

Grygla/Goodridge, 1-1, will have a Top of the State Conference bye this week.

RLCC volleyball squad second at UMC Invitational

Red Lake County Central was a runner-up finisher Saturday in the University of Minnesota-Crookston Invitational high school volleyball tournament.

"The last one kind of got away on us, but we played pretty well overall," said Red Lake County Central coach Nancy Bray. "Our serving was improved. We still need work on our offense."

The Mustangs took a 2-2 record into a Tuesday match at Warren-Alvarado. They play Fertile-Beltrami Thursday in Oklee.

The Englunds of 602 11th Street East in Thief River Falls were recipients of the 1993 Beautification award, which was presented by the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce. The award recognizes beautification and physical improvements of a residence in the community. The Englunds have made significant improvements to this home, including the large living room addition pictured above.

Winners of 1993 Chamber Beautification awards named

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Englund of Thief River Falls were winners of the Thief River Falls 1993 Chamber of Commerce Beautification Awards. There were three categories in the competition. The Englunds won the beautification award for their home located at 602 11th Street East.

When a neighbor approached the Englunds about entering their house in the competition, Mrs. Englund said she knew they had made many improvements to their "modest" home but didn't think they would win a beautification award. There are a lot of beautiful homes in Thief River Falls.

Since purchasing their present home six years ago, the Englunds have added a little. As it turns out, they have added more than just a little. For example, they have added an 18 by 26 foot addition to their living room, enclosed their front porch to create a three-seasons room, enclosed the back deck, put on a 14 by 16 foot outdoor deck, put in sidewalks, built a storage shed, installed a cedar split rail fence and added gardens, bird feeders and shrubs. So much has gone into the home, their "modest" home hardly compares to what it once was.

Gene is retired, and Ella works as a house cleaner for other homeowners. Although Gene is retired, he has continued doing what he retired from. You see, Gene used to be a gardener for Hardee's in Thief River Falls. It is clear that both have contributed to the neat and tidy appearance of their home.

Ella gives most of the credit for the yard work to her husband, however. She said she helps with the planting and gives him some ideas.

As Ella walked about the various garden plots around the house pointing out the different flowers and bushes by name, Gene went about working in his gardens. The gardens are not without decoration even though the flowers alone are quite capable of adorning any fine home. Tucked away among all the flowers and shrubs are ducks and geese, windmills and antlers. Yes, antlers. Gene likes to hunt, she said, and he has all these antlers around. "We had to do something with them."

Fad Free Alternatives to Effective school reform discussed at seminar

Award winning teachers and nationally recognized public schools will be featured in three Minnesota conferences this fall. A one-day workshop, "Fad Free Alternatives-Effective School Reform" will be held September 29 in Mankato, September 30, in St. Paul and October 1 in Bemidji. The workshops are sponsored by the Center for School Change. The Mankato workshop is co-sponsored by the Mankato State University College of Education. The workshops are designed to be useful to parents, educators and others concerned about how to increase student achievement. Workshop participants will have the opportunity to, among other things:

- Talk with people who have successfully developed school and community partnerships which increase student learning and produce greater community vitality; such as the Proctor Area Community center, reconstructed by high school students so that a Head Start, Senior Citizen and teen center share space; or the Cyrus Elementary Magnet school, including a community constructed day care center and an outdoor environmental/historical learning center which recently helped Cyrus be named one of the 51 best elementary schools in the U.S.
- Discuss the experiences of two nationally award winning schools which for more than a decade have been requiring students to demonstrate skills and knowledge, not just acquire credits, in order to graduate from high school.
- Examine efforts to increase parent involvement developed by several nationally award winning schools, including sharing ideas with 1991 Minnesota Teacher of the Year, Rhoda Stroud.
- Review ways to promote greater understanding and acceptance of diversity, through a workshop with 1990 Minnesota Teacher of the Year, Cathy Nelson.
- Learn about efforts to promote entrepreneurship via school based programs such as those in Rothsay, and Delavan and Proctor.
- Learn about how families can have the opportunity to choose among public schools by creating different kinds of schools right within the same building. Speakers will include Minnesota educators who have developed options in Blackduck, Cambridge, Minneapolis and St. Paul, along with Sy Fliegel, author of a new book about East Harlem, New York. Describing this book, Donna Shalala, U.S. Secretary of Health and Human Services, recently recommended, "Don't give up on your local public school, read Miracle in East Harlem."

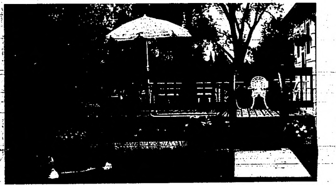
The conference will last from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at each of the three sites. Registration cost is $75. For further information, contact Betty Radcliffe or Joe Nathan at the Center for School Change at the University of Minnesota (612) 626-1834.

Service hours at Hwy. 59 border change

Beginning Sunday, September 19, the hours of service at the United States Customs Station in Lancaster, located on Highway 59, will be 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. The Station will operate throughout the year on this new schedule.

Travelers wishing to enter the United States between the hours of 11 p.m. to 7 p.m. should enter at the Ports of Pembina, ND, or Warroad.

For additional information, contact the United States Customs Pembina District Director Ray Hagerty at (701) 825-6201 or 1-800-437-5973.



Gene and Ella Englund were the recipients of the 1993 Chamber of Commerce Beautification award for a residence in Thief River Falls. The award recognizes beautification and physical improvements to a residence. One of the improvements made to the home in the last six years includes this outdoor deck.

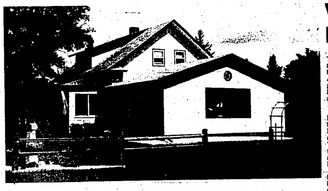
The Second Section



The Englunds of 602 11th Street East in Thief River Falls were recipients of the 1993 Beautification award, which was presented by the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce. The award recognizes beautification and physical improvements of a residence in the community. The Englunds have made significant improvements to this home, including the large living room addition pictured above.

Winners of 1993 Chamber Beautification awards named

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Englund of Thief River Falls were winners of the Thief River Falls 1993 Chamber of Commerce Beautification Awards. There were three categories in the competition. The Englunds won the beautification award for their home located at 602 11th Street East.

When a neighbor approached the Englunds about entering their house in the competition, Mrs. England said she knew they had made many improvements to their "modest" home but didn't think they would win a beautification award. There are a lot of beautiful homes in Thief River Falls.

Since purchasing their present home six years ago, the Englunds have added a little. As it turns out, they have added more than just a little. For example, they have added an 18 by 26 foot addition to their living room, enclosed their front porch to create a three-seasons room, enclosed the back deck, put on a 14 by 16 foot outdoor deck, put in sidewalks, built a storage shed, installed a cedar split rail fence and added gardens, bird feeders and shrubs. So much has gone into the home, their "modest" home hardly compares to what it once was.

Gene is retired, and Ella works as a house cleaner for other homeowners. Although Gene is retired, he has continued doing what he retired from. You see, Gene used to be a gardener for Hardee's in Thief River Falls. It is clear that both have contributed to the neat and tidy appearance of their home.

Ella gives most of the credit for the yard work to her husband, however. She said she helps with the planting and gives him some ideas.

As Ella walked about the various garden plots around the house pointing out the different flowers and bushes by name, Gene went about working in his gardens. The gardens are not without decoration even though the flowers alone are quite capable of adorning any fine home. Tucked away among all the flowers and shrubs are ducks and geese, windmills and antlers. Yes, antlers. Gene likes to hunt, she said, and he has all these antlers around. "We had to do something with them."

Food program funds available

Community Education department After School Child Care program (SACC), has announced sponsorship of the Child and Adult Care Food Program. Meals will be available at no separate charge to enrolled children without regard to race, age, color, sex, handicap or national origin at the Latch Key program held at Washington elementary school in Thief River Falls.

The amount of reimbursement received by the Community Education department is based on the number of enrolled children whose family income is at or below USDA Income Eligibility guidelines which were effective July 1, 1991 through June 30, 1993. For information about what those guidelines are contact the Community Education department in Thief River Falls.

This program, administered by the USDA and the Minnesota department of education, gives financial assistance to child care centers for nutritious meals. The goal of the program is to improve the diets of young children and increase the opportunity for children to eat a variety of nutritious foods. The meals and snacks served meet standards established by USDA.

For more information contact the Community Education department at 681-8740.

Fad Free Alternatives to Effective school reform discussed at seminar

Award winning teachers and nationally recognized public schools will be featured in three Minnesota conferences this fall. A one-day workshop, "Fad Free Alternatives-Effective School Reform" will be held September 29 in Mankato, September 30, in St. Paul and October 1 in Bemidji. The workshops are sponsored by the Center for School Change. The Mankato workshop is co-sponsored by the Mankato State University College of Education. The workshops are designed to be useful to parents, educators and others concerned about how to increase student achievement. Workshop participants will have the opportunity to, among other things:

- Talk with people who have successfully developed school and community partnerships which increase student learning and produce greater community vitality: such as the Proctor Area Community center, reconstructed by high school students so that a Head Start, Senior Citizen and teen center share space; or the Cyrus Elementary Magnet school, including a community constructed day care center and an outdoor environmental/historical learning center which recently helped Cyrus be named one of the 51 best elementary schools in the U.S.
- Discuss the experiences of two nationally award winning schools which for more than a decade have been requiring students to demonstrate skills and knowledge, not just acquire credits, in order to graduate from high school.
- Examine efforts to increase parent involvement developed by several nationally award winning schools, including sharing ideas with 1991 Minnesota Teacher of the Year, Rhoda Stroud.
- Review ways to promote greater understanding and acceptance of diversity, through a workshop with 1990 Minnesota Teacher of the Year, Cathy Nelson.
- Learn about efforts to promote entrepreneurship via school based programs such as those in Rothsay, and Delavan and Proctor.
- Learn about how families can have the opportunity to choose among public schools by creating different kinds of schools right within the same building. Speakers will include Minnesota educators who have developed options in Blackduck, Cambridge, Minneapolis and St. Paul, along with Sy Fliegel, author of a new book about East Harlem, New York. Describing this book, Donna Shalala, U.S. Secretary of Health and Human Services, recently recommended, "Don't give up on your local public school, read Miracle in East Harlem."

The conference will last from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at each of the three sites. Registration cost is $75. For further information, contact Betty Radcliffe or Joe Nathan at the Center for School Change at the University of Minnesota (612) 626-1834.

Service hours at Hwy. 59 border change

Beginning Sunday, September 19, the hours of service at the United States Customs Station in Lancaster, located on Highway 59, will be 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. The Station will operate throughout the year on this new schedule.

Travelers wishing to enter the United States between the hours of 11 p.m. to 7 p.m. should enter at the Ports of Pembina, ND, or Warroad.

For additional information, contact the United States Customs Pembina District Director Ray Hagerty at (701) 825-6201 or 1-800-437-5973.

Gene and Ella Englund were the recipients of the 1993 Chamber of Commerce Beautification award for a residence in Thief River Falls. The award recognizes beautification and physical improvements to a residence. One of the improvements made to the home in the last six years includes this outdoor deck.

Whole Wheat BIBLE STUDY

Conditions for the blood of Jesus

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

The blood of Jesus cleanses us from all of our sins—past, present and future. But are there any conditions that must be met before the blood applies? Yes, 1 Peter 1:2 says we must obey Jesus Christ first.

What happens when a person repents and is baptized in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins? Everyone knows that disciples of Jesus Christ are to live a different way of life. Some people today are simply told to stop sinning. Others are told only what the church expects of them in order to be right with God in the eyes of that particular faith. Some are told that God wants them to keep the Ten Commandments, love God and love their fellow man, but it is never explained to them how this is done.

One thing is for sure, there is much confusion as to exactly what you should do after you are baptized. Man might be confused, but God is not the author of confusion (1 Cor. 14:33). Satan is that author and he loves to leave you hanging. He gives you information, but never enough to make a permanent change for the good in your life.

Jesus came that we might have peace, abundance and joy in our daily lives (John 10:10; 17:13; Acts 3:19, 26; Rom. 14:17). In 1 Peter 2:24 it says, "Jesus Christ bore our sins in His body, that we might die to sin and live to righteousness."

How do you live to righteousness? Simply practice righteousness (1 John 2:29; 3:7, 10). How do you practice righteousness? Engage in good deeds (Titus 3:8; Gal. 6:9; 2 Thess. 3:13). To what degree should you do them? Zealously (1 Peter 3:13; Matt. 5:20)! Why zealously? Because zealously overcoming evil with good, along with daily study of God's word and prayer, is putting on the full armor of God (Rom. 12:21; Eph. 6:11). Most people who profess Jesus Christ as their Savior are totally unaware of this.

What can you do to practice righteousness? Look for people who are in need and help them (Matt. 25:33-40). Share your clothes, your food, your money, your time and your love with them (Luke 3:10-11; James 2:15-26; 1 John 3:17-19). Entertain widows, orphans, the blind, lame and poor (Luke 14:13). Have them over for dinner.

Do something; don't just sit there (Titus 1:16; 2:7)! Walk in the light. Keep yourself busy with acts of righteousness, charity and love. Be like Dorcas (Acts 9:36; 10:35). Then the blood of Jesus Christ can cover your sins (1 John 1:7; 1 Peter 1:2; Acts 5:32; Luke 6:46; 11:28; Matt. 7:24; James 1:22; John 12:47-48). Remember, if charity covers a multitude of sins, you had better have some, don't you think (1 Peter 4:8, 18; James 5:20)?

Putting Pesticides In Perspective

Donna Ulseth of Crookston, a member of the board of directors of the Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers, comments in the current issue of "Spring Wheat" magazine about the importance of putting pesticide use in perspective when dealing with the overall production and consumption of food.

Perception has much effect on how the public views pesticides, Ulseth says. "Pesticides" and "chemicals" sound more ominous than "food safeguarders" or "crop protectants," she points out. And many people removed from the production of crops fail to understand what pesticides are and how they are used.

As an example, Ulseth begins by writing: "This summer, millions of Americans will smother their children with mosquito repellent before sending them out to play on lawns treated with weed killers. Many parents will drive their kids to the lake, seatbelts unbuckled, and climb into boats that don't have child-sized life preservers. Secondary cigarette smoke will drift into some bedrooms where children lie sleeping.

"And many parents will worry about the amount of food their children are consuming which contain pesticide residues."

A recent report by the National Academy of Sciences says that children are more sensitive to pesticide residue than adults and the government must do a better job of protecting them, Ulseth says. But she points out that the agricultural community shares the concerns, particularly the crop producers, because the people who face the highest risks of exposure from pesticides are the applicators.

C. Everett Koop, former surgeon general of the United States, points out that to sell nothing except foods untreated by pesticides would not only leave storekeepers with rotting food, but would also fail to protect consumers against molds that in high concentrations can be lethal.

According to Ulseth, the public needs to understand the measurement of toxins and the difference between risk and hypothetical risk. In 1965 scientists were able to detect the concentration of toxins in food to a sensitivity of parts per billion. By 1975 it was parts per trillion and now scientists are closing in on the ability to test for parts per quadrillion.

"Converted to time," Ulseth says, "one part per billion is one second every 32 years. One part per trillion is one second every 32,000 years. At such sensitive measurement levels, the residue of anything can be detected. Even if all pesticides were banned, residues or naturally occurring chemicals found in many common foods but toxic in high doses would still be present. Indeed, detected residue does not translate into actual risk. It is the dose that counts."

She quotes Dr. Alice Ottoboni, advisor to the American Council of Science and Health and author of the book "The Dose Makes the Poison," who says that, "We survive because we do not take in 100 cups of coffee at one time, or 100 pounds of potatoes or 10 pounds of spinach or a fifth of liquor. All living organisms since the beginning of time have had to deal with the exposure to numerous noxious substances. No animal on earth could survive a day if it were not capable of handling small amounts of a wide variety of foreign chemicals. It is only when we overwhelm the natural defense mechanisms of our bodies by taking in too much at one time, or too much too often, that we get into trouble."

Except for lung cancer (attributed to smoking) and skin cancer (attributed to sun exposure), the rate of cancer has dropped over the past 20 years. U.S. pesticide use (by pounds of active ingredients) has been fairly stable since 1979, due to lower application rates for many newer pesticides and more efficient pesticide applications.

Awareness of potential poisons certainly is not to be discouraged. Neither is undue paranoia to be encouraged, such as happened in the well publicized cranberry and apple scares of a few years ago.

"...let's not allow pesticide terrorists to slander what already is the safest, most abundant food supply in the world," Ulseth writes. "We and our children must ~~not be~~ scared away from sound nutrition, in which fresh fruits, vegetables and grains are needed."

Diane Peterson Is In Elite Company... Our Congratulations

Washington elementary school teacher Diane Peterson finds herself in elite company as one of 12 remaining finalists for Minnesota Teacher of the Year. A list that began with a large number of selected faculty members from individual school districts has been reduced by a panel of judges to this final Honor Roll.

To be recognized locally is a distinct honor in itself and to be later named on a statewide basis to the Teachers of Excellence list is an added bit of distinction. To be further selected to the Honor Roll of 12 finalists for the top state honor is to be placed in very elite company.

We can recall some years ago taking Diane's picture when she arrived in Thief River Falls as a new faculty member. It has been to the good fortune of the school district and the students who have passed through her classes that she has chosen to remain on the faculty here.

Our congratulations to her for attaining this high honor in her profession and our best wishes for continued advancement when the 1993 Teacher of the Year is announced in Bloomington at a special luncheon October 10.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

I would like to respond to the letter by Key Teeters-Asp and how I feel regarding the no hat policy at Lincoln.

Key:

I haven't had to deal with the problem at the school on no hat or bandana allowed, but in my opinion, I don't think this is a group of people who are simply against hats. I mean, after all, look at Terry—surely people in TRF know he should wear one (no offense, Terry). I feel they are finally standing up and stressing that some respect should be shown. If these kids can't behave during the few hours in school, then either they dress right or stay home!

Have you seen some of these kids, Key? They scare me half to death and I don't scare easily. At Kmart when we see a group of them coming in the door it means trouble. These kids with half shaven heads, earrings and bandanas look like pirates. Who were the pirates? These kids known as head bangers are trouble, and sure there are others that maybe are trouble also, but what sense does this make?

A couple of years ago our store manager requested an employee to either take an earring out of her nose or leave the store. She chose to leave. Outlandish clothing and attire is not acceptable; it's offensive to some people and it should be. How you dress is a reflection of how you feel inside.

In the '60's we had a dress code at Lincoln. What happened to it? Not everyone can afford expensive clothing but we certainly can try to dress our kids half-way decent.

I have two jobs and still have trouble making ends meet, but when it comes to my two boys I spend a lot. Ask my husband—he's furious at Christmas time! Maybe not everyone feels like me, but I'll work 30 hours more to see that my son keeps hair on his head, no extra holes in his head and looks presentable in public. I'll pay the price for him.

My hat's off to you, Terry and company. In fact, how about bringing the dress code back?

Sincerely,
Holly Howe
Thief River Falls

To Whom It May Concern:

Notice is hereby given that the City Council of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, will meet at 7:30 p.m. on October 5, 1993, at the Heritage Community Center, 301 E. 4th Street, to pass upon the proposed assessment for the Minnesota Hwy. 32 Reconstruction and Utilities Improvements Project, Project No. 35091.00. The properties proposed to be assessed are outlined on Exhibit A.

The proposed assessment roll is on file for public inspection at the City Clerk's Office. The total amount of the proposed assessment is $375,000.00. Written or oral objections will be considered at the meeting. However, no appeal may be taken as to the amount of an assessment unless a signed, written objection is filed with the City Clerk prior to the hearing or presented to the presiding officer at the hearing. The Council may upon such notice consider any objection to the amount of a proposed individual assessment at an adjourned meeting upon such further notice to the affected property owners as it deems advisable.

If an assessment is contested or there is an adjourned hearing, the following procedure will be followed:

1. The City will present its case first by calling witnesses who may testify by narrative or by examination, and by the introduction of exhibits. After each witness has testified, the contesting party will be allowed to ask questions. This procedure will be repeated with each witness until neither side has further questions.

2. After the City has presented all its evidence, the objector may call witnesses or present such testimony as the objector desires. The same procedure for questioning of the City's witnesses will be followed with the objector's witnesses.

3. The objector may be represented by counsel.

4. Minnesota rules of evidence will not be strictly applied; however, they may be considered and argued to the Council as to the weight of items of evidence or testimony presented to the Council.

5. The entire proceedings will be tape recorded.

6. At the close of presentation of evidence, the objector may make a final presentation to the Council based on the evidence and the law. No new evidence may be presented at this point.

An owner may appeal an assessment to District Court pursuant to Minnesota Statutes Section 429.081 by serving notice of the appeal upon the Mayor or Clerk of the City within 30 days after the adoption of the assessment and filing such notice with the District Court within ten days after service upon the Mayor or Clerk. The City has not adopted any deferment ordinance or resolution.

NOTICE OF HEARING ON PROPOSED ASSESSMENT

To Whom It May Concern:

Notice is hereby given that the City Council of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, will meet at 7:30 p.m. on October 5, 1993, at the Heritage Community Center, 301 E. 4th Street, to pass upon the proposed assessment for the Minnesota Hwy. 32 Reconstruction and Utilities Improvements Project, Project No. 35091.00. The properties proposed to be assessed are outlined on Exhibit A.

The proposed assessment roll is on file for public inspection at the City Clerk's Office. The total amount of the proposed assessment is $375,000.00. Written or oral objections will be considered at the meeting. However, no appeal may be taken as to the amount of an assessment unless a signed, written objection is filed with the City Clerk prior to the hearing or presented to the presiding officer at the hearing. The Council may upon such notice consider any objection to the amount of a proposed individual assessment at an adjourned meeting upon such further notice to the affected property owners as it deems advisable.

If an assessment is contested or there is an adjourned hearing, the following procedure will be followed:

1. The City will present its case first by calling witnesses who may testify by narrative or by examination, and by the introduction of exhibits. After each witness has testified, the contesting party will be allowed to ask questions. This procedure will be repeated with each witness until neither side has further questions.

2. After the City has presented all its evidence, the objector may call witnesses or present such testimony as the objector desires. The same procedure for questioning of the City's witnesses will be followed with the objector's witnesses.

3. The objector may be represented by counsel.

4. Minnesota rules of evidence will not be strictly applied; however, they may be considered and argued to the Council as to the weight of items of evidence or testimony presented to the Council.

5. The entire proceedings will be tape recorded.

6. At the close of presentation of evidence, the objector may make a final presentation to the Council based on the evidence and the law. No new evidence may be presented at this point.

An owner may appeal an assessment to District Court pursuant to Minnesota Statutes Section 429.081 by serving notice of the appeal upon the Mayor or Clerk of the City within 30 days after the adoption of the assessment and filing such notice with the District Court within ten days after service upon the Mayor or Clerk. The City has not adopted any deferment ordinance or resolution.

Northwestern Minnesota farmers have had a real battle with the elements this crop year and have turned to modified equipment in an effort to get the grain in the bin. Dense small grain crops and generally poor drying conditions after heavy rainfall this summer have caused fields to remain extremely wet. Many farmers have retrofitted their combines with tracks to carry the machines over the soggy ground. Despite the additional cost and effort, getting stuck has been a common problem. This combine on the Morris Grosz farm southwest of Goodridge became mired on Wednesday of last week, its left track sinking deep into the mud. Merle Naeseth, expertly operating the large backhoe in the foreground, trenched about five feet deep on both sides of the machine and then pushed a freshly cut 25-foot oak log under the tracks from one side of the combine to the other. Using the combine's own power and alternately braking the two tracks as they gained traction on the log, Grosz was able to raise first one side of the unit and then the other as helpers shoved timbers beneath the tracks. The operation took until Saturday noon before the combine could be raised enough for the backhoe to assist in pulling it backward to more solid ground. Mr. and Mrs. Grosz told The Times that they are particularly grateful for the help and prayers of friends and neighbors and believe they are fortunate the combine could be freed without injury to helpers or damage to the equipment. In Bible reading one night while the combine was stuck they said they drew special meaning from Luke 18:1 which states: "Jesus spoke a parable that men ought always to pray and not lose heart." They said they were able to find out from an experienced farmer in the Greenbush area that the proper way to free a tracked combine from being stuck is to move it backward rather than forward. After adjusting the tracks and reattaching the header and ladder which had been removed, Grosz was able to resume harvesting later Saturday.

TRF United Way opens 1993 fund drive on Monday

Thief River Falls Chapter of the United Way began its 1993 fund-raising campaign Monday night. Volunteers from throughout the community received last minute instructions and encouragement from the local board at a Kick-off celebration at the Evergreen Eating Emporium.

United Way of Thief River Falls is an effort to eliminate many of the separate fund-raising efforts that would take place in the community without an organization like United Way. Last year, the group raised $104,250. A total of $100,000 went to 40 organizations. Over 30,000 people were served by United Way donations.

Much of the money raised in the fund drive stays in the community. Only 10 per cent is given to the United Way of America, the national organization. In return, United Way of America provides many fund-raising materials, videos, and other assistance.

Local Board Chairman Kent Fritze announced Monday night that the board had set a goal of $120,000 this year.

Local volunteers will begin contacting local businesses, organizations and employees in the community soon. The United Way hopes to receive $120,000 in donations and pledges before the fund-raising campaign culminates on October 11.

New organizations joining the list of 100 per cent award winners were: Hartz Foods, Inc., the Pennington County Motor Vehicle department, Minnesota Extension Office in Pennington County, and Northern Minnesota Utilities.

The local United Way chapter recognizes businesses and organizations that record 100 per cent participation. To receive a 100 per cent participation award, all employees must contribute, and the total must be over $100.

Businesses and organizations recognized Monday night include: Anderson, Poissant & Kays, Bjorkman's, Brady, Martz and Associates, City of Thief River Falls, departments of police, regional airport, building inspection, government buildings, sanitation, city clerk's office, and engineering; and Northwest Regional Library, the Eagles club, Hugo's, The Lantern, Northern Motors, Inc., Northern State bank, Northwest Beverage, Norwest Bank, Paint and Glass Interiors, Poppler's Furniture, Dr. John L. Seaverson, DDS, Sheldon's Used Auto Parts, Tunberg Motor Company, United Parcel Service, and Westside Motors.

Connie Scheuneman helps save a life

In-flight emergency on plane enroute to Minneapolis gives Thief River Falls R.N. new meaning for "a wing and a prayer"

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

What Connie Scheuneman really wanted out of a Northwest Airlines flight from Los Angeles to the Twin Cities early Monday morning, September 13, was a couple of hours of sleep. What she got was a nerve-wracking but uplifting experience that left her physically and mentally drained but spiritually fulfilled.

The former Connie Aaseby, wife of Dr. Allen F. Scheuneman, is a graduate of Lincoln high school and the first class of Registered Nurses to graduate from the combined LPN and RN program of the Thief River Falls Technical College and Northland Community College. She worked in the emergency room at what is now Northwest Medical Center soon after graduation and later in the intensive care unit. Her last active duty nursing duty was in Paynesville in 1988.

Very early Monday morning Connie and her mother, Florence Hillyer, boarded a Northwest Airlines plane in Los Angeles for what they expected to be a routine flight to Minneapolis. With only a couple of hours of sleep the night before, they were looking forward to napping on the plane.

"It was shortly after the captain had made his announcement that we were flying at 35,000 feet that a flight attendant came on the intercom and asked if there was a doctor or nurse aboard because there was a medical emergency. My mom told the flight attendant who had just served us breakfast and was standing nearby that I was an R.N.

"It seemed like I was pulled out of the seat and hurried to the front of the plane where a lady was having a real problem with shortness of breath. She was pale and a flight attendant was giving her oxygen."

> One flight attendant, who was keeping Mrs. Hillyer advised of her daughter's efforts from time to time, carried the news to her. "Your daughter has just ordered the captain to land."

Connie had seen the woman board the plane in a wheelchair. She was a large woman and it had taken three male airline employees to get her from the chair into her seat in the front of the coach passenger area. No other medical person had responded to the call for assistance.

"My first thought was that she might be suffering a heart attack," Connie said, "but she wasn't having any pain. I asked her if she had any medical problems and she said she was diabetic. I asked if she had taken any medication and she said she had taken 68 units of insulin (a very large dose) at 5 a.m. It was now about 7:30. I asked if she had eaten anything since taking the insulin and she said she hadn't. I knew then that she was having an insulin reaction."

Flight attendants were requested to immediately bring orange juice and the woman was urged to drink as much of it as she could. She refused milk, saying it would make her vomit. Muffins and crackers with creamed cheese were fed to her and she seemed to respond.

Very prone to airsickness herself, Connie wears elastic bracelets called Sea Bands when she flies. The cuffs have a plastic button on the inside which applies acupressure to a nerve on the inside of the lower arm. She has found them to prevent nausea for her and she took them off and put them on her patient. Her nausea also went away.

"All we had on the plane to work with were a blood pressure cuff, stethoscope, penlight flashlight and oxygen," Connie said. "The captain had a medical report form and I kept filling it out. Her blood pressure was at 140/80—which is within the normal range—and I charted blood pressure, pulse, respiration, lung sounds, heart sounds, neurological assessment, color and skin condition...."

During very brief periods when the oxygen mask was removed, Connie was even able to get a medical history (diabetes for 34 of her 58 years, heart problems and asthma) and a drug history.

"She had a duffel bag full of medications," Connie said, "but she had taken all of her medications for the day that morning."

The captain came back into the passenger area to see how things were going and Connie assured him that things had stabilized.

"It wasn't 10 minutes later that she turned sour on me," Connie said. "Her blood pressure went up to 200/100 in a three to five-minute span, her color turned gray, she complained of feeling really woozy and she became comatose. I was afraid she wasn't going to live the rest of the flight."

Feeling she had done all she could do, Connie turned things over to a higher power.

"I prayed over her," she said. "I prayed right out loud. I told God that I knew I had done all that I could do and I asked Him to take over. I said, 'Lord, you're a great and mighty God. Nothing is impossible with you. This woman needs her blood pressure lowered and her blood sugar increased. Cause her to be alert and oriented. Keep her alive until we get her to the hospital. Touch her with your healing hand, Lord, and I praise you and thank you for what you're going to do.'"

Connie said that she was aware that others on the plane, including her mother seated 18 rows back in the coach section, were joining in the prayer support.

In a short time the woman's breathing became better, her color improved, she became coherent and her blood pressure again dropped to 146/80.

Connie, who considers herself to be a religious person, has no doubt what happened. "It was a miracle," she said.

Throughout the ordeal, Connie was assisted by two flight attendants who ran errands and carried messages. At one point the captain sent a message to Connie: "Do you want to order me to land?" It was an impressive question, but Connie immediately answered that she did.

Connie Scheuneman, whose efforts on a recent commercial airline flight helped save the life of a diabetic woman having an insulin reaction, shows the Sea Bands which she wears to prevent becoming airsick. The elasticized bands have a plastic button which puts acupressure on a nerve in the lower arm, preventing nausea. Connie put the bands on her "patient" during the flight and it abated the woman's tendency to nausea.

Dear Readers,
Many mature people prefer to select their own funeral director in advance, and to prearrange details of their funeral service. This is both proper and feasible and the funeral expense found can be placed in trust with a local financial institution. We can supply further details on prearrangement.
Respectfully,
Belmont Funeral Home

Dear Readers,
Many mature people prefer to select their own funeral director in advance, and to prearrange details of their funeral service. This is both proper and feasible and the funeral expense found can be placed in trust with a local financial institution. We can supply further details on prearrangement.
Respectfully,
Belmont Funeral Home

Woodcrafters plan season's first meeting

Beginning its 1993-94 schedule of meetings, Northland Woodcrafters will gather Monday, September 27, at 7 p.m. at the Occupational Development Center on highway 32 south.

The organization is open to all persons interested in making things with wood and meets the last Monday of each month from September through June. It sponsors a display and sales booth at the Pennington County Fair and members build and donate toys and other items for distribution to underprivileged children during the Christmas season.

Last year the club also purchased and donated a number of video tapes on several areas of woodworking to the Thief River Falls public library. They are available for use by the public free of charge.

Presenting the program at the September meeting Monday night will be Jan Svendsgaard, demonstrating and discussing scroll saw use. Jan has become an active woodworker in the past couple of years and creates items for sale at a limited number of selected craft shows. Several brands of saws will be available for members and visitors to inspect and try.

Information will also be available on the Woodworking Show to be held in early October in St. Paul.

Membership in the club is $10 per year for individuals or $15 for families. Couples who are both interested in woodworking are especially invited to attend.

Persons with questions about the Northland Woodcrafters may contact any of the following board members: Neal Fox, Rod Heschke, Rick Adams, Orvel Stocks, Neil W. Peterson and Marvin Lundin.

Community Ed. offers before-school child care

Community Education in School District 564 has expanded its school age child care program this year to include a before-school program.

Responding to the needs of parents who start work before school begins, Community Education Director Jane Mattson and her Advisory Board expanded the Latch Key program to include a before-school program.

The program, held at Washington elementary school in the music room, offers a safe, warm and educational environment for children. The doors open at 6:45 a.m. The cost of the program is $2 per day plus the separate cost of a breakfast ticket. Breakfast is available to all participants beginning at 7:40 a.m. At 8 a.m., students needing to transfer to their assigned school will board school buses outside Washington elementary school.

The Community Education department has sponsored an after-school child care program for a number of years. Currently, there are over 75 students registered to participate in the program that provides a safe, supervised, educational, recreational, environment for students in grades kindergarten through grade 5. Parents can elect to have students bused from their elementary school to Washington elementary school to participate in the program. The after-school child care program is in session on school days from 3 to 6 p.m. The cost for the after-school program is $1.60 for the first child, $1.25 for the second child, and $1 for the third child in a family.

To register or to find out more about the before-school and after-school child care programs, contact the Community Education department at the District Service Center, 230 South LaBree Avenue, Thief River Falls.

IMPRESSIONS

Did you know that this week is the time for the autumnal equinox? This is the time, in the fall of the year, when the sun crosses the equator, making the length of the days and nights equal in all parts of the earth. Actually, for most of us, these days are as any other day. We don't even notice this phenomena of nature. We simply go about our daily routines as if nothing is different from any other day.

In actuality, things are truly different. At the time of the equinox, either spring or fall, you can balance an uncooked egg so that it stands upright. When I first was told this a few years ago, I didn't believe that such a feat was possible. So, I tried it. Sure enough, if I found a level spot on my kitchen counter, I could stand an egg upright. When we tried this a few years ago, the egg remained upright for several days. If you don't believe me, try the experiment in balance for yourself. Of course, you do have to find a level area in which to do this experiment that also does not have a lot of miscellaneous family traffic that will undoubtedly knock the egg over with one wag of the dog's tail.

But, the time of the equinox, eggs balanced or not, has caused me to consider the balance we all could probably use more effectively in our own lives. Balance in nature is simply part of nature. It is an integral part of nature. When the balance of nature becomes in a disarray, all of earth suffers. The same is true for us.

We need to find balance in our own lives. The things that comprise each of our lives are myriad. The things that comprise our lives are also unique to each of us. None of us can truly tell another what will or will not make for good balance in another's life. We would do better by looking at our own lives and determining where we tend to be unbalanced.

Life has many components. If yours is anything like mine, it has components of work and play and rest. It also most likely has a spiritual component and a basic need component. It is when any of these becomes overwhelming and life-consuming that an unhealthy unbalance begins to occur in our lives. When work becomes the very most important component in your life and you forget to rest or play, then work becomes your life and you will most likely find yourself not feeling too great. When play becomes all consuming, then the responsibility that work gives a life is lacking. When we forget to rest, both work and play become overwhelming. When all of our life is concentrated on the basics—food, clothing, and shelter—then life lacks fun.

Sometimes we concentrate so hard on doing all of the right things—we work and play and rest and spend time with our families and are good neighbors and good citizens—that we forget the spiritual component. When we become too busy to meditate and to pray and to concentrate on worship we make ourselves out of balance. We have neglected one of the components that make for balanced lives.

I know that I find myself forgetting that all of the components of my life need nurturing, not neglect. I tend to concentrate on work and forget to play. If you consider your life, you too will most likely find areas that need nurturing. Balance your life. The balance in our lives should be integral parts of our existence. Nature and her equinox demonstrate balance, less we forget.

RANDOM THOUGHTS

Sara Tyler
Lincoln High School

In the beginning of the school year, entering Lincoln is an experience I've forgotten over the summer. This year I decided to pay more attention to what I saw. Above the old wooden doors that lead into the building, a childishly painted sign shouts, "Welcome to Lincoln High." The satin wood is shiny and clear behind the giant swooping letters, and a small gold plaque displays the Key Club's emblem—a somewhat limiting vision to the entrance of the school.

The chilly interior is kept cool by creamy ice walls. Periwinkle blue is muted by stone gray in the flattened carpet that melts into octagonal corners. Black globs of mud tract tracks that criss-cross covering most of the once proud floor.

Grumbling trucks accelerate in the background and a sharp, clear "beep, beep, beep..." filters into the entrance as a phantom truck shifts to reverse. Metal clanging and shouts of workmen are the only proof that the promised parking lot will soon be finished. A sharp, high-pitched tinging noise ruptures any brief silence, only to be followed by more grumbles of the lazy trucks.

Three trophy cases surround the small room imprisoning their contents. Each case is identical in construction, each one's age shows in battered wood, but the trophies assert their individuality. One case's prisoners battle for precious space. Speech has won this battle, with biting words I suppose, and conquered two shelves for five outspoken trophies. Cross-country's sprinters almost touch hands as all fourteen search for a finish line. Suddenly, the school song bursts out of the band room and punctures the silence. The trophies seem to dazzle in the limelight of their Alma Mater.

Debate and drama have chosen a place of honor in the northernmost trophy case. A proudly earned 1933 debate trophy is chipped and tarnished now and has been shoved in back. The once triumphant Roman soldered on the block of wood is now only able to stare at the backs of newer awards. Many antique treasures are hidden behind the gaudier versions of today.

Baseball's triumphs stand alone. A battered player from 1968 holds his bat with the help of masking tape. He is forced forever to lift his arms to relive a moment. So many other players surround him. Almost a whole league has been devised. Newer trophies leave blank spaces where the team members should be staring out at all who passby. Were the players too ugly to have their pictures taken? In center stage, a single baseball is scarred by the team's dignified signatures.

Under each trophy case there is a perfectly putrid rust colored heater. These inactive decorations are etched with dust and other unknown crumbly, white substances. Every indent and grate holds its mass of clinging lumps of yesterday.

Two proud plaques caress the walls announcing the building's birth in 1939. The proud parents were the Federal Works Agency and the Public Works Administration. The godparents—school board and the doctoring contractors—are also given credit on these birth certificates.

The ceiling layers upward in sweeping circles that slowly get higher only to plunge down dropping a dismal single bulb in the center of the welcoming area. Encompassed in a beehive of doors the entrance shuts itself off from the school. New and old contradict as the stained wooden inner doors are glared at by the sleek black metal and glass that encase the circle of the lobby.

Police capture burglary suspect inside Swede's

Police in Thief River Falls arrested 25-year-old Thomas James Williams of Thief River Falls for burglary in the third degree after they caught him inside Swede's bar early Tuesday morning.

At 3:34 a.m. an alarm notified police of an intruder at Swede's bar, which is located on Second Street in Thief River Falls. Upon arrival, police observed a man behind the bar. The man then ran to the back of the bar. Police secured the area and discovered that an alley window was open and damaged. Eventually, police entered the building, identified themselves and asked the subject to come out. The man came out of the restroom with his hands up and was taken into custody. Williams allegedly admitted to taking $60 to $70 from the bar. He is in custody at the Law Enforcement Center in Thief River Falls.

Sportsboosters for the Nordics cheered on the crowd during the Newfolden Newfest parade Saturday. The annual event was held September 17-19 this year.

County board certifies tax levy increase

Pennington County Commissioners certified a 6.5 per cent increase in the gross tax levy Tuesday.

Tuesday, county commissioners spent hours going line by line trying to reduce the projected gross levy increase. When the meeting began Tuesday morning, the increase was estimated at 7.8 per cent, which had been reduced from a previous estimate of 9.7 per cent.

After going line by line for several hours, the board certified the tax levy at $3,531,862, or a 6.5 per cent increase over 1993, and decided to deal with an estimated budget deficit of $50,000 at a later date. The county was required by law to certify its levy by September 15. Working out the final details of a budget and trying to eliminate a budget deficit at this time of the year is not unusual. The budget, after all, is only a guide. Changes to the budget will be made throughout the year.

SPEAKING OF

Sherry LaCoursiere

. . . The Health Care Issue

I think President Clinton's health care proposal sounds pretty good. I want to know more about it, so I will be listening carefully Wednesday night when it is explained.

Heaven knows, we certainly need something done about the health care in this country.

Too many people have inadequate insurance or no insurance at all. Too many people are going without medical care because they cannot afford it. Too many children are not getting preventative medical care because their parents are not getting preventative medical care because their parents have no insurance, inadequate insurance, and/or cannot afford it. Too many older people are spending too much of their fixed incomes on prescription drugs and uncovered medical expenses so that they end up with nothing left to live on.

It is high time someone did something about the health care in this country.

Too many people are making too much profit at the common people's expense. Medical costs are outragious, insurance costs are unbelievable and the prices of prescription drugs edge higher every time they are refilled. Those on fixed incomes live in fear of illness or disability that would necessitate long-term nursing care or living in a nursing home. Health care providers are forced to pay salaries to hundreds of employees who spend their time filling out hundreds of different, useless, repetitive forms for hundreds of different companies and organizations in order to get paid for the care they give.

Only the rich or very poor have health benefits that actually cover preventative or day-to-day medical expenses. The rich have good insurance and the poor are covered by medical assistance. For the rest of us, deductible amounts have risen from $100 or less to amounts of $500 and $1,000, and still have 20/80 percent co-payments that must be paid. With figures like that, the ordinary people rarely see an insurance check unless they are faced with catastrophic illness.

It seems to me that health care has gone backward in this country. We have gone back to the days when doctors were seen only for major illnesses that could not be cured by time or home remedies.

Children are no longer taken to the doctor for minor illnesses, those that could be cured with a simple dose of antibiotic. Parents with poor or no health insurance are waiting until the child has a raging fever and/or painful earache or sore throat before visiting a doctor. This means that the problem takes longer to cure and could become a recurrent condition that would need treatment and care over many years.

Health care just plain costs too much for many Americans. Pregnant women are not getting the proper prenatal care because they cannot afford it. Many of them are having sickly babies that will end up costing the American people much more in the long run than the proper prenatal care for the mother would have cost. Babies and young children are not being properly immunized against childhood illnesses because it costs too much. If those controllable childhood illnesses return, this, too, will cost the American people much more than the proper childhood immunizations would have.

I seems to be a vicious circle. People who are on medical assistance from the government have health care provided for them. Those who try to get off of assistance and find jobs are either faced with no employer-provided insurance or else have such poor insurance provided for them that it does no good. At this rate, what incentive is there to find a job? Most of those people would be better off living off the government and our tax money.

Medicare for the elderly is not doing what it should, either. Each year the deductible amount of Medicare has gotten higher so that the people must pay more before Medicare kicks in.

Each year the price of particular types of health care required for senior citizens gets higher. Prescription drugs cost more, the cost of a regular visit to the doctor gets higher, the cost of eye exams and eye glasses goes higher, and dental costs raise. Nursing home costs begin at about $100 per day in this area, notwithstanding all of the other charges that are incurred when one is a patient in a nursing home. Is it any wonder we hear of senior citizens who each month are confronted with making the choice between buying medicine to keep from getting sick or buying nourishing food to keep themselves well?

No, something must be done about health care in this country and I, for one, am glad we are finally going to get moving on it. I'm going to listen to the President's proposal with an open mind and try to find good points in it rather than look for the bad.

Whether it is a good system yet or not, time will tell. I'm sure there will be much discussion on it. At least we are going forward rather than standing still on the issue of health care in this country. High time.

Scheuneman helps to save woman's life on air flight

"Right now?" the flight attendant asked.

"Yesterday!" Connie answered.

One flight attendant, who was keeping Mrs. Hillyer advised of her daughter's efforts from time to time, carried the news to her. "Your daughter has just ordered the captain to land."

But you don't set a jumbo jet down just anywhere. A short while later the captain came back to say he was sorry but he couldn't find a nearby landing strip and they would have to continue on to Minneapolis.

He was able to patch his communications into the Mayo Clinic and the advice was given to keep giving more orange juice.

"It wouldn't have made any difference if the brothers Mayo themselves were on the flight," Connie said. "Without any other supplies there was nothing else to do."

Three bottles of oxygen were used by the patient during the flight. Actually, three half-bottles were used. Regulations called for each bottle to be used only to the point where half the contents remained. The rest had to be saved, it was explained, "in case of an emergency."

"If this isn't an emergency, I don't want to be here when they have one," Connie thought.

At one point Connie gathered the flight attendants and crew in the front of the plane with an urgent question: What do we do if she "codes?"

"Four of us know CPR," one flight attendant volunteered.

"I told her five of us couldn't do it for two hours," Connie said.

As it turned out—miraculously—the question of what would have had to be done if the woman died did not have to be answered. An ambulance was summoned to be standing by when the plane landed.

"We just came right on in," Connie said. "There were planes pulled off the runway and lined up all over. Passengers were told to remain in their seats and that medical personnel would be coming on board. First class passenger area was cleared by having those passengers exit through emergency exits at the rear of the plane. The medical people came on the plane, put her on a stretcher and took her to the ambulance."

While Connie was engrossed in the care of her patient, she had almost forgotten that she was on an airplane. She had pulled the window shade to make it darker so she could check the eye movement of her patient with the small flashlight. Then it was time to make the descent to land.

"I opened the blind and all I could see was clouds. That was all that I needed about then. 'Nobody can see us and we can't see anybody else,' I thought. I had taken my Sea Bands back and was wearing them myself.

"'Can you sit here?' I asked the flight attendant about the seat next to me, but she said she had to be at her station for landing.

"'Then can I sit with you?' But she assured me I couldn't do that either. People in the row behind me said to hang in there—we'll make it. I was holding a garbage bag under (the patient's) chin and a distress bag under my own but we did make it without either of us vomiting."

A follow-up call by Connie to Fairview South Hospital where the patient was taken allowed her to learn that the woman had been placed on IVs in the intensive care unit and was recovering. When another call was made to her room Tuesday afternoon, she had been discharged.

"She was supposed to go on a connecting flight to Watertown, SD," Connie said, "and her daughter was to meet her there. The daughter had no phone, so she couldn't find out her mother was in the hospital in Minneapolis until she got to the airport in Watertown."

His wife's experience, and one of his own tending to a heart attack victim during a flight home from Israel a dozen years ago, has reinforced Dr. Al Scheuneman's opinion that commercial airliners should carry a small medical kit with items available only to trained medical personnel. Had a commonly used injectible product been available to Connie, she could have had the woman on the road to a much more rapid recovery and much less life-threatening condition.

Connie said she feels she had been in control of herself during the entire episode until she got off the plane. "That's when I started to shake and to cry," she admits.

Although she was something more than just any R.N. in that situation due to her experience and being married to a doctor—who also happens to be diabetic, Connie doesn't consider her actions to be life-saving.

"What I was able to do was ordinary," she said. "What I had was an extraordinary God to help me."

Lawful gaming permit at bar under scrutiny

Minnesota Lawful Gambling Control Board has taken under advisement a recommendation of an administrative law judge to suspend for 12 months the charitable gambling premises permit at the Rusty Nail in Thief River Falls, which is held by TRFAHA.

According to Joe Newton of the Attorney General's office, an administrative law judge heard the complaint and issued a recommendation to suspend the premises permit. On Monday, September 20, the Lawful Gambling Control Board reviewed the findings of fact, heard oral arguments from Kurt Marben, attorney for TRFAHA, and the Attorney General's office, and took under advisement the recommendation to suspend the premise permit for 12 months. According to the Attorney General's office the Lawful Gambling Control board is expected to issue an order Wednesday, September 22.

The complaint leading to the recommendation to suspend the premise permit arose from an investigation into illegal gaming (a tip board) at the bar. Newton said the findings of fact indicate that the alleged illegal gambling took place between January and February of 1993.

The Thief River Falls Area Hockey Association is licensed to operate charitable gambling at the premises. The loss of gambling revenue will likely impact families with children participating in local hockey programs, as TRFAHA has been subsidizing the local program.

Skating registration, skate exchange set

Annual registration and skate exchange day for the Thief River Falls Recreational Skating Association will take place Thursday, September 30, from 4:30 to 7 p.m. at the curling club building on the Pennington county fairgrounds.

Parents or skaters may bring skates or other figure skating equipment to the curling rink between 4:30 and 5 p.m. and have the articles marked and placed on tables for customers to purchase. It is not necessary to bring skates to sell if interested only in buying skates. The exchange is offered as a service to the public to assist parents in finding good used skates to buy and to find a market for skates which have been outgrown.

During the same evening the Recreational Skating Association board will be taking registrations for the upcoming skating clinic to be held October 18, 19, 20, 25, 26 and 27. Skaters will receive five lessons and then have a test session on the last night of the skating clinic.

This year the United States Figure Skating Association has not made it mandatory for all skaters to become members of USFSA in order to use its program. Annual USFSA dues are $4. Ila Anderson of the recreational skating group recommends that all basic test skaters become members even if it is not required.

This year the pre-school program will be divided into three parts instead of only two, Anderson said. Parents registering their pre-school child will read the requirements for each of the three levels and place their skaters accordingly.

Once again skaters who have passed the Basic 6 tests will be able to skate in the Junior Advanced part of the program. Junior Advanced classes during the clinic will be on October 21, 22, 28 and 29 from 4 until 6 p.m. During the season, Junior Advanced classes will meet on Tuesdays from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. and do get additional ice time when there is not a home hockey game that evening.

Skaters who want to be in the Junior Advanced class only will not have to pay the higher user fee. Those who want to join a precision line or skate during dance, patch and freestyle (DPFS) time will have to pay the higher user fee.

"Again, please check with your skater as to what level or badge he or she is working on before coming to the skate exchange so you will be able to register him or her for the proper class. If anyone is interested in helping out at the skate exchange please call me at 681-2056."

In desperation to harvest his crop which is not covered by insurance, Joe Jagol of rural Goodridge purchased this custom built tracked combine from a rice farmer in the Deer River area. Jagol said he had tried using a four-wheel drive unit with rice tires but it wouldn't go anywhere in his fields. He bought this unit about three weeks ago. It has all track hydrostatic drive and 48-inch wide wood cleats on each track. Jagol said the combine will "go through anything. If it's stopped, it's broke down." He said break-downs on the used machine have happened many times and he still has about five quarter sections of wheat to combine. Moisture content of the grain has run from just over 14 per cent on the best days to around 20 per cent on other days.

Peter and Pearl Thompson and LaVonne Johnson helped Danny Johnson celebrate his brithday last week. On Saturday they went to celebrate Danna Renstrom's and then to David Thompson's birthdays. They also called Steffanie and Scott Stewart at Bloomington who had a birthday the same day.

Last Monday afternoon surprise luncheon guests at J.R. Kleinwachter's to help Toni celebrate her birthday were Marcellene Grundhaus and Marie Kleinvachter of Thief River Falls; Toni Kasprowicz of Argyle, Elphie Adlis, and Blanche Goethe of Goodridge.

Tracy, Kim and four-year-old Kevin Kraft of Minot and Linda Adlis of Argyle visited Elphie Adlis over the Labor Day weekend. On Sunday they went to Warroad to visit Mike and Betty Johnson and picked a lot of chokecherries to make jelly for this winter.

Frank and Judy Kleinvachter visited at June Kasprowicz's home on Sunday afternon. Later they took a drive across country from Warroad to Wannaska to see how the harvest was coming but most of the fields had deep tracks with water standing in them. Harvest is not good this year.

On Tuesday afternoon Morris Anderson stopped in Stephen to visit Ida Blazo.

Fr. Bob Shriner of Middle River joined Ben Kleinwachter, Mark, Brian and Sara for Tuesday dinner at J.R. and Toni Kleinwachter's.

Weather Report

"It was cold the other morning and a reporter found Fred Eikhof sitting on a beer keg in front of his saloon sunning himself and singing in an undertone, 'the melancholy days have come, the saddest of the year. It's a little too warm for whiskey and a little too cold for beer.'"

LETTERS

To The Editor:

Last week there was a letter written by Holly Howe that I would like to respond to.

First, I feel that it was inappropriate to refer to people who wear bandanas on their heads as "trouble." Second, I feel that you do not have the right to judge someone just because their attire differs from yours. Then you proceeded to say that when you see people coming in bandanas you feel scared. Why should you feel threatened by a cloth on someone's head?

Your attitude is very close-minded and I would hate to think that your narrow point of view may be shared by others in the community. To pre-judge someone on the basis of what they look like is prejudice. Name-calling and stereotyping people who try to make a point is pathetic and should not be tolerated.

As I was writing this letter I was wearing a bandana on my head. Does that make me a menace to society? I think not.

Sincerely,
Tina Hagman

In desperation to harvest his crop which is not covered by insurance, Joe Jagol of rural Goodridge purchased this custom built tracked combine from a rice farmer in the Deer River area. Jagol said he had tried using a four-wheel drive unit with rice tires but it wouldn't go anywhere in his fields. He bought this unit about three weeks ago. It has all track hydrostatic drive and 48-inch wide wood cleats on each track. Jagol said the combine will "go through anything. If it's stopped, it's broke down." He said break-downs on the used machine have happened many times and he still has about five quarter sections of wheat to combine. Moisture content of the grain has run from just over 14 per cent on the best days to around 20 per cent on other days.

Peter and Pearl Thompson and LaVonne Johnson helped Danny Johnson celebrate his brithday last week. On Saturday they went to celebrate Danna Renstrom's and then to David Thompson's birthdays. They also called Steffanie and Scott Stewart at Bloomington who had a birthday the same day.

Last Monday afternoon surprise luncheon guests at J.R. Kleinwachter's to help Toni celebrate her birthday were Marcellene Grundhaus and Marie Kleinvachter of Thief River Falls, Toni Kasprowicz of Argyle, Elphie Adlis, and Blanche Goethe of Goodridge.

Tracy, Kim and four-year-old Kevin Kraft of Minot and Linda Adlis of Argyle visited Elphie Adlis over the Labor Day weekend. On Sunday they went to Warroad to visit Mike and Betty Johnson and picked a lot of chokecherries to make jelly for this winter.

Frank and Judy Kleinvachter visited at June Kasprowicz's home on Sunday afternoon. Later they took a drive across country from Warroad to Wannaska to see how the harvest was coming but most of the fields had deep tracks with water standing in them. Harvest is not good this year.

On Tuesday afternoon Morris Anderson stopped in Stephen to visit Ida Blaze.

Fr. Bob Shriner of Middle River joined Ben Kleinwachter, Mark, Brian and Sara for Tuesday dinner at J.R. and Toni Kleinwachter's.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

Size, strength wins out

■ TRF ground game beats Wadena-Deer Creek

Reality set in after back-to-back season-opening losses to Detroit Lakes 41-6 and Alexandria 39-6. Lacking the speed and finesse to beat people to the outside, Thief River Falls went to a more physical straight-ahead style Friday and wound up with a 41-20 Section 8A high school football win over previously unbeaten Wadena-Deer Creek in front of an appreciate crowd at Prowler Field.

Rarely venturing further outside than the two tackles, the Prowlers battered the out-manned Wolverines inside, netting 343 yards on 54 rushing attempts.

Brian Howe, a bruising 5-10, 195-pound junior fullback, led the charge with a 27-carry, 205-yard rushing night – the best night for a Thief River Falls runningback since Paul Brandt carried 28 times for 202 yards against Detroit Lakes back in 1980.

In all, 10 different Thief River Falls ball carriers got into the act, with 5-9, 180-pound junior Tony Halsa turning in a strong first-start effort by picking up 62 hard-running yards on just 9 carries and 5-11, 190-pound junior Lee Lund getting 57 yards on only 5 attempts. Howe scored twice, while Halsa, Lund, Steve Burslie, and Jeff Lundgren all had single touchdowns on the ground.

All that with a game plan that featured just four different running plays, according to Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm.

"First two weeks we were trying to do things we weren't capable of doing," acknowledged Mumm. "With our (lack of) speed, the wing-T, pulling guards and traps just weren't working. It was a consensus of the players and coaches to go right at people. If we can't beat people with our speed, then we'll beat them with our size and strength. Our offensive line did a great job, and all of our backs ran well."

Thief River Falls' ground game won out against a Wadena-Deer Creek passing attack that produced a whopping 333 yards and all three Wolverines touchdowns.

Wadena-Deer Creek quarterback Ryan Carlson was 12-for-27 for 309 yards. Jeremy Erickson caught four passes for 190 yards and the former quarterback was 1-for-2 passing for another 24 yards. The Wolverines also had touchdown passes of 51 and 73 yards called back because of penalties. It was the most passing yards the Prowlers have given up since Jeff Hanson of Detroit Lakes threw for 237 yards in a 1976 match-up.

"He (Carlson) is a fine high school quarterback," noted Mumm. "He's as good as anybody we've seen. We put a lot of pressure on him and he still stood in there and threw the ball. They scare you offensively. They're not hurting for skill people. If we could combine our size and their skill people, we could have one heckuva football team."

All of the Wolverines' yards came in the air. Their running game lost 15 yards, which including six quarterback sacks.

Bad luck stalked the Wolverines from the start. A holding penalty wiped out a 51-yard Carlson touchdown pass to Eric Lukkari on their first possession, and their second offensive series ended with Thief River Falls defensive end Max Radniecki blocking a punt that set the Prowlers up at the Wadena-Deer Creek 37.

They scored in four plays as Burslie bounced off tacklers and got outside to reach the end zone from the 15 with 2:53 remaining in the first quarter.

It took Wadena-Deer Creek just three plays to tie it, however, as Carlson put a perfectly-thrown pass into the hands of Erickson down the left sidelines that turned into an 81-yard touchdown.

The ensuing Thief River Falls possession made it 14-6 – a 10-play, 62-yard drive that featured 7 carries for 52 yards by Howe, including a 1-yard dive for the touchdown. Eric Bjorgaard, who stepped in for injured starting quarterback Jeff Twomey, used an option keeper to tack on the two-point conversion with 10:50 left in the first half.

Wadena-Deer Creek pulled within 14-12 when Carlson covered 63 yards on four pass completions – the last one a 21-yards to a wide-open Lukkari down the right side with 4:50 showing.

But Thief River Falls ended the half with a 20-12 spread by going 59 yards in nine plays. Howe scored from three yards out with 1:43 left.

The Prowlers took firm control by marching 66 yards in 12 plays with the second half kickoff to go up 28-12 on a 2-yard dive by Halsa and a Twomey conversion pass to Burslie.

Wadena-Deer Creek failed to convert a fourth down pass at midfield, and then watched the spread balloon to 35-12 as Lundgren slipped through the middle on a 7-yard run, then reached the end zone from the one on the next snap – the final play of the third quarter.

A Jason Homme fumble recovery at the Thief River Falls 41 was promptly converted into a three-play scoring drive as Howe went 31 yards on two carries and Lund went off the right side for a 27-yard touchdown run with 8:56 remaining.

The Wolverines' quick-strike ability surfaced again just two plays later when Carlson hooked up with Erickson on a 59-yard touchdown pass. A.J. VanBruggen's conversion run closed out the scoring with 7:37 to go.

Thief River Falls hosts Staples Area Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the second part of a three-week homestand that ends with an Oct. 1 homecoming game against Park Rapids Area.

Northland runningback Paul Mason used a stiff-arm in an attempt to hold off Hibbing defending Tony Valentini during Saturday's community college football game in Thief River Falls. Mason gained 81 yards on 18 carries and the Pioneers opened their 1993 Minnesota Community College Conference schedule with a 34-12 win over the Cardinals.

Northland wins MCCC football opener 34-12...

Pioneers handle Hibbing

Out-manned both in numbers and ability, Hibbing fell victim to a punishing Northland ground game and blitzing defense Saturday as the Pioneers opened their 1993 Minnesota Community College Conference football schedule with a 34-12 win over the Cardinals at Prowler Field.

Northland's 199 rushing yards wasn't an overly impressive statistic, but it was a considerable improvement over the 14 yards they netted in a season-opening 21-0 nonconference loss at Fergus Falls the previous week. And the fact they ran the ball 73 times showed their dominance up front.

"Our offensive line picked it up," pointed out Northland coach Gene Klinke. "They're starting to come together as a group. It was definitely a confidence-builder for them."

Sharing the spotlight was the Northland defense. The Pioneers held the Cardinals to a minus-three yards on the ground and gave up only 149 yards overall.

"Our defense is playing very well," mentioned Klinke. "They gave us the ball in good field position."

It was a challenge for Hibbing to be competitive. Injuries reduced the Cardinals' roster to 23 players, and a number of those needed attention from trainers after taking hard hits during the game.

"You have to gave credit to Hibbing," said Klinke. "They were in a tough position with a small team. They had to use kids both ways and it was a warm day in the sun."

Sheldon Hinton, a 6-2, 250-pound sophomore runningback from Edmonton, Alberta, scored three times and finished with 136 yards on 22 carries to lead the Northland attack. Paul Mason, a 5-10, 205-pound second-year player from Jacksonville, FL, added 81 yards on 18 carries.

It started with a first-possession touchdown for the Pioneers as Josh Donner broke off runs of 11 and 15 yards on a 12-play, 66-yard drive that ended with a 1-yard dive by Hinton with 6:59 elapsed.

A Hibbing goal line stand stopped Northland inside the Cardinals' 1-yard line late in the first half to preserve the 7-0 spread, but quarterback Aaron Clusiau was hurt on a first down snap and his replacement, Tony Valentini, mishandled the center snap on his first play – a fumble that was recovered by Darrin Fish at the Hibbing 2.

Hinton promptly stepped into the end zone for a 14-0 game with 2:18 left.

A 14-play, 68-yard Northland drive ate up the middle of the third quarter and produced a 21-0 gap as Jason Svir went to Mason for a 25-yard pass play and Hinton broke through the right side on a 38-yard run that eventually led to a 1-yard touchdown by Svir with 3:49 showing.

Thanks to a pass interference call at the goal line, Hibbing finally got on the board at the start of the fourth quarter as Clusiau hit Steve Smuk on the right side for an 8-yard touchdown pass.

Northland answered with a 9-play, 65-yard touchdown drive that made it 27-6 when Hinton powered through the middle from 15 yards out with 10 minutes left in the game.

The sudden scoring parade continued when Clusiau found Tom Komppa in the corner of the end zone with a 4-yard pass for a 27-12 game with 9:26 to play, only to have Northland come right back with a 10-play, 44-yard scoring drive after an unsuccessful on-side kick. Back-up quarterback Greg Lien reached the end zone on a 6-yard run up the middle for the final touchdown with 4:15 remaining.

Clusiau was 13-for-32 passing for 152 yards. Smuk (60 yards), Komppa (47) and Brandon Nash (35) caught four passes each.

Svir was a near-perfect 6-for-7 in a limited Northland passing game for 56 yards.

But was far from a perfect outing for the Pioneers, who were tagged with 15 penalties for 162 yards and fumbled seven times, losing four of them.

"Obviously we're happy with the win," said Klinke, "but we've got to smooth out some of the rough edges. We've got to eliminate some of the penalties."

Northland will be at Mesabi Saturday for a 1:30 p.m. MCCC game.

Wolverines end losing streak...

MCC volleyball title stays in Newfolden

The host Nordics won a title and Grygla/Goodridge won a match Saturday during the Marshall County Central Invitational high school volleyball tournament.

Three straight 2-0 wins over Stephen, Warren-Alvarado and Argyle produced the title for Marshall County Central, and stretched the Nordics' season-opening winning streak to seven matches.

It solid day of volleyball for the Nordics, who placed Sara Lokstad, Jill Fosholm and Tricia Pederson on the all-tournament team. "Those three, played well, and so did Shanon Magner," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Mark Jorgenson. "A lot of kids got a chance to play."

Jorgenson says the Nordics' win streak faces a major test this week with a challenging schedule that includes matches against Roseau, Warroad and Lake of the Woods.

"We'll find out how we stack up against some really good teams," noted Jorgenson.

Grygla/Goodridge lost two of three tournament starts, but a come-from-behind 1-15, 15-11, 15-10 quarterfinal victory Kittson County North finally put an end to a prolonged losing streak that was fast-approaching two years.

It was a short-lived celebration for the Wolverines, who came into the tournament 0-4, but they didn't go down without a fight in losing a 15-13, 15-13 semifinal contest to Argyle and a 15-10, 15-10 third place match to Warren-Alvarado.

"We had a good day," said Grygla/Goodridge coach Tim Mostrom. "The girls were very satisfied with their performance. We hope this is a turnaround in the making."

The Wolverines' Shauna Thomas earned all-tournament recognition, and Mostrom said Melissa Bernstein came off the bench to play some good volleyball.

Grygla/Goodridge, after playing a Tuesday match at Tri-County, meets Roseau Thursday in Goodridge.

Agassiz Refuge roads opened to public Saturday

In observation of National Hunting and Fishing Day Saturday, Sept. 25, Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge roads will be open to public travel.

The office and gated refuge roads will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Only gravel roads, except the grass road-on-top-of-the-west-dike-of-Farmes Pool, will be open to public travel. Since the completion of the Farmes Pool project in 1991 changes in and around the old Elm Lake basin can be observed. If rain falls on Friday or Saturday, some roads may need to be closed.

Natural events occurring at this time of year at the refuge include duck, goose, hawk, shorebird and bald eagle migration, moose breeding season, beginning of deer breeding season, frog, toad and salamander movement, and maybe peak fall coloration.

The refuge is closed to all hunting this time of the year. Fireams will be required to be placed in the trunk of cars or cased and in pickup boxes. Complying with this requirement will insure special future events at the refuge.

For additional information contact Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge, Post Office Box 74, Middle River, MN 56737, or telephone 449-4115.

Nordics lose to KCN 21-14...

Mistakes cost MCC

Marshall County Central played well enough on defense to win, but couldn't match that effort on offense, and wound up losing a 21-14 Top of the State Conference Nine-Man high school football game to Kittson County North Friday at Newfolden.

The setback put the Nordics at 0-3 for the year. And their next assignment is a 7 p.m. game at Stephen Friday, where the defending state champion Tigers will be celebrating homecoming.

Marshall County Central had three first quarter turnovers and then handed Kittson County North its first touchdown when a high second quarter punt snap was recovered by the Cougars in the Nordics' end zone.

"Our defense played really, really well," said Marshall County Central coach Kent Warne, "but offensively we were never in it. We made a lot of stupid mistakes."

Defensive end Scott Zak led the Nordics with nine unassisted tackles, while linebacker Jake Rantanen had 8 tackles and 13 assists.

The Nordics did wind up with 250 yards worth of offense, but managed only two touchdowns – Rantanen passes of 6 and 7 yards to Brandon Borg and Zak, respectively. Rantanen also found Lee Kuck for a two-point conversion to make it a seven-point game with 4 1/2 minutes left, but couldn't mount another scoring threat.

Rantanen was 13-for-23 in the air for 105 yards and rushed 19 times for 90 yards. Zak caught four passes for 25 yards; Aaron Skadsem added 32 yards on 8 rushing attempts.

Mustangs drop 12-6 game

■ Red Lake County Central falls to Waubun

Waubun broke a 6-6 tie on a 1-yard touchdown by Jon Syverson with 8 minutes left in the game Friday to edge Red Lake County Central 12-6 in Valley Plains Conference high school football at Oklee.

A 61-yard Syverson pass to Mike Teiken set up the game-winning score.

Waubun remained unbeaten, while Red Lake County Central fell to 1-2 – both losses by a one-touchdown margin in the Mustangs' first year of Class C football after moving up from the Nine-Man ranks.

"It's good to know we can play with these teams, but it's a little disheartening to lose close games like that, too," noted Red Lake County Central coach Gary Brantl.

And the task doesn't get any easier this Friday with a 7:30 p.m. road game against unbeaten Hawley.

Waubun capitalized on a Red Lake County Central fumble at the Mustangs' 8-yard line to snap a scoreless tie on a 3-yard Ray Walker run with five minutes left in the first half.

A 9-yard Shannon Willett touchdown run tied it 6-6 in the third quarter.

"We didn't run the ball very well in the first half, but we did get some yards in the second half," explained Brantl, whose team finished with 121 yards on 27 running plays. Willett led the Mustangs with 71 yards on 11 carries, while Darrin Hofstad netted 26 yards on 5 carries and Adam Lundeen had 25 yards on 8 attempts.

Red Lake County Central starting quarterback Scott Lorenson was shaken up in the first half after going 1-for-4 in the air for 9 yards. Brad Mossestad took over the quarterbacking duties in the second half and hit 3 of 5 passes for 31 yards. "Brad did a nice job," noted Brantl.

Defensively, Chad Pahlen had 12 first-hit tackles to lead the Mustangs, while Ryan Salberg had 8, along with a fumble recovery, with Lundeen and Hofstad both in on 7 tackles.

INSURANCE AUDITING ANSWERS

Q. Why is an audit necessary?
A. To calculate the exact amount of premium that you must be charged. This is perhaps the fairest way to arrive at a premium charge. You are charged according to the amount of exposure you have. A smaller business doesn't end up with the same size premium as a large one.

Q. If overtime is not summarized, will I still get credit?
A. Overtime records must show overtime pay separately by employee or in summary by classification, or it will not be deducted.

Q. Why are certificates of insurance required for subcontractors?
A. It is in your best interest to request a certificate from a subcontractor at the time the work is performed, rather than at the time of audit. You will be charged for those subcontractors not providing certificates as though they were your employees.

NORTHERN STATE AGENCY is available to answer your auditing questions as well as other insurance concerns. Our office is located in the Northern State Bank building. Office hours are 8:30-4:30 Mon.-Fri.; 8:30-6:00 Thurs.

Northland Community College officials recently announced that Dan Hoffard of Thief River Falls (left) earned a Minnesota Community College Conference Academic Athlete Award for being named to the MCCC all-Northwest Division team while maintaining a grade point average of 3.0 or better during the 1992-93 basketball season. Northland men's basketball coach Mark Dannhoff presented the plaque to Hoffard, who is majoring in nursing at Northwest Technical College-Thief River Falls.

Roseau, Middle River offer hunter warm-up

Two northern Minnesota communities are offering a Goose Hunters Warm-up this fall—practical hunting clinics to help waterfowl hunters sharpen their skills and improve their performance.

First warm-up is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 25, from 10 a.m., to 2 p.m. at the Northland Gun Club shooting range, located ten miles north of Roseau on Highway 310.

Second Warm-up will take place in Middle River Saturday, October 2 from 3 to 7 p.m. with events in downtown Middle River and in open fields on the edge of town.

October 2 opening of the Minnesota waterfowl hunting season this year coincides with the 19th annual Middle River Goose Festival. The festival itself runs all weekend—offering a variety of food, entertainment, games, sidewalk sales, and other events—sponsored by the Middle River Community Club.

Hunter warm-ups are conducted by local volunteers and staff from the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR). Warm-up components include a shotgun patterning range and a waterfowl range-estimating demonstration. The Middle River event will also include demonstrations of decoy use and goose calling.

At the shotgun patterning range, participants will be able to testfire, or pattern, their own guns on paper targets—comparing several different steel-shoot loads—to find out which load works best in their gun. Targets will be donated by Blandin Paper Co. and a variety of shot shells will be donated by Federal Cartridge Corp. of Anoka. Hunters are also welcome to bring their own favorite loads to test.

Range-estimating demonstration features several life-size goose decoys suspended from weather balloons—allowing participants to judge the proper distance for a successful shot. The course takes about 20 minutes to complete.

At Middle River, warm-up participants will be eligible for a free prize drawing. First prize will be a new shotgun donated by the Grygla chapter of Ducks Unlimited.

At the Roseau event, in addition to the goose hunter warm-up activities, the Northland Gun Club is sponsoring a chicken shoot where hunters will have the opportunity to shoot clay targets to win a prize. Entry fee for the contest will be two dollars per hunter, per round. An effort will be made to group shooters by skill level to insure an equal opportunity to win.

For youth ten-years-old and older, and first-time shooters, the Roseau County 4-H Shooting Sports leaders will be on hand to instruct participants in gun safety and shotgun shooting. All youth and first-time shooters will be given the opportunity to shoot at five clay targets free of charge. Participants are encouraged to bring their own shotguns, but a few guns will be available for use.

All guns brought to these events must be cased or handled with the breech open when not shooting.

Sharptail numbers down

It wasn't too long ago that the sharp-tailed grouse was the third most common bird in Minnesota hunters' game bags. As recently as the 1970s, hunters searching for this speckled relative of the prairie chicken filled motels in Thief River Falls, McGregor and Warroad on the eve of the hunting opener.

Today, you'd be lucky to meet a hunter who even sees a sharptail, much less fires at one.

Decline of sharp-tailed grouse in Minnesota is no mystery. Its brushland habitat – a patchwork of grasslands or peatlands scattered with bushes, stunted trees, or tree groves, is being squeezed out of existence by agriculture, tree planting, and the trees that naturally take over open spaces when fires are suppressed.

Though habitat loss has hurt sharptails the most, hunting can take a toll on scattered, isolated populations. As a result, the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has recently closed the season in parts of the state for 1993. The disappearance of sharptails has been most drastic in the past decade. From 1980 to 1992, their numbers dropped 53 per cent in the northwest and 70 per cent in the east-central range.

"During the last 10 years, the sharptail has probably had the sharpest decline in any Minnesota bird in recent history. It's catastrophic," said Bill Berg, a Minnesota DNR wildlife biologist in Grand Rapids. Berg, other wildlife managers, and conservationists fear that without immediate action to restore brushlands, sharptails and other species dependent on open lands will continue to decline.

According to Berg, the loss of brushlands has come about for several reasons:

- Recent improvements in drainage technology have made it easier to turn wet-meadow brushlands into crop fields.
- Planting of conifers on brushlands that began in the 1930s as part of federal public works programs continues to this day, encouraged and subsidized by state and federal forest and agriculture managers.
- State wildlife managers have little funding to manage brushlands, which includes controlled burning and shearing to keep back trees that take over the open areas.

Dave Dickey is a DNR area wildlife manager at Aitkin, in the heart of the sharptail's east-central range. "We're at a crossroads," Dickey said. "Do we maintain these unique areas as open brushland ecosystems, or just let them revert back to the woods?"

ACTIVITIES

Leaf Rubbings

The leaves are so beautiful this time of the year. Many children are collecting them. Leaf rubbings seem a natural activity at this time.

You will need leaves, paper and crayons. Place the leaf on a hard surface and cover it with a sheet of paper. Hold the paper and leaf firmly and "rub" or color the top of the paper. If the child is younger, it may help to tape the leaf to the table, so it will not move when doing the rubbings.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

The Thief River Falls public library invites you to browse through their new selection of children's books including the following:

Berenstain, Stan & Jan. Berenstain Bears and the Big Road Race. Follow the excitement of the big race to see if Little Red, the slowest car, can keep up the pace and actually win the race.

Berenstain, Stan & Jan. Berenstain Bears and the Bad Dream. Find out how interesting it can be to think about what you dream and why.

PARENTING TIPS

Music and Children

You can enrich your child's life by exposing him/her to music. Even if you are not musical yourself you can help your child to experience the beauty of sound and the freedom of movement through clapping, singing, chanting and dancing. Singing can turn a daily chore into a game. The task of washing up is not so tedious when accompanied by singing "This is the way we wash our face" to the tune of "Here we go 'round the mulberry bush." Make up words to fit any activity your child is involved in. Soon he/she will change the words to fit his/her situation or just to be silly.

Not only is music fun but it can benefit your child in many ways, such as:

* enhancing language development,
* promoting reading readiness,
* soothing a troubled or tired child,
* increasing attention span...
...and more!

For a unique musical experience take your child to the Teddy Bear Band concert, Tuesday, September 28 at 4 p.m. at the Hartz park. this concert is free and will be held in the armory in case of bad weather. Bring your teddy bears and blankets to this "beary" special event. Call 681-8670 for more information. The concert is sponsored by ECFE, Head Start, the Pennington County Child Abuse Prevention council and the Children's Trust Fund.

SOMETHING TO SING ABOUT

Sing about whatever you are doing. Make up songs and tunes, the sillier the better. Your child will love it!

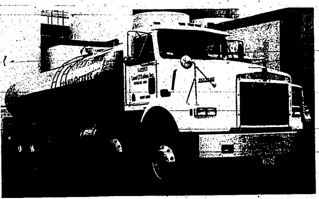
Swedish musicians to perform in area

The Agassiz Swedish Heritage society will present performances by Leif Alpsjo and Bo Larsson, musicians of nyckelharpa and fiddle.

Leif Alpsjo is a musician and teacher of traditional folk music in the province of Uppland, Sweden, and is best known for his popular courses in the playing of the nyckelharpa, which is considered the national instrument of Sweden. The nyckelharpa is often called the key fiddle. Alpsjo is the author of the only instruction book for the playing of the nyckelharpa.

Bo Larsson is one of the leading fiddlers in his home province of Uppland and in Sweden. He is the nephew of one of Sweden's most talented fiddlers, Viksta Lasse. At age 28, Larsson was endowed with the title, "Riksspelman-Fiddler of the Kingdom."

The folk music duo is on tour of the United States and will perform in Hallock on Wed., Sept. 29, at 7:30 p.m. at city hall. Refreshments will follow the performance. On Thursday, Sept. 30, co-sponsored by the University of Minnesota, the pair will perform at an international dinner at Brown dining hall, Crookston at 6:30 p.m. Reservations are necessary and may be obtained by contacting Dr. George French, 217 S. Ash St., Crookston, MN 56716, telephone 218-281-2016. Alpsjo and Larsson will perform at the Cavalier, ND, interpretive center at 7:30 p.m. on October 1, sponsored by the Icelandic state park.



Bridgeman's (Land O'Lakes) began operating this unique six-axle truck in August. It is a 94 Kenworth made to specifications in Pennsylvania. There are only two in operation. This one is stationed in Roseau and driven by Gary Dvergsten of Roseau. The other is stationed in South Dakota. Dvergsten agrees that this truck usually attracts attention wherever it goes. It looks unusual because the tires in the front and just behind the cab can turn. The push axles and tag axles (sets of tires located just behind the cab set and at the rear) can be lifted by air. The tank, which was made in Minnesota, is capable of carrying 5,500 gallons of milk. The pump works off a power take off and the hose is three-inches in diameter instead of two inches. It is capable of pumping 1,500 pounds per minute. The whole rig weighs 30,000 pounds empty and is operated by a 330 L-10 Cummins. The entire rig is 40-feet long and has 16 tires. Dvergsten said turning has taken a lot of getting used to. It is being used to pick up milk on area farms. Dvergsten said it was made to save time and it does.

Teddy Bear band to entertain children Sept. 28

Children from toddler age through early grade school are invited to bring their parents and their teddy bears to the Teddy Bear Band concert Tuesday, September 28, at 4 p.m. in Hartz Park (behind the National Guard armory) in Thief River Falls.

In case of bad weather the concert will be moved inside the armory. Persons attending are invited to bring blankets and/or lawn chairs and a picnic lunch if the weather is suitable for an outdoor concert.

This family concert is provided free of charge due to funding from the Early Childhood Family Education program, Head Start, Pennington County Child Abuse Prevention Council and the Children's Trust Fund.

Teddy Bear Band is considered to be Minnesota's most popular children's music group. It got its start seven years ago in the ECFE program of the Bloomington-Richfield public schools. The first performance was a benefit for the ECFE parent advisory council and the band members included a program instructor and three fathers who participated in ECFE classes.

The group now consists of Don Paulson, Richard Erickson, Kurt Barkdull, Ron Gustafson and Rob Arthur. In most performance situations three members participate. All but Gustafson are professional musicians who also perform in other bands. Gustafson is community education coordinator for the St. Paul ECFE and takes part in about a third of the shows.

Children are always encouraged to "bring a bear" to the group's concerts.

In the seven years since its first concert the Teddy Bear Band has won numerous awards and parent polls as the best in its field, averaging 300 performances a year across Minnesota and throughout surrounding states.

The group has produced two concert videos and four cassette tapes. "You're In The Show" is one of six cassettes selected by Scholastic's Early Childhood Division for its national catalog.

Considered the most important aspect of any of the Teddy Bear Band performances is encouragement of children to participate and enjoy and appreciate themselves as valuable and capable people.

Correction:

An accident report in the last edition of The Times listed the order of the accident backwards. According to the report, a car driven by Laura Machen, Thief River Falls, was stopped in traffic waiting for a train when her car was struck from behind by another vehicle. The Times regrets the error.

Area judges commended for addressing violence

Judges in northwestern Minnesota have been commended by A. M. (Sandy) Keith, Chief Justice of the Minnesota Supreme Court, for their initiative in coordinating community resources to prevent and reduce domestic violence.

Justice Keith said the state's trial courts have named domestic violence their top priority and he recognized the leadership of Judge Russell A. Anderson, chief judge of the Ninth Judicial District, which is made up of Minnesota's 17 northwestern counties. Judge Anderson also is the vice chair of the Conference of Chief Judges, the trial court's administrative council.

Judge Anderson established the state's first district-wide domestic Violence Coordinating Council to bring together the appropriate representatives from law enforcement, social services, prosecuting attorneys and public defenders as well as battered women's agencies, former batterers and victims. The Ninth District's 17-county council has been meeting regularly since March of this year to develop a strategic plan that will make it clear that the system is serious about domestic violence.

"Judges see first-hand the human tragedy of domestic violence every day," Judge Anderson said. "That is why we are taking the lead to heighten the effectiveness of all community resources. By communicating and working together we form a united front against the problem."

In addition to the district-wide umbrella group, coordinating councils have been formed in Pennington county by Judge Dennis Murphy, in Clearwater county by Commissioner Warren Larson and Judge Paul E. Rasmussen and in Polk county by Judge Anderson and Judge John M. Roue. Task forces are being formed in Itasca county by Judge John Hawkinson and in Crow Wing county by Judges Frederick J. Casey, John R. Leitner and Robert E. Kautz.

The Polk county council, which meets monthly, hosted a public information session Monday at the University of Minnesota—Crookston to provide information about community resources and the court system's approach to domestic violence.

Judge Murphy, whose council started meeting in August, said the group intends to develop a unified plan that includes the consistent handling of cases within the court system to more effectively address domestic violence.

"I see domestic violence as one of the major problems in our county," Judge Murphy said. "This is a long-term problem. There is no quick fix.

"It is very important, once abuse is identified, to follow through to an appropriate resolution," he added. "We need a consistent way of handling these cases so that abusers know there are consequences."

Judge Murphy said the council is considering programs for abusers. "We find that the problem often is serial abuse," he said. "Frequently the same abuser abuses several victims."

Judge Murphy commended Pennington County Commissioner Ken Murphy of Thief River Falls and Thief River Falls Police Chief Ken Froschheiser for their involvement in the process.

Desiree Varner, director of the Violence Intervention Project in Thief River Falls, said she is optimistic about what the council can accomplish. Her organization works directly with battered women to understand their concerns and needs and to advocate for their rights.

"A coordinating council brings the problem out into the open, closes loopholes and increases communication," Varner said. She was particularly impressed with the fact that judges have made survivors of

YOU'RE INVITED
TO WITNESS THE HERALDING STORY OF DAVE DRAVECKY!

Dave Dravecky made his livelihood on a mound of dirt, throwing a baseball with a strong left arm. He was, for nearly a decade, a professional ball player. He was a pitcher who stood on the doorstep of athletic greatness.

When it counted most, he excelled at the game he loved. He threw superbly in the 1984 National League Championship Series and in that season's World Series for the San Diego Padres. He was virtually unhitable in the 1987 National League championship Series for the San Francisco Giants. He baffled the American League's best batsmen in the 1983 All-Star Game in Chicago.

But the biggest victory of Dravecky's life–the one that sustained him when cancer finally defeated his once-powerful throwing arm–didn't take place on a diamond with 50,000 spectators in the stands. It didn't show up in his statistical record on his baseball card.

Area judges commended for addressing violence

Judges in northwestern Minnesota have been commended by A. M. (Sandy) Keith, Chief Justice of the Minnesota Supreme Court, for their initiative in coordinating community resources to prevent and reduce domestic violence.

Justice Keith said the state's trial courts have named domestic violence their top priority and he recognized the leadership of Judge Russell A. Anderson, chief judge of the Ninth Judicial District, which is made up of Minnesota's 17 northwestern counties. Judge Anderson also is the vice chair of the Conference of Chief Judges, the trial court's administrative council.

Judge Anderson established the state's first district-wide domestic Violence Coordinating Council to bring together the appropriate representatives from law enforcement, social services, prosecuting attorneys and public defenders as well as battered women's agencies, former batterers and victims. The Ninth District's 17-county council has been meeting regularly since March of this year to develop a strategic plan that will make it clear that the system is serious about domestic violence.

"Judges see first-hand the human tragedy of domestic violence every day," Judge Anderson said. "That is why we are taking the lead to heighten the effectiveness of all community resources. By communicating and working together we form a united front against the problem."

In addition to the district-wide umbrella group, coordinating councils have been formed in Pennington county by Judge Dennis Murphy, in Clearwater county by Commissioner Warren Larson and Judge Paul E. Rasmussen and in Polk county by Judge Anderson and Judge John M. Roue. Task forces are being formed in Itasca county by Judge John Hawkinson and in Crow Wing county by Judges Frederick J. Casey, John R. Leitner and Robert E. Kautz.

The Polk county council, which meets monthly, hosted a public information session Monday at the University of Minnesota—Crookston to provide information about community resources and the court system's approach to domestic violence.

Judge Murphy, whose council started meeting in August, said the group intends to develop a unified plan that includes the consistent handling of cases within the court system to more effectively address domestic violence.

"I see domestic violence as one of the major problems in our county," Judge Murphy said. "This is a long-term problem. There is no quick fix.

"It is very important, once abuse is identified, to follow through to an appropriate resolution," he added. "We need a consistent way of handling these cases so that abusers know there are consequences."

Judge Murphy said the council is considering programs for abusers. "We find that the problem often is serial abuse," he said. "Frequently the same abuser abuses several victims."

Judge Murphy commended Pennington County Commissioner Ken Murphy of Thief River Falls and Thief River Falls Police Chief Ken Froschheiser for their involvement in the process.

Desiree Varner, director of the Violence Intervention Project in Thief River Falls, said she is optimistic about what the council can accomplish. Her organization works directly with battered women to understand their concerns and needs and to advocate for their rights.

"A coordinating council brings the problem out into the open, closes loopholes and increases communication," Varner said. She was particularly impressed with the fact that judges have made survivors of

Dravecky
A STORY OF COURAGE AND GRACE
Dave Dravecky's toughest opponent never set foot in the batter's box

TO WITNESS THE HERALDING STORY OF DAVE DRAVECKY!

Dave Dravecky made his livelihood on a mound of dirt, throwing a baseball with a strong left arm. He was, for nearly a decade, a professional ball player. He was a pitcher who stood on the doorstep of athletic greatness.

When it counted most, he excelled at the game he loved. He threw superbly in the 1984 National League Championship Series and in that season's World Series for the San Diego Padres. He was virtually unhitable in the 1987 National League championship Series for the San Francisco Giants. He baffled the American League's best batsmen in the 1983 All-Star Game in Chicago.

But the biggest victory of Dravecky's life–the one that sustained him when cancer finally defeated his once-powerful throwing arm–didn't take place on a diamond with 50,000 spectators in the stands. It didn't show up in his statistical record on his baseball card.

BIBLE STUDY
The Law and the Prophets

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

"Therefore, however you want people to treat you, so treat them, for this is the Law and the Prophets" (Matt. 7:12).

The Law was the Ten Commandments, the statutes and the judgments. It did not include the sacrifices, which were added later (Jer. 7:22). The Ten Commandments and the statutes and judgments are like the Constitution of the United States. The Constitution forms the basis for all our statutes, laws and judgments, which then clarify and expound upon the Constitution.

Now, if a person keeps the laws of the land begrudgingly, he is not as good a citizen as one who keeps them with a good attitude, an attitude of service to his country. If a person is loyal to his country and practices doing what is right, by obeying the laws with a right attitude from the heart, he will be in favor with God and man, as long as those laws are not contrary to God's Ways. All governments exist only by the consent of God, and the leaders of the government are servants of God, whether they know it or not (Rom. 13:1-7).

"The Law and the Prophets," then, is the method by which we are to keep the law—by practicing righteousness for God. We are to walk in the Law and put it into daily practice in our lives (Luke 8:21; 1 John 2:6, 29; 3:7; 2 John 4, 6). We are to continually practice living as God lives (Eph. 5:1; 1 Peter 4:11). This is what it means to do God's Will on earth as it is done in heaven (Matt. 6:10).

Why are so many blind to this truth (2 Cor. 4:3-4)? Find out for yourself what the message of the prophets was. Read Isaiah 1:16-20; Jeremiah 4:22; 5:1; 9:23-24; 22:15-16; Ezekiel 33:13-16; Zephaniah 2:3; and Zechariah 7:9-10.

The prophets were stoned for telling the people how to walk righteously before God and keep His Ways. They were stoned because they told the people to practice righteousness one to another daily and be honest in all their dealings. They told people to glorify the God of heaven and earth in the way He wants to be glorified and worshiped—by doing good works daily for God (Matt. 5:16). This was the message of the Law and the Prophets.

domestic violence welcome at the council meetings.

"Several formerly battered women are in attendance at each meeting," Varner said. "Judges are in support of hearing from survivors and consider it a priority.

"I'm not sure what will eventually happen but I'm confident the process will lead to some long-term change," she said. "People are acknowledging the severity of the problem and want to bring about change. The court system is leading the change."

Varner said that in Minnesota last year the deaths of 31 women were attributed to domestic violence. In the past five years, the toll is 104 Minnesota women. Bringing these statistics closer to home, Varner said that last year in the seven counties of Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake, Polk and Norman her agency had contact with 1,200 women by phone or visits to the center or at safe housing facilities.

According to Varner's information, 90 per cent of children in families where domestic violence takes place witness the abuse. Some 50 to 70 per cent of children in these homes also are abused themselves. Judge Murphy said the council recognizes the need to have a comprehensive educational program in the schools.

Judge Casey of Brainerd said the Crow Wing county council will "allow all the various interested parties to understand the different concerns, perspectives and problems of all of the people committed to reducing domestic violence.

"Domestic violence has become one of the most significant issues that we, as a society, are facing today," he said in a letter inviting area professionals and service providers to a forum to discuss the problem.

"We, as judges, are dealing with varying levels of domestic violence on a daily basis and know that many others are having similar experiences in their field of endeavor," he added.

Judges Casey, Kautz and Leitner, all of Brainerd, hosted a community forum Tuesday.

"In Clearwater county we are taking a broad approach to the entire issue of violence in our community," states Judge Rasmussen, who is co-chairing the local initiative. "We hope to mobilize the entire community—schools, community groups, churches, neighborhoods—parimarily through educational efforts that will heighten awareness of the pervasiveness of violence in our society.

"We intend to educate ourselves and our children to be committed to the idea that violence is not an acceptable way to deal with stress, problems or conflict."

Warren Larson, a Clearwater county commissioner and president of the Association of Minnesota Counties, is the prime mover in the effort.

"I'm really pleased that the district and the judges locally are taking a leadership role in finding strategies to reduce violence," Larson said. "It's such a big task that it takes all of us."

Judge John Hawkinson of Grand Rapids, who is starting a coordinating council in Itasca county, noted that "only if the entire community works together can we, the courts, do a meaningful job of sending the message that domestic violence will not be tolerated."

Readers give views on LHS hat policy

To The Editor:

We would like to respond to the letters written regarding the no hat policy at Lincoln high school.

As members of the Student Senate, we try to keep our school united. We are proud of each and every student and his or her individuality.

Many students found that the stereotypical terminology found in certain letters to the editor was quite offensive. Maybe during the 1960s it was okay to classify people into certain categories, but we are a new generation with new ideas. Every student at Lincoln is part of the puzzle, not because they are "headbangers," "jocks," "preps" or anything else, but because they are 777 students with a common goal —to get a good education and be free to express themselves in their own unique ways.

For as long as we can remember we have been taught to accept people for who they are, not for their style of hair or choice of clothing. We like to think at Lincoln that we are doing a pretty good job of that.

The First Amendment to the Constitution of the United States guarantees the right of all people to express themselves freely, as long as their expression does not interfere with the rights of others. The way people dress is an expression of themselves, and it is their right to do so. As students, we know many freedoms are limited as it is.

Although we may not all agree with the policy, the administration does have good points and the students are making an effort to deal with it. We need support from the community, not criticism.

Sincerely,
Lincoln High School
Student Senate

To The Editor:

The opinions in Holly Howe's letter to the editor dated September 14, 1993, are those of Holly Howe. They are not in any way the opinion of the Kmart Corporation or of your local Kmart in Thief River Falls.

Sincerely,
Mark Little, Manager
Kmart—Thief River Falls

To The Editor:

The purpose of School District 564 is to educate our children, not discipline them. Whether they wear a hat to school or not has nothing to do with their education. This hat thing is not a matter of respect but an issue of control. The military issues some ridiculous orders so that a person knows how to follow orders in the case of an emergency. But this is a school district to educate children, not an army to train soldiers.

Yes, the 60's had a dress code, but what did it accomplish? No blue jeans, no long hair, no short skirts and a lot more no's were very little help in learning chemistry, algebra, history or English. The dress code of the 60's was ridiculous then and it would be even more ridiculous now. We evolved from the 60's but what did we learn?

By whose standards are the students supposed to "dress right," be "presentable" and not be "outlandish?" Are we imposing the standards of the 60's or the 90's? Get to know the student inside the hair and clothes. Decency is not established by appearance but rather by action.

The 60's had long-haired, freaky, war-protesting hippies and flower children. That was the way they expressed themselves. Their (our) elders did not always understand them (us) either.

The youth of the 90's are only expressing themselves with a hat, a bandana, an earring or a shaven head. If you fear outward appearances so much, get out your own photo albums from 30 years ago. As educated people, we should be able to look beyond the cover of the book.

The appearance of today's youth doesn't scare me half as much as the closed-mindedness of today's administrators. A student who approaches education with an open mind will absorb a great wealth of knowledge, provided that the educators also have open minds.

I don't necessarily want to wear a hat everywhere that I go, but I want to have the choice.

Sincerely,
Mark Haugen
P.S. It's more than a hatrack.

To The Editor:

Here we have another "hat letter;" can you stand it?

Do we know the definition of hat? World Book Encyclopedia defines hat as: "The name of several kinds of coverings for the head, a hat consists of a crown, the part that fits on the head; and in most cases, a circular brim. Hats differ from other head coverings such as bonnets, caps, helmets and hoods, most of which have a small brim or no brim at all."

I do believe both hats and head coverings were included in the recent decision to ban them from Lincoln high school and school activities. What caused this dislike for hats and bandanas?

Since birth we have had caps on our heads. Some hospitals send infants home in knitted caps to retain the child's warmth. We constantly tell our children to put their hats on or to cover their heads. Many professions wear hats as a part of their uniform, for example: policemen, cowboys, construction workers, athletes, nurses and religious people such as the Pope, Bishops and the Amish.

The hat is believed to have been in existence for 100,000 years. Do we really think we'll change history?

I do believe they should be worn in good taste, and if it is stated as a dress code in the classroom we should respect it. Were the students given notice of this before the school year started? It is not easy to change the way people feel when they do not have time to adapt to changes.

Hats are also a fashion item and we cannot change the trend, since youth are the trendsetters and they will always be here haunting us of the fashions we once wore as teens. (Maybe they should ban bellbottoms, too.)

In response to Ms. Howe's previous letter to the editor: Hair is as much a part of fashion as the clothes and hats we wear. I love it all lengths, as I'm sure most hairdressers do, and if it's a half-shaved head, that's even better! (I never could get into those "beehives," although they were fashionable and have set another trend again.)

Many stores would not be in business if the trends did not change. I know the hair salons will stay in business with hair fashions always changing, although, Ms. Howe, I don't believe I've seen a "pirate" since my son played "Captain Hook" for Halloween last year.

I am not a wearer of hats myself but I've always admired people who wear them, and look good in them, from those cute little kids who wear them every which way but frontwards to the sophisticated men and women who wear them as fashion accessories.

Hats off (or on?) to you.

Sincerely,
Marcia Kalinowski

To The Editor:

I would like to respond to the letter by Holly Howe (The Times, Wed., Sept.15) and present my reaction to her comments.

Mrs. Howe:

I am attending my senior year at Lincoln high school, majoring in Literary Arts as offered through the Magnet Arts Program. I previously attended the Minnesota Center for Arts Education in Golden Valley for the same art area. I admire these schools for their openness and acceptance of creativity and self-expression. One of the principles that Lincoln high school has expressed in the development of the Magnet Arts Program is the goal of nurturing creativity in students.

Since most of us are not old enough to have a home or studio of our own to decorate as our interests demand, a big part of our creativity and self-expression is channeled through our clothing, jewelry and hairstyles. Your letter states (and you put it well): "How you dress is a reflection of how you feel inside." I myself change my style of attire on a regular (sometimes daily) basis. I consider the combinations of color, layers of clothing, texture and accessories to be some of the ways in which I best express myself. This is a prime example of being true to oneself.

I am appalled at your demonstration of narrow mindedness. Being new to this community, I sincerely hope that your views are not shared by the majority of its residents. So far the teachers and other adults that I have met in Thief River Falls have appeared to me to have a lot of respect for the young people.

The origin of this sidetracked controversy is not the hat policy. This policy was installed with the hope that respect for our school would be shown by its students. Along with this, I have been told that a primary reason caps are not to be worn was to avoid tangible affiliation with gangs. I totally agree with the concern that gang activity should not gain a foothold in this community. Therefore, I am in total support of this measure by the high school administration in what I hope will be a temporary deterrent in criminal activities.

I believe that you should reconsider your generalization and judgment. This judgment seems to be based solely on the reputation of one particular individual. This person, who happens to typify the stereotype of a "headbanger," may have very little in common with other "headbangers" except for certain similarities in appearance and taste in music.

In your letter you stated that "at Kmart, when we see a group of them coming in the door, it means trouble." If you think it through, when you see a group of these kids or any other customers walk through your door it generally means cash in the cash register. This money pays your salary and provides the means for you to dress your kids in any way you choose.

If you object to your customers wearing an earring or bandana (which I believe are sold at Kmart), or having a half-shaven head and this means you would prefer we take our business elsewhere, so be it. Are you speaking for the management of Kmart that "we" (they) do not want these customers to visit this store? If your answer to this question is "no," then I believe that your letter contains a large measure of hypocrisy; if "yes," than I think Kmart should include in its advertising that we are not welcome to do business there.

Please be advised, Mrs. Howe, that I will be sending a copy of this letter and a copy of your letter to the CEO of Kmart. I hope that anyone who feels the same way will join me in writing his or her own protest letter to Joseph Antonini, Kmart Corp., 3100 West Big Beaver, Troy, MI 48084.

Sincerely,
Chris Olson
St. Hilaire

To The Editor:

Quite frankly, the letter in the Wednesday edition of The Times by Holly Howe made us sick to our stomachs. What right does Mrs. Howe have to classify an entire group of people because of the way they choose to wear their hair or because of the clothes they feel comfortable wearing?

Stereotypical comments such as the ones she made about "headbangers" are made only in ignorance. We would be willing to bet that she has never taken the time to sit down and talk with one of these "headbangers." She would find that no two are alike, just like any other "group" of teenagers that she would take the time to get to know. It is totally asinine to assume that their exterior appearance has anything to do with the morals and values they possess.

Mrs. Howe, you said yourself that "how you dress is a reflection of how you feel inside." If you don't take the time to get to know people, you have no idea how they feel inside, and you have no right to judge them because of their appearance.

There are so many problems with the world today, and many of them are caused by the barriers people put up due to the stereotypical images our society holds. People everywhere need to make a conscientious effort to help break down these barriers, and get to know people as people—not headbangers, jocks or anything else.

If everyone would look at things with an open mind, it would make a world of difference. Maybe then you would realize that many "headbangers" are wonderful people; we have.

Sincerely,
Angelique Goulet

To The Editor:

In regard to Holly Howe's letter to the editor printed in the September 15 issue of "The Times:"

Give the kids a break! Let them have an opportunity to feel good about themselves. Let them have some choices. They need to develop their own styles and personalities. They have so many rules and restrictions already, let's make their school experience a positive one.

Let's not stifle our young people's freedoms, individuality, self-esteem and that wonderful creativity. Our kids have many responsibilities including jobs, school work and pressure to succeed.

I know many of these kids. I enjoy talking to them and it's good to see them developing their own personal styles. The way they dress is one small way they can express themselves. Hats, bandanas, earrings, hair styles or flannel shirts do not mean headbangers, pirates or delinquents.

Let's show a good example to our kids. Don't judge people by their clothes, age or other differences. Give them some respect and quit treating them like second class citizens. Then they could also respect us.

Our Lincoln kids are all special whether they wear Guess, Gitano or flannel!

Sincerely,
Leann Steiger

No Hat Policy At LHS Is Tempest In A Teapot

Sometimes it's impossible to try to understand the human psyche. About a year ago School District 564 was in the process of preparing for a bond referendum for $18 million dollars, an issue which would involve a major changeover in the district and affect virtually everyone in the district in some way or another. There was a scattering of public opinion letters received at The Times and Northern Watch office, but certainly no major letter-writing effort.

On Page 5 of this section of The Times our readers will find no fewer than seven public opinion letters regarding the recently-instituted no hat (cap) policy at Lincoln high school and various tangents from that general focal point. Few letters on a multi-million dollar school building improvement project; lots of letters about not wearing hats inside one of the school buildings. Is there any rationality here as to what people think is really important?

Because of the number of letters on the single area of interest and the lack of available space on this editorial page, we have elected to print all of the letters under one heading on page 5 rather than to print a couple on this page and the rest as space would permit. If you haven't already seen them, we encourage you to flip back a page and read what the writers have to say.

We would like to point out a couple of things regarding the situation. First, the no hat policy was devised by a local committee of the Minnesota Educational Effectiveness Program. It is not principal Terry Soine's program, although he obviously accepts it and gets tagged with the enforcement of it.

Second, Holly Howe's gumption to write a letter and state her opinion about dress and attitude probably had more to do with the letter-writing spurt than the policy itself, since a number of the letters referred to her letter. Experience has convinced us that it is easier to respond to someone else's opinion than to initiate your own. Idealism of responding letter writers notwithstanding, Howe is far from alone in believing that attitude is reflected in appearance. It is not a coincidence that those who choose to make waves are often those who also make trouble.

In the days of the Old West it was common for cowboys to wear neckerchiefs and nobody thought anything of it—until they were pulled up over the face to conceal identity. It wasn't the neckerchief (bandana) that was the problem, it was how it was used.

We look at the no hat policy at Lincoln as being the proverbial tempest in a teapot. We will probably never understand why kids who wouldn't be caught dead wearing a head covering outside when it is 30 degrees below zero would want to wear a cap inside a building where it is 70 degrees or warmer. By the same token, banning all such attire because a small number may be offensive seems to be throwing the baby out with the bath water.

We're only guessing, but we think we have a good idea what the situation was at Lincoln. A few kids were checking shock value or independence by wearing caps with questionable sayings or tobacco or beverage logos on them. Allowing no hats at all eliminates the problem of trying to judge what is or isn't in proper taste in logos, slogans or sayings printed on caps. Discrimination can't be claimed if all must adhere to the same rule; no caps, no problem.

At any rate, we think about enough has been said about the situation in today's issue. If you feel you have something worthwhile to contribute to the discussion that hasn't already been considered, get a letter to us by Friday for next Wednesday's Times. We won't be taking any more letters on this topic after that time unless something new develops at a later date.

Fall Festivals Show Off Community Pride

If you need proof that life indeed exists in small town Minnesota, take in one of the fall celebrations in a town like Brooks, Newfolden, Middle River, Grygla or Oklee. If a person could bottle the community effort that goes into organizing such events, he could sell it to any industry for $100 an ounce.

One thing that becomes apparent when a person talks with people arranging the fall festivals is that they are genuinely proud of their communities and want to show others what they can do. The percentage of the population that is involved in the planning and carrying out of the activities should make larger communities blush with shame.

Grygla's Fall Festival, the Blast to Brooks, Oklee's Fall Festival and the Newfolden Newfest have all had active and successful events this year. Middle River kicks off its Goose Festival with a Miss Middle River pageant this Saturday night. A whole flock (pun intended) of activities is planned for the main part of the Goose Festival next Friday through Sunday. (Yes, we know a group of geese is called a gaggle and not a flock, but whoever heard of a gaggle of activities?)

If you want to observe some community pride in action, waddle or fly on up to Middle River for the Goose Festivities. You'll find more going on than you can keep up with attending.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

Vice President Al Gore has unveiled his reinvent government plan. This plan should be known as his reinvent government plan, Phase II.

The Phase I plan, which has been accomplished, was the fulfillment of the liberal socialist agenda. We now have a government where the policies which govern us are implemented by radical gays, lesbians, socialists, new agers, abortionists and promoters of a new world order.

God help America.

Yours Truly,
Arnold Honl

Former resident in "Tulsa World" story

Raca Woolson Howard

Raca Woolson (Mrs. James) Howard, former Thief River Falls resident and sister of Dorothy Woolson Chapman of this city, was featured along with other former members of the military services who served overseas in a recent feature story in the "Tulsa World" newspaper.

Raca is the daughter of the late Harry and Julia (Nelson) Woolson, graduated from Lincoln high school in 1935 and from the normal training school here, later teaching at the Aubol, Yonke and Elwell rural schools in this area and at the former Washington elementary school.

The newspaper feature was about the Overseas League, a group of women who served overseas with the U.S. military, War Department, State Department or American Red Cross during a time of war or "national emergency." They call themselves the "Old Warhorses" and Raca is president of the 15-member Tulsa chapter, one of 44 chapters in the country.

Women going into combat was not an issue during World War II. "Those boys (soldiers) protected us," she stated in the article. "They would give their lives for us, and we knew it. We liked it that way."

Raca was one of the first 20 women Red Cross personnel who were air-lifted to Tokyo, Japan, in 1945. She headed Red Cross rest and recreation (R&R) centers in Japan and the Philippine Islands.

"I was on a ship enroute to Manila on Sept. 2, 1945, when we heard that Japan had surrendered," she said. We immediately painted that gray ship red, white and blue."

When Raca was director of an R&R center in Kyoto, Japan, she noticed horses pulling "honey pots" (latrine wagons) through the streets. Horses that had been beautiful mounts of Japanese cavalry were broken down and starving. She had them stabled in back of the hotel, nursing them back to health and beauty and letting the servicemen on R&R ride them.

Dorothy Chapman says that her sister's interest in caring for those horses came from growing up on a farm and caring for the Guernsey cattle that her father raised and showed. Their sister Natalie was the first 4-H club member to show a Guernsey cow at the Pennington County Fair and the Minnesota State Fair.

Members of the Overseas League agreed in the feature article that they would serve in the same manner again if called upon to do so.

"It was the thing to do," Raca said. "It was patriotic. We were doing our part, and we wanted to do just that."

Baiting question still has hunters in limbo

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Northwestern Minnesota waterfowl hunters planning their hunts for the opening weekend this Saturday and Sunday are caught in the position of facing possible arrest for hunting on—or in proximity to—what might be considered "baited" fields.

If that sounds rather indefinite and confusing it's only because the situation is indefinite and confusing.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service office in St. Paul sent out a news release received here early this week stating that "When waterfowl seasons open in the Midwest this year, hunters are advised to use extra caution about potential illegal baiting situations in deciding where to hunt.

"Because of high rainfall and sever floods," the release continues, "harvest of thousands of acres of severely damaged crops has been foregone in order that farmers may qualify for a Department of Agriculture program called 0/92. The program gives farmers the option to select a guaranteed payment on lands that are normally used to produce corn, wheat and other feed grains.

"Unharvested but knocked down crops can create a lure or attraction to wildlife, particularly waterfowl. Although such areas have not been intentionally 'baited' to attract waterfowl, hunting over them is prohibited by federal wildlife laws, enforced by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service."

The release quotes regional director Sam Marler as stating that "the responsibility lies with the hunter, ...waterfowl hunters must be extra careful to avoid illegally hunting on a field that meets the legal definition of 'baited."

The difficulty comes in determining what would apply as the legal definition of "baited."

"Federal wildlife laws do permit hunting geese and ducks coming to feed on waste grains scattered as a result of normal agricultural harvest or planting," the release continues, "However, when crops have been knocked down under the 0/92 program, the area may be considered baited. Ten days after all of the grain, or 'bait,' has been removed either by consumption by wildlife or being plowed under, normal hunting activities can take place."

Larry Hood of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service enforcement division in St. Paul, said much of the concern about baiting involves corn. Fields which have had substantial losses due to flooding in the south and west central portions of the state are being abandoned under the 0/92 program but still have substantial amounts of corn which have matured to the extent that they have much grain available for feed.

Hood said that agents from the St. Paul office had checked fields "north of Fergus Falls" but had not been in the traditional small grain area of the northwest corner of the state. He did say that the baiting law applies to corn, wheat and other feed grains, and he was not aware if the grain left in a field after burning (one of the frequently used means of destroying a crop this year in this area) is of the kind of quality to appeal to waterfowl.

Landowners who have been hit with disastrous weather conditions and loss of much of their potential crop income are understandably upset by the USFWS warning. The crops were obviously planted with normal harvest anticipated and in a normal year would have been harvested by now. If conditions would have allowed grain to be plowed under to comply with 0/92, those same conditions would have certainly permitted harvesting of the crop.

Hood said that the law permits hunting in standing crops, which would seem to indicate that it is allowable to hunt in grain fields which are unharvested or as yet undestroyed. Final date to destroy crops under the 0/92 program in Pennington and Marshall counties is October 15.

The question has also been raised, but certainly not resolved, as to whether this year the burning of fields is a "normal" agricultural practice.

Reason would seem to indicate that it would be difficult to secure a conviction under the baiting law when there is the vast acreage of cropland in comparable condition in the northwest area. But reason does not always prevail under the law and ability to obtain a conviction does not always influence the making of an arrest.

Hood said that the USFWS felt that it should make hunters aware of the potential of baited fields prior to the opening of the waterfowl season. Hunters will still have to make the decision for themselves as to whether they are placing themselves in potential violation of the baiting law.

Persons with specific questions may contact Larry Hood or his assistant, Bill Zimmerman, at the USFWS office in St. Paul, phone 612-725-3530.

Digi-Key and Arctco join in care coalition

Digi-Key Corporation and Arctco, Inc., Thief River Falls are members of a group of Minnesota and North Dakota employers who have joined forces to explore the issues of health care costs, utilization and wellness programs for their employees.

Specifically, the coalition's three goals are to:

(1) Work with health care providers to develop uniform methods for measuring the quality of care;

(2) Share information among group members and health care providers to better analyze price, usage and practice patterns; and

(3) develop educational programs for employees and others to improve overall wellness.

Raca Woolson Howard

Raca Woolson (Mrs. James) Howard, former Thief River Falls resident and sister of Dorothy Woolson Chapman of this city, was featured along with other former members of the military services who served overseas in a recent feature story in the "Tulsa World" newspaper.

Raca is the daughter of the late Harry and Julia (Nelson) Woolson, graduated from Lincoln high school in 1935 and from the normal training school here, later teaching at the Aubol, Yonke and Elwell rural schools in this area and at the former Washington elementary school.

The newspaper feature was about the Overseas League, a group of women who served overseas with the U.S. military, War Department, State Department or American Red Cross during a time of war or "national emergency." They call themselves the "Old Warhorses" and Raca is president of the 15-member Tulsa chapter, one of 44 chapters in the country.

Women going into combat was not an issue during World War II. "Those boys (soldiers) protected us," she stated in the article. "They would give their lives for us, and we knew it. We liked it that way."

Raca was one of the first 20 women Red Cross personnel who were air-lifted to Tokyo, Japan, in 1945. She headed Red Cross rest and recreation (R&R) centers in Japan and the Philippine Islands.

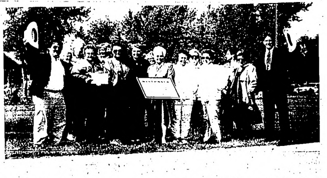
"I was on a ship enroute to Manila on Sept. 2, 1945, when we heard that Japan had surrendered," she said. We immediately painted that gray ship red, white and blue."

When Raca was director of an R&R center in Kyoto, Japan, she noticed horses pulling "honey pots" (latrine wagons) through the streets. Horses that had been beautiful mounts of Japanese cavalry were broken down and starving. She had them stabled in back of the hotel, nursing them back to health and beauty and letting the servicemen on R&R ride them.

Dorothy Chapman says that her sister's interest in caring for those horses came from growing up on a farm and caring for the Guernsey cattle that her father raised and showed. Their sister Natalie was the first 4-H club member to show a Guernsey cow at the Pennington County Fair and the Minnesota State Fair.

Members of the Overseas League agreed in the feature article that they would serve in the same manner again if called upon to do so.

"It was the thing to do," Raca said. "It was patriotic. We were doing our part, and we wanted to do just that."



Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce Ambassadors presented the Hats Off award to the Zehlians. The award recognizes outstanding commitment to civic improvement. The award was presented by Kermit Genereux and Regan Rohl along the Riverwalk project in Chief Red Robe Park. The Zehlians were responsible for organizing and going ahead with the Riverwalk project, which involves over seven miles of trails along rivers in Thief River Falls. Project committee members include Gretchen Beito, Carol Jung, Joan Strong, Margaret Saetre and Jean Henrichs. The State Chairman of the Zehlians, Joyce Reynolds, attended the award presentation last Wednesday.

Baiting question still has hunters in limbo

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Northwestern Minnesota waterfowl hunters planning their hunts for the opening weekend this Saturday and Sunday are caught in the position of facing possible arrest for hunting on—or in proximity to—what might be considered "baited" fields.

If that sounds rather indefinite and confusing it's only because the situation is indefinite and confusing.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service office in St. Paul sent out a news release received here early this week stating that "When waterfowl seasons open in the Midwest this year, hunters are advised to use extra caution about potential illegal baiting situations in deciding where to hunt.

"Because of high rainfall and sever floods," the release continues, "harvest of thousands of acres of severely damaged crops has been foregone in order that farmers may qualify for a Department of Agriculture program called 0/92. The program gives farmers the option to select a guaranteed payment on lands that are normally used to produce corn, wheat and other feed grains.

"Unharvested but knocked down crops can create a lure or attraction to wildlife, particularly waterfowl. Although such areas have not been intentionally 'baited' to attract waterfowl, hunting over them is prohibited by federal wildlife laws, enforced by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service."

The release quotes regional director Sam Marler as stating that "the responsibility lies with the hunter. ...waterfowl hunters must be extra careful to avoid illegally hunting on a field that meets the legal definition of 'baited.'"

The difficulty comes in determining what would apply as the legal definition of "baited."

"Federal wildlife laws do permit hunting geese and ducks coming to feed on waste grains scattered as a result of normal agricultural harvest or planting," the release continues, "However, when crops have been knocked down under the 0/92 program, the area may be considered baited. Ten days after all of the grain, or 'bait,' has been removed either by consumption by wildlife or being plowed under, normal hunting activities can take place."

Larry Hood of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service enforcement division in St. Paul, said much of the concern about baiting involves corn. Fields which have had substantial losses due to flooding in the south and west central portions of the state are being abandoned under the 0/92 program but still have substantial amounts of corn which have matured to the extent that they have much grain available for feed.

Hood said that agents from the St. Paul office had checked fields "north of Fergus Falls" but had not been in the traditional small grain area of the northwest corner of the state. He did say that the baiting law applies to corn, wheat and other feed grains, and he was not aware if the grain left in a field after burning (one of the frequently used means of destroying a crop this year in this area) is of the kind of quality to appeal to waterfowl.

Landowners who have been hit with disastrous weather conditions and loss of much of their potential crop income are understandably upset by the USFWS warning. The crops were obviously planted with normal harvest anticipated and in a normal year would have been harvested by now. If conditions would have allowed grain to be plowed under to comply with 0/92, those same conditions would have certainly permitted harvesting of the crop.

Hood said that the law permits hunting in standing crops, which would seem to indicate that it is allowable to hunt in grain fields which are unharvested or as yet undestroyed. Final date to destroy crops under the 0/92 program in Pennington and Marshall counties is October 15.

The question has also been raised, but certainly not resolved, as to whether this year the burning of fields is a "normal" agricultural practice.

Reason would seem to indicate that it would be difficult to secure a conviction under the baiting law when there is the vast acreage of cropland in comparable condition in the northwest area. But reason does not always prevail under the law and ability to obtain a conviction does not always influence the making of an arrest.

Hood said that the USFWS felt that it should make hunters aware of the potential of baited fields prior to the opening of the waterfowl season. Hunters will still have to make the decision for themselves as to whether they are placing themselves in potential violation of the baiting law.

Nicole Brang and Mark Antonenko wed Aug. 7

Nicole Brang and Mark Antonenko were united in marriage August 7 at the St. Bernard's Catholic church in Thief River Falls. Rev. Joe DeCrans officiated at the 2 p.m. double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Neil and Zona Brang of Thief River Falls. Parents of the groom are Dr. David and Suzanne Antonenko of Grand Forks, ND.

Special music was provided by Phyllis Gotttschall and Dale Diers, friends of the bride, who sang "My Only Love," "I Can See Forever in You," "True Companion," "Birth of We," Household of Faith" and "Darling, I Love You." Brad Thompson, friend of the bride, played the trumpet. Marcia Knuttila, friend of the bride, served as pianist, playing "Variations on Pachebel's Canon in D" as the processional and "Rondeau" as the recessional.

The church was decorated with a large bouquet of pink and white lilies, pink gladioli, red carnations and babies' breath in front of the altar, two lighted candelabra decorated with pink and white lilies, red carnations and babies' breath and white iridescent bows.

The bride chose a gown with beaded high-necked bodice and giget sleeves. The skirt was decorated with many lace appliques and fell to a cathedral length train adorned with lace cut-outs. The bride is the daughter of Maurice and Patricia Byron of Red Lake Falls. Parents of the groom are Bernard and Evelyn Huot of St. Hilaire.

Music was provided by Bonnie and Tracy Wensloff who presented the prelude songs, "Wind Beneath my Wings," "To Me" and "A Love Until the End of Time"; Mary Anderson served as organist and pianist, playing "Canon in D" and "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" as processionals and "Trumpet Voluntary" as recessional; and vocalists and guitar instrumentalists, Marie Beaudry and Sheldon Nowacki, presenting "He has Chosen You for Me," "The Wedding Song" and "God, A Woman and a Man." All are friends of the couple.

Videographer was Mike McLoone, cousin of the bride, and scripture reader was Bill Fogarty, friend of the couple.

For her wedding, the bride chose an ivory satin gown with cathedral-length train. The gown featured a soft pleated portrait neckline adorned with pearl droplets and Basque waistline. Scalloped Alecon lace, pearls and sequins trimmed the hemline and a satin bow trimmed with Alecon lace, sequins and seed pearls accented the back waistline. Her headpiece was a double crown of pearl drops with fingertip veil accented with sequins and pearl droplets. The bridal bouquet was a cascade of ivory gardenias, stephanotis and roses accented with ivy foliage, babies' breath and pearls. Pam Dallman, friend of the bride, was personal attendant.

Mary Byron-McGhee, Cape Town, South Africa, served her sister as matron of honor. Bridemaids were Marcy McMillan, Escondido, CA, and Carrie Byron, Metairie, LA, both sisters of the bride, and Cindy Byron, Grand Forks, ND, sister-in-law of the bride. Junior bridesmaid was Jena McMillan, niece of the bride. All wore royal blue satin and lace tea length gowns, featuring a lace bodice with sweetheart neckline, short puffed sleeves banded with satin and adorned with bows. A drop v-shaped back was accented by a satin drape and bow. Bouquets featured cascades of miniature ivory carnations and stephanotis accented with ivy and babies' breath.

Serving as best man was Doug Dallman, Thief River Falls. Groomsmen were Blair Lund, Thief River Falls, Gary Cornell, and Dan Byron, Brainerd, all friends of the couple. Craig Johnston, son of the bride, was junior groomsman. All gentlemen wore black tails with ivory shirts and royal, feather brite ties and cummerbunds. Boutonnieres were ivory carnations accented with stephanotis and babies' breath. Mike Byron, Grand Forks, ND, brother of the bride, Curt Huot, Thief River Falls, cousin of the groom, and Craig Huot, St. Hilaire, brother of the groom, served as ushers, wearing black tuxedoes, ties and cummerbunds.

The mother of the bride was attired in a two-piece chiffon, tea-length gown of pale pink, with beaded sequin shoulders. Pearl earrings completed her ensemble. The mother of the groom wore a two-piece teal brocade, tea-length gown accented with pearl necklace. The mothers' corsages were ivory roses, stephanotis and babies' breath.

Fathers of the couple were attired in black tuxedoes with black ties and cummerbunds and ivory shirts. They wore boutonnaires of a single ivory rose. Flower hostesses were Lisa Linder, cousin of the bride, and Marlys Schmitz, sister of the groom.

Highlighting the serving table was the three-tiered, chocolate and white layered wedding cake with cascading fountain. Theme of the conference was "Gardening in Small Town America." Over one hundred district 6 MSHS members volunteered their time to make the conference a success.

Jeanice Fredrickson, MSHS state president, and Dorothy Johnson, executive director, made the presentation to Swanson and five other horticulturalists from the twin cities.

She was also cited for her work as an Extension volunteer for 30 years, as 4-H leader and project coordinator, promoting the building of blue bird houses, establishing a blue bird trail and having club members build wren houses at a club meeting.

Swanson has been a national seed experiment grower, tester and reporter, worked with youth in preparing community gardens, planting flowers in public gardens, and has been on the flower committee of her church for several years.

Katherine Johnston and Robert Huot Wed Aug. 28

Katherine Byron-Johnston and Robert John Huot were united in marriage August 28 at St. Bernard's Catholic church in Thief River Falls. Rev. Joe DeCrans officiated at the 2 p.m. double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Maurice and Patricia Byron of Red Lake Falls. Parents of the groom are Bernard and Evelyn Huot of St. Hilaire.

Music was provided by Bonnie and Tracy Wensloff who presented the prelude songs, "Wind Beneath my Wings," "To Me" and "A Love Until the End of Time"; Mary Anderson served as organist and pianist, playing "Canon in D" and "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" as processionals and "Trumpet Voluntary" as recessional; and vocalists and guitar instrumentalists, Marie Beaudry and Sheldon Nowacki, presenting "He has Chosen You for Me," "The Wedding Song" and "God, A Woman and a Man." All are friends of the couple.

Videographer was Mike McLoone, cousin of the bride, and scripture reader was Bill Fogarty, friend of the couple.

For her wedding, the bride chose an ivory satin gown with cathedral-length train. The gown featured a soft pleated portrait neckline adorned with pearl droplets and Basque waistline. Scalloped Alecon lace, pearls and sequins trimmed the hemline and a satin bow trimmed with Alecon lace, sequins and seed pearls accented the back waistline. Her headpiece was a double crown of pearl drops with fingertip veil accented with sequins and pearl droplets. The bridal bouquet was a cascade of ivory gardenias, stephanotis and roses accented with ivy foliage, babies' breath and pearls. Pam Dallman, friend of the bride, was personal attendant.

Mary Byron-McGhee, Cape Town, South Africa, served her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Marcy McMillan, Escondido, CA, and Carrie Byron, Metairie, LA, both sisters of the bride, and Cindy Byron, Grand Forks, ND, sister-in-law of the bride. Junior bridesmaid was Jena McMillan, niece of the bride. All wore royal blue satin and lace tea length gowns, featuring a lace bodice with sweetheart neckline, short puffed sleeves banded with satin and adorned with bows. A drop v-shaped back was accented by a satin drape and bow. Bouquets featured cascades of miniature ivory carnations and stephanotis accented with ivy and babies' breath.

Serving as best man was Doug Dallman, Thief River Falls. Groomsmen were Blair Lund, Thief River Falls, Gary Cornell, and Dan Byron, Brainerd, all friends of the couple. Craig Johnston, son of the bride, was junior groomsman. All gentlemen wore black tails with ivory shirts and royal, feather brite ties and cummerbunds. Boutonnieres were ivory carnations accented with stephanotis and babies' breath. Mike Byron, Grand Forks, ND, brother of the bride, Curt Huot, Thief River Falls, cousin of the groom, and Craig Huot, St. Hilaire, brother of the groom, served as ushers, wearing black tuxedoes, ties and cummerbunds.

The mother of the bride was attired in a two-piece chiffon, tea-length gown of pale pink, with beaded sequin shoulders. Pearl earrings completed her ensemble. The mother of the groom wore a two-piece teal brocade, tea-length gown accented with pearl necklace. The mothers' corsages were ivory roses, stephanotis and babies' breath.

Fathers of the couple were attired in black tuxedoes with black ties and cummerbunds and ivory shirts. They wore boutonnaires of a single ivory rose. Flower hostesses were Lisa Linder, cousin of the bride, and Marlys Schmitz, sister of the groom.

Honored guests at the ceremony were Eugene and Clare Byron of California, grandparents of the bride, and Elsie Duden of St. Hilaire, grandmother of the groom.

A reception was held in the church hall following the ceremony. Host and hostess were Nancy and Barry Fellman and Wendy and Tom Goddard, friends of the couple. Patsy Lindquist, sister of the groom, presided at the guest book.

Highlighting the serving table was the three-tiered, chocolate and white layered wedding cake with cascading fountain. The cake was iced in ivory and separated by pillars of fresh ivory flowers and decored with pearls. A cluster of ivory stephanotis, roses and greenery topped the cake. Two side cakes were decorated to compliment the wedding cake decor. The bride's aunt, Gloria McLoone, and friend of the couple, Barb Drees, cut the cake.

Arlene Huot, aunt of the bride, and Vicki Rislov, friend of the couple, served coffee; LeeAnn Lund and Vicki Meunier, friends of the couple, served punch; Erika Jensen and Michelle Haugen were in charge of the gift table; and waitresses were Kristine and Beth Goddard, Vicki Bitzegaio, Kelly Nelson, Kim Haugen and Kelly Almquist.

Following their wedding trip to the twin cities and Valley Fair, the couple is at home in Thief River Falls. The bride is a 1983 graduate of LaFayette high school in Red Lake Falls and currently employed at the Aandal law office, and the groom is a 1985 graduate of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls and currently employed at Universal Screenprint.

Lois Swanson, member of the Deer Park garden club and district 13 of the Minnesota State Horticultural society for 28 years, received an MSHS special award for "Inspiring Leadership in Northern Gardening" at the MSHS conference banquet held in Nisswa on September 18.

Theme of the conference was "Gardening in Small Town America." Over one hundred district 6 MSHS members volunteered their time to make the conference a success.

Jeanice Fredrickson, MSHS state president, and Dorothy Johnson, executive director, made the presentation to Swanson and five other horticulturalists from the twin cities.

Swanson was recognized for holding offices in her local garden club, holding district 13 offices, including president, co-chairing district 13 events, including annual meetings, spring workshops and horticultural shows, preparing one or more programs for club meetings each year for the past 28 years, organizing and participating in local and state-wide tours and garden visitations, including the wild flower tour beginning in Williams each June.

She was also cited for her work as an Extension volunteer for 30 years, as 4-H leader and project coordinator, promoting the building of blue bird houses, establishing a blue bird trail and having club members build wren houses at a club meeting.

Swanson has been a national seed experiment grower, tester and reporter, worked with youth in preparing community gardens, planting flowers in public gardens, and has been on the flower committee of her church for several years.

Swanson says she believes in the mission statement of MSHS, "To encourage and improve the science and practice of northern horticulture through developing the public enjoyment, appreciation and understanding of plants."

It's that time of year again. The fund-raising season has officially started. Personally, I have always hated fund raising. If it was an option, I would prefer to use my own money. Of course, once the cost of the trip, or whatever the fund raiser is for, reaches a certain point I fall into the fund raising trap.

The worst kind of fund raising is door to door sales. I have always been somewhat shy, and after years of being told "don't talk to strangers" my fear of people has been intensified. I do not understand the twisted logic of sending children to stranger's houses. Even when I went trick-or-treating my parents told me to only go to people's houses that we knew. So, why are fund faisers so important that children are sacrificed?

I was in the Girl Scout program when I was younger and remember how important selling Girl Scout cookies was. I hated it but loved the cookies. I liked when my parents bought them, but I hated the thought of asking anyone else. My parents ordered most of my cookies. They'd get enough for our family and some to give to relatives. By doing that, my parents saved my eight-year-old pride. I was never awarded a badge for selling the most cookies, but I had never dreamed of getting one. My goal was to survive the sale without having to face too many strangers.

Another torturous fund raiser is selling candy bars. I've sold these numerous times. I didn't always mind selling them. A fifty-cent candy bar isn't too hard to sell to a hungry teenager at lunch. Then one year the price went up to one dollar. Sure, the candy bars were bigger, but try telling that to someone who only has a dollar and twenty-five cents for lunch. Once the product doesn't sell around school, I hand it over to my dad. He has always been willing to bring my candy bars or order forms to school and leave them in the staff room with hopes that someone would take pity on me.

For some reason, adults are more willing to buy fund raising items. May-be it's because they have more money to spend, or it could be because they've watched their children struggle through the fund raising process. My opinion is that they remember how horrible an ordeal it is.

I'm going to be fund raising more than I would like this year. I have to raise money for the annual physics trip and for the Close-Up program. Close-up is going to take a lot of work to raise enough money, but a trip to Washington, D.C. to witness governement first hand is definitely worth the work.

I've started my first fund raising expedition. At this time I've sold twelve items. We're supposed to sell fifteen. I can probably do it, but what would I have done if my parent's hadn't bought five?

RANDOM THOUGHTS

Sara Tyler
Lincoln High School

It's that time of year again. The fund-raising season has officially started. Personally, I have always hated fund raising. If it was an option, I would prefer to use my own money. Of course, once the cost of the trip, or whatever the fund raiser is for, reaches a certain point I fall into the fund raising trap.

The worst kind of fund raising is door to door sales. I have always been somewhat shy, and after years of being told "don't talk to strangers" my fear of people has been intensified. I do not understand the twisted logic of sending children to stranger's houses. Even when I went trick-or-treating my parents told me to only go to people's houses that we knew. So, why are fund faisers so important that children are sacrificed?

I was in the Girl Scout program when I was younger and remember how important selling Girl Scout cookies was. I hated it but loved the cookies. I liked when my parents bought them, but I hated the thought of asking anyone else. My parents ordered most of my cookies. They'd get enough for our family and some to give to relatives. By doing that, my parents saved my eight-year-old pride. I was never awarded a badge for selling the most cookies, but I had never dreamed of getting one. My goal was to survive the sale without having to face too many strangers.

Another torturous fund raiser is selling candy bars. I've sold these numerous times. I didn't always mind selling them. A fifty-cent candy bar isn't too hard to sell to a hungry teenager at lunch. Then one year the price went up to one dollar. Sure, the candy bars were bigger, but try telling that to someone who only has a dollar and twenty-five cents for lunch. Once the product doesn't sell around school, I hand it over to my dad. He has always been willing to bring my candy bars or order forms to school and leave them in the staff room with hopes that someone would take pity on me.

For some reason, adults are more willing to buy fund raising items. May-be it's because they have more money to spend, or it could be because they've watched their children struggle through the fund raising process. My opinion is that they remember how horrible an ordeal it is.

I'm going to be fund raising more than I would like this year. I have to raise money for the annual physics trip and for the Close-Up program. Close-up is going to take a lot of work to raise enough money, but a trip to Washington, D.C. to witness governement first hand is definitely worth the work.

I've started my first fund raising expedition. At this time I've sold twelve items. We're supposed to sell fifteen. I can probably do it, but what would I have done if my parent's hadn't bought five?

VIP to hold sessions for "Survivors"

Violence Intervention Project's "Survivor Group" for survivors of family or relationship abuse will start soon with eight weekly classes planned for the series, according to Jo Eastvold, program coordinator.

The eight classes in the series will have the following topics:

(1) Power and control, survival and coping skills;

(2) Explaining abuse—why does it happen, abusive relationships versus healthy relationships;

(3) Cycle of violence, early warning signs, the decision-making process;

(4) Development of a coping plan, victimization, self-blame;

(5) Anger/handling conflict;

(6) Addictive love versus healthy love;

(7) Assertiveness training/what's important to you; and

(8) Healthy relationships—questions to ask yourself about a new man, can your partner change?

While the classes are in session, the Umbrella Tree safety center will offer group sessions at the same time for teens and younger children. Topics will include what abuse is, safety issues, what is appropriate anger, what is the difference between assertive and aggressive and the effects of divorce on children.

"We take a lot of class time to talk about feelings," Eastvold said, "and we use art projects to help get discussions started."

For more information or to register for the program, call 681-5557 or 1-800-660-6667.

Legislators meet at Oak Island

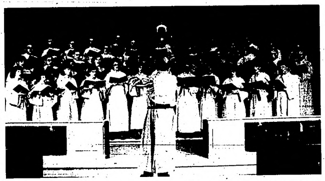
Rep. Jim Tunheim of Kennedy will hold a meeting of the Tourism and Small Business Division of the House of Representatives' Commerce Committee, which he chairs, at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, October 5, at Sunset resort on Oak Island in Minnesota's Northwest Angle.

Concerns of resort owners will be discussed at the meeting which is open to the public. In case of bad weather the meeting will be moved to Northwest Angle Resort.

The dozen legislators will tour the lake and meet local resorters to talk about their concerns before the meeting, Rep. Tunheim said.

Rep. Tunheim said he called the meeting "so legislators can learn about difficulties faced by resorters due to the Canadian government's fishing policies. Policies that favor Canadian resorters have cut into tourism by encouraging people who want a fishing yacation to use Canadian rather than U.S. resorts."

In the last legislative session Rep. Tunheim introduced two bills related to this issue. He is currently working on another one and said he hopes to have the draft completed in time for it to be considered during the hearing so those who attend can offer their suggestions for improving it.



National Lutheran Choir will be in concert Saturday, October 30, at 7:30 p.m. at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls. Tickets at $10 each are available from Karen Gladen at 406 South Maple or by calling 681-1431. Selected by auditions held each May, the 60 professionally trained and experienced singers are drawn from a 200-mile radius of St. Paul/Minneapolis. Leaf Songs

Does autumn feel so good, you would like to sing? Well, here are a couple of simple songs for you and your child.

Leaves
(to the tune of All Around the Mulberry Bush)

Summer leaves are hanging,
hanging, hanging.
Summer leaves are hanging
All day long.
(stand with arms outstretched)

Autumn leaves are turning colors, colors, colors.
Autumn leaves are turning colors
All day long.
(turn around)

Autumn leaves are falling, falling, falling.
Autumn leaves are falling
All day long.
(fall to the floor)

Autumn leaves are dancing,
dancing, dancing.
Autumn leaves are dancing
All day long.
(dance)

Leaves
(to the tune of Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star)

All join hands and circle around
While we watch the leaves fall down
See them twirling to the ground
See them whirling all around
See them skipping here and there
See them flipping in the air
Autumn leaves so peacefully
Falling, falling from the tree.

Earlier Isn't Better

Earlier isn't better, it's just earlier.

Rushing children to do things adults are interested in is harmful. And each year adults push children to do things at an earlier and earlier age.

That's the message Bev Bos will bring to Grand Forks Saturday when she presents a workshop and family concert at Red River high school.

The former Fargo resident has been on the television program, "20/20," which featured her Roseville Community Preschool in northern California.

When Bos talks, she demonstrates the imaginative things she concocts to amuse and educate children. If children are not engaged, she says, they are not learning. They learn best through hands-on activities, not through worksheets.

Her presentation would be helpful and fun for parents, teachers, college students, child-care providers. Bos' visit is sponsored by the Grand Forks Association for the Education of Young Children. Credits are available for child-care licensing. Cost is $10. The session is from 2 to 6 p.m. Doors will open for registration and to view exhibits at 12:30 p.m. The concert will be from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $4.50 and $3.50 for children. Doors open at 6:45 p.m. All events are at the Red River high school.

For tickets: Send money, name and address to: Child Care Resource and Referral, Box 1451, Grand Forks, ND 58206.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Look outside and talk to your young child about the changes that are taking place. Talk about what you see, hear and smell.

Catholic Daughters had white ribbon meeting

Catholic Daughters of America, Our Lady of the Snows, met recently. Members participated in a decade of the joyful mysteries of the rosary for the sick, for happy marriages, for an end to abortion and for financial needs of everyone. It was decided that a get-well card would be sent to one of the members. Sympathy was extended to the family of Irene Reopelle, who was a CDA member for many years.

Highlight of the meeting was the white ribbon campaign, a campaign to promote good family entertainment. Celaine Votava led the tying of white ribbon into bows for every CDA member and their family. Members are invited to ask for their ribbons so they can be displayed on antennas, purses, lapels, etc. to show their support for good entertainment.

Election of officers was held. As a result, Jeanne Altepeter was elected regent; Ione Gonsorowski, vice-regent; and Neva Appel, treasurer.

New business included rosary sponsorship for the month of October. Volunteers are needed for Catholic Daughter Sunday and should meet before the mass.

Lorena Lasha was in charge of visits and birthday cards to nursing home residents, Doris Eisbrener is in charge of the program for the October meeting and members are encouraged to return suggestion sheets. Ione Gonsorowski will be looking into ideas for a unique fundraiser.

The meeting closed with lunch provided by Jeanne Altepeter and Lorena Lasha, and the recitation of St. Andrew's prayer.

Graham film "Scars That Heal" shown

"Scars That Heal, a new film from Worldwide Pictures, the Billy Graham film ministry, will be shown Sunday, October 3, at 7 p.m. at the Assembly of God church in Thief River Falls.

Rev. Sandy Stevenson and members of the congregation invite the public to attend. Lunch and fellowship period will follow the film showing.

The film tells the story of Dave Roever, a young soldier on a routine mission on the Van Co Tay river in Vietnam in 1965. He and his buddies were investigating a bunker for signs of the enemy.

Roever threw a phosphorous hand grenade into the brush to clear it. As he reached back to throw a second grenade, it exploded in his hand, instantly blowing off 40 per cent of his skin, blinding him in his right eye and deafening his right ear. Nearly half of his face and chest were gone.

Supported by the love and faithfulness of his wife and family, he endured 15 major operations, skin grafts and burn treatments and recovered to form the Roever Evangelistic Association.

"God has given me the heart to tell my story," he says. "And He's given His Spirit to open up the hearts and minds of (people) all over this country with their own deep scars to heal. Our wounds can be ugly, but they can heal. They can be milestones on which we build strength for the future and resolve to follow Him more closely, day by day."

Terry Wiseth

Walsh and Wiseth on NCC full-time faculty

Patrick Walsh of Oshkosh, WI, and Terry Wiseth of Thief River Falls have been added to the full-time faculty of Northland Community College in Thief River Falls.

A native of Mapleton, Walsh earned a BA degree in physics and mathematics from the University of Minnesota—Morris and went on to get his MS degree in physics from Purdue University. For the past two years he has worked as a research scientist for Kimberly-Clark Corporation, a Fortune 500 company in Oshkosh.

Walsh said he always enjoyed being a student and certainly enjoyed being a graduate instructor, but went into industry to see how education was applied in the private sector. His position at Northland is similar to the one previously held by Jim Dalager.

Reading, playing board games, camping and fishing are his favorite pastimes. His wife, Janya, is teaching one evening course in computer utilization at Northland.

Terry Wiseth is a 1973 graduate of Goodridge high school, 1975 graduate of Itasca Community College and 1978 graduate of Dana College with a degree in biology. He received his MS degree in biology from North Dakota State University in Fargo in 1987.

Wiseth has been teaching part-time in mathematics and algebra since 1987, also serving as head baseball coach and assistant football coach. His full-time load now includes classes in biology, anatomy, physiology, microbiology and environmental problems.

Terry's wife, the former Darlene Eliason of Thief River Falls, is a 1975 graduate of Lincoln high school and was in the first Registered Nurse program at Northland Community College. She works as an RN at Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls.

The Wiseths have five children: Stephanie, a seventh grader; Steven, a fifth grader; Stacy, a third grader; Sallie, beginning kindergarten; and Spencer, a two-year-old.

Terry said it was a goal for him and his wife to be back in Thief River Falls and close to relatives on both sides of the family. They enjoy gardening and yard work because it is one of the few things they have time to do in their busy schedule.

SPEAKING OF

Sherry LaCoursiere

. . . Hats, Clothes and Other Things

What more can I say about the hat hullabaloo? It seems to me that the hat problem at Lincoln has been surpassed by the loud cries defending self-expression and the right to array oneself in the attire of one's choice.

I think the majority of letter writers are right. Teens today have pressure enough put on them to "do this," "do that," "don't do this," "don't do that." Let them at least choose what they wear.

So what if it isn't what their parents would wear? (Could it be that this is the reason they wear the clothes they do?) I think that some of the parents had some pretty peculiar clothing styles, too.

I was a teen in the fifties. I remember black leather jackets, ducktail haircuts, pony tails and "poodle" hair styles for the girls, white "buck" and black and white saddle shoes, little belts on the back of skirts, sweaters, shoes, everything, dog collars worn on ankles, more "poodles" in the form of felt skirts worn over layers of net petticoats, charcoal gray and pink.

And what about the hippies in the 60's? Oh, just remember those charming bell-bottom pants, clunky shoes and bare midriffs, the peace symbols and flowers adorning everything from holes in the knees to holes in the rear end, the head bands and "John Lennon" glasses, and the long, straight hair. No shaven heads for those teens, were there?

Remember the Beetle years? Again, there were long locks on both sexes, beehive hairdos, Jackie Kennedy suits and pillbox hats, cute little Beatle-boy suits, pointy-toed shoes, short, short Twiggy mini skirts, ugly leisure suits (worn with very open shirts and hairy chests adorned with zodiac sign necklaces.)

The problem with some of those styles is that the parents decided they weren't too bad and took them over from the teens. Soon mothers and fathers and even grandparents were all decked out in bell-bottom pants, peace symbols and then leisure suits and mini skirts. Is it any wonder that the teens now have chosen a style that their parents wouldn't be caught dead wearing?

I have to admit, I have a teenaged son and he dresses like all the rest of them (strange). I'm not particularly found of the way he dresses (strange), but I let him alone. It seems to me that there is much ado about nothing as far as teen clothing styles. There are more important things for me to take a stand on than how he dresses in high school.

What purpose would it serve to make an issue out of the way he dresses, even though I feel it is (strange)? I can think of several other things I would much rather discuss with him that are much more important than what he is wearing on the outside.

There are inside things like drugs and alcohol to make issues of. There are things like AIDS and promiscuity to talk about. We should talk about this future and how diligently he works at his after-school job, whether he is honest, how he treats his boy friends and girl friends, and me, whether or not he respects his elders, whether he believes in God.

Somehow some of those subjects make the clothing and hat problem pretty trivial and unimportant. Anyway, having raised four other children through their teen years to adulthood, and noting that all of them dress somewhat sedately now, perhaps even conservatively, I think that this little problem with clothes and hats, too, shall pass. Once graduation has come and gone, I think that the (strange) clothes and hats will be left behind.

I think, I hope, that things other than clothing and head gear will become more important to my son very soon. However, I can't help but hope that I will see him exhibit the same conviction and fervor in the future, when he is faced with more important issues, that he is exhibiting about his clothing and hats now.

Making a brief stop at the Department of Natural Resources wildlife office in Thief River Falls, this adult peregrine falcon was enroute to the raptor center at the University of Minnesota St. Paul campus last week. The amazingly docile bird was found in a field east of Holt, apparently the victim of an accident—probably flying into an electrical transmission line—that caused a broken wing. It obligingly posed for photos before being placed in a box equipped with an aspen perch and sent via Mesaba Airlines to the raptor center, hopefully for repair of the wing.

tant that employers and health care providers work together to manage the cost and quality of health care."

In addition to Digi-Key, Arctco and American Crystal, other members of the coalition are the City of Fargo; Melroe Company; Snappy Air Distribution Products of Detroit Lakes; and the Dakotas and Western Minnesota Electrical Industry of Grand Forks.

Although not a member of the coalition, the North Dakota Public Employees Retirement system has agreed to share its health care claim statistics with the coalition.

The coalition recently analyzed health care costs and usage for approximately 50,000 people, including information on physician services for more than 500,000 procedures performed during 1992. Using that analysis as a base, the group plans to work with open collaborative discussions with care providers.

Working with the Alexander and Alexander Consulting Group, the coalition is basing its efforts on research and data, rather than assumptions about the quality and cost of care.

The coalition believes employers and health care providers can develop new ways to ensure access to quality care at affordable prices.

"Business understands the frustrations health care providers feel with administrative issues," Hardy said, "and we believe providers understand business' frustrations with rapidly increasing costs. Working as partners, we believe we can resolve some long-standing problems."

Jim Stengrim of Arctco and Mark Larson of Digi-Key represent their companies in the coalition.

IMPRESSIONS

Beth Johnson

Now that Fall has officially arrived, are you beginning to think of Winter??? Why, you might ask should Winter be on our minds? We have far too much of Winter as it is. Why can't we simply enjoy the fall of the year and leave Winter for when it actually arrives?

Well, its just fine to ignore the approaching winter. Falls should be enjoyed. We should marvel at the brilliant leaves of the trees. We should notice the beauty of the grasses by the side of the road. We should notice the brilliant fall colors of the flowers in our gardens. But, even as we enjoy Fall, the signs of Winter have begun.

The leaves of the trees are a sure sign that Winter is not too far away. When the leaves begin to fall and clutter our yards and cause us to rake them, we know that Winter can't be far off. We begin to do our outside chores to prepare for Winter at the first sign of the leaves falling. We rake, and wash windows, and clean gutters, and make those last minute repairs that really need doing before Winter sets in. We begin, actually, to prepare our nests for the long cold season.

The busyness of the squirrels are another good sign of Winter's impending arrival. All summer the squirrels are just a background part of our environment. We know they are there, but really don't pay too much attention to them. But, now that Fall is here and Winter is impending, the squirrels are very active. It seems as all the squirrels have come out of hiding and are running around with mouths full of food. They are storing up for the long winter months.

Looking upward to the sky, we see the clear, crisp-looking blue sky of Fall. But, in that sky, we are beginning to see the flocks of geese in the familiar V formation flying South. Another sign that Winter is not far off.

The farmers, too, are beginning to prepare for Winter, even as they are harvesting. On a recent drive through the countryside, I noted fields where corn had been harvested. Many of these fields had single rows of corn spread throughout the field still standing unharvested. These single row of corn are a way the farmer is planning for the Winter snows. They'll act as a windbreak and cause the snow to lie on the field instead of blowing.

The catalogs that come to our homes also remind us of impending Winter. They advertise cold weather clothing for all of us. They remind us to check our closets and see what the kids have outgrown this year. It seems that barely a year goes by when someone in our family doesn't need a new coat or boots or gloves or mittens or hats. Fall is a good time to prepare ourselves for keeping warm this Winter.

If we are looking for signs of Winter, though, all we need to do is turn on our radio or television and listen to the weather reports. It seems that rain mixed with snow is forecasted for later this week. Where did the warmth of Summer go? Did we ever really have Summer this year--or last year?? Can it be possible that snow is on the way?

Perhaps you are wondering why in the world am I thinking of Winter? We really don't like to think too hard about the longest season of our year until we are confronted by it. Well, at our household, we have a dog. This dog has caused me to be aware that Winter can't be far off. She's a long-haired dog, who only sheds once a year. She's shedding now as she is growing in her warm winter coat. But, it's not just the hair clumps that remind me that winter is not far off, it's also her insatiable hunger. Just as the squirrels are running around with full mouths, this dog of ours can't be satisfied. She is all of a sudden constantly hungry. As I'm ready to almost disown her, I remember that she's like this every year as Fall begins and Winter is impending. She's preparing her already too fat body for the long Winter. She's desperately trying to prepare her nest for a long winter of hibernation. The only problem is that she is generations removed from the wild and so has no need to fatten up for the Winter!!

Signs of Winter are all around us--from our family pets to the geese of the skies to the forecasts of snow from our weather reporters. Maybe we better take heed and prepare ourselves and our homes for winter. Then again, a beautiful Fall day is just right for relaxing. Winter will come whether or not we prepare. Enjoy the Fall while it's here--Winter's not far away!

Truck collides with moose

Minnesota State Patrol estimated over $1,000 damage done to a 1987 Chevrolet pickup driven by James Welinski, Little Falls, after his pickup collided with a moose three miles south of Plummer. Welinski was not injured in the accident. He was traveling north on Highway 59 when the accident happened. The state patrol received a report of the accident at 6:48 a.m. September 25.

Explosion in Goodridge under investigation

A metal fragment from an explosion outside the Goodridge hall early Saturday morning narrowly missed a Goodridge resident asleep in her bed.

Pennington county sheriff's department received a report Saturday morning that there had been an explosion in Goodridge. Upon investigation, the sheriff's department found two metal fragments each about five and one-half inches in length and one-half inch in diameter. One metal fragment had traveled about 150 yards and another about 200 yards. One fragment penetrated the Pennington County highway department building in Goodridge. Another metal fragment went through the wall of Lorraine McGinty's residence and broke the headboard of her bed. She was asleep in her bed at the time. Sheriff Gerald Moe said he believes the explosion occurred at about 1:10 a.m. during a party at the Goodridge hall.

"It was very fortunate that no one was injured," Moe said.

Evidence recovered during the investigation has been turned over to the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms. The incident is also being investigated by the Pennington county sheriff's department and Minnesota Bureau of Criminal Apprehension.

The Pennington County Sheriff's department realizes that there were a number of people in the area at the time and is asking that anyone with information to contact the Pennington County Sheriff's department at 681-6161.

Office supplies scam targets Sheriff's dept.

Even sheriff's departments are not immune from supply scams. Thursday morning, Red Lake county sheriff's department received a call in which someone attempted to sell printer ribbons at inflated prices to the sheriff's department.

She made it sound like there was a problem with our printer, said the dispatcher.

The dispatcher knew there wasn't anything wrong with the printer and asked if she had mixed up their county with Red Lake. "It happens all the time," said the dispatcher.

But the caller, who didn't identify herself, insisted there was a problem and asked what the serial number was to the printer. That's when the dispatcher turned the call over to the sheriff.

Sheriff Ray Morken attempted to get the caller to identify herself and give him her address, but she quickly hung up.

Red Lake county sheriff's department is advising residents and merchants in the area to be aware of people attempting to sell supply products, like printer ribbons and toner, at very inflated prices.

Goodridge blood drive a success

At the September 14 blood drive in Goodridge, 73 volunteers donated to give blood and 59 were accepted as donors. Seventeen were first-time donors.

Rhonda Ellefson, community relations representative of United Blood Services, stated, "This is a clear example of concerned people in the area responding unselfishly to a great need - the need for blood. You can all feel proud that these volunteer donors are your friends and neighbors."

The blood drive was sponsored by the Goodridge Lioness club and coordinated by Dorothy Wayne. Others who assisted in the drive were Myrtle Sunsdahl, Donna Horachek, Lorraine Stenvik, Marlys Drangstveit, Howard Sjulestad and the Goodridge Lions club. Duane Kjono and Audrey Rogalla recruited students to donate at the blood drive. Mr. Winge allowed faculty and students time off to donate. Space to hold the drive was provided by Faith Lutheran church.

United Blood Services is the area's nonprofit blood service provider. More than 700 units of blood are needed by patients in area hospitals every week.

Ellefson said, "On behalf of the patients who benefited, United Blood Services appreciates all the thoughtful people who volunteered to help others by giving of themselves."

INCIDENTAL BUSINESS ACTIVITIES

Your home, farm, or other personal liability policy may exclude coverage for liability exposures you may have as a result of business pursuits or incidental sales activities. A recent survey estimated that nearly 15 million Americans are working at home either as employees or as entrepreneurs.

Some of the more common businesses, operated out of the home, involve products such as cosmetic sales, household wares, seed corn sales, various types of data processing, and a host of others. Most policies also have restrictions with regard to baby-sitting on the premises.

If you have, or are planning to start a business at home, be sure you have adequate property and liability coverage. Don't make the assumption that you are covered, only to find later that coverage has been denied on a claim.

Stop at NORTHERN STATE AGENCY to discuss your coverages and find out adequate ways to fully take care of your needs. The office of NORTHERN STATE AGENCY is located in the Northern State Bank building. Office hours are 8:30-4:30 Mon.-Fri.; 8:30-6:00 Thurs.

Alexis Bengtson is the new Miss Middle River and enjoys spending what little free time she has playing popular music on the piano for her own enjoyment. A senior at Greenbush-Middle River high school, 17-year-old Alexis will compete in the Miss Marshall County Pageant in 1995. Her pageant talent number was a piano solo—"Fur Elise" by Beethoven.

Miss M.R. aspires to a career in medicine

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

For 17-year-old Alexis Bengtson of Middle River, her coronation as Miss Middle River Saturday evening is an exciting and pleasant interlude in her quest to become a doctor and specialize in the care of young children with major health problems.

"I know I'm looking at a lot of years in education and training," she said, "but I plan to attend either a private college or a school in the University of Minnesota system and then go on to the U of M medical school."

The daughter of Wallace "Pidgy" and Bonnie Bengtson of rural Middle River, Alexis is a senior at Greenbush-Middle River high school this year. In the second year of combined high school classes for Middle River and Greenbush, she continues her active participation in school and community activities.

She has been an active participant in the Future Leaders of America/Future Homemakers of America (FLA/FHA) since ninth grade when she was a regional officer. Last year she was a national committee member from Minnesota, peer education coordinator on the state level and was one of the top 12 candidates for national office in the organization. She is currently chapter vice president.

"Most of the speaking experience and leadership training I have received has been through the FLA/FHA," she said.

She is in her first year as a football cheerleader this fall and will be in her third year as a basketball cheerleader later this school year. She has been a member of the National Honor Society and the World Language Club (Spanish) since she was a sophomore.

Since seventh grade Alexis has participated in the spring musical either as a cast member or in the production crew. She is a member of the school concert choir and pops choir and also one of several piano accompanists for the choir. She took piano lessons for eight years until two years ago and has played flute in the school band for six years.

And she doesn't confine her activities to school. In the American Legion Junior Auxiliary she has held all the local unit and district offices and served in a department (state) office as sergeant-at-arms. This year she is serving as district historian.

She has been a member of the Cedar 4-H club in Marshall county, winning a state fair trip with a conservation poster and receiving a reserve championship on her citizenship project. She carried projects in the areas of needlework, cooking, child development and creative arts as well and served the club in the offices of treasurer and vice president.

At St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Middle River she is a member of the Catholic Youth Organization and assists as a substitute pianist on occasion.

Alexis likes to listen to music of all kinds as well as to make her own by playing popular songs on the piano for her own enjoyment. She likes the outdoors, including swimming and snowmobiling and also likes to watch movies and dance. And she still finds time to work part-time as a cook and waitress at the Rex Cafe in Middle River.

In addition to her parents, Alexis' family includes two younger brothers, Mike 15 and Christopher 4.

Her entry in the Miss Middle River scholarship pageant as one of seven girls out of 11 from Middle River in her senior class was looked on as a positive learning experience.

"I thought it would be a chance to meet new people and learn from them and from interviews and public participation," she said. "And I did it to represent the community which has been so supportive of me all along."

She said it was also something special to take part with a group of only Middle River girls again after being part of a larger class at school. "We feel welcome and that we belong in the school situation," she said, "but this was kind of special from the closeness of community."

Alexis won the evening gown and swimsuit divisions of the pageant and will compete in the Miss Marshall County Pageant in 1995. She expects the wait will be worthwhile as she gains more public experience and maturity and has time to plan and prepare for her future participation.

INCIDENTAL BUSINESS ACTIVITIES

Your home, farm, or other personal liability policy may exclude coverage for liability exposures you may have as a result of business pursuits or incidental sales activities. A recent survey estimated that nearly 15 million Americans are working at home either as employees or as entrepreneurs.

Some of the more common businesses, operated out of the home, involve products such as cosmetic sales, household wares, seed corn sales, various types of data processing, and a host of others. Most policies also have restrictions with regard to baby-sitting on the premises.

If you have, or are planning to start a business at home, be sure you have adequate property and liability coverage. Don't make the assumption that you are covered, only to find later that coverage has been denied on a claim.

Stop at NORTHERN STATE AGENCY to discuss your coverages and find out adequate ways to fully take care of your needs. The office of NORTHERN STATE AGENCY is located in the Northern State Bank building. Office hours are 8:30-4:30 Mon.-Fri.; 8:30-6:00 Thurs.

Goodridge blood drive a success

At the September 14 blood drive in Goodridge, 73 volunteers donated to give blood and 59 were accepted as donors. Seventeen were first-time donors.

Rhonda Ellefson, community relations representative of United Blood Services, stated, "This is a clear example of concerned people in the area responding unselfishly to a great need - the need for blood. You can all feel proud that these volunteer donors are your friends and neighbors."

The blood drive was sponsored by the Goodridge Lioness club and coordinated by Dorothy Wayne. Others who assisted in the drive were Myrtle Sunsdahl, Donna Horachek, Lorraine Stenvik, Marlys Drangstveit, Howard Sjulestad and the Goodridge Lions club. Duane Kjono and Audrey Rogalla recruited students to donate at the blood drive. Mr. Winge allowed faculty and students time off to donate. Space to hold the drive was provided by Faith Lutheran church.

United Blood Services is the area's nonprofit blood service provider. More than 700 units of blood are needed by patients in area hospitals every week.

Ellefson said, "On behalf of the patients who benefited, United Blood Services appreciates all the thoughtful people who volunteered to help others by giving of themselves."

Alexis Bengtson is the new Miss Middle River and enjoys spending what little free time she has playing popular music on the piano for her own enjoyment. A senior at Greenbush-Middle River high school, 17-year-old Alexis will compete in the Miss Marshall County Pageant in 1995. Her pageant talent number was a piano solo—"Fur Elise" by Beethoven.

Miss M.R. aspires to a career in medicine

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

For 17-year-old Alexis Bengtson of Middle River, her coronation as Miss Middle River Saturday evening is an exciting and pleasant interlude in her quest to become a doctor and specialize in the care of young children with major health problems.

"I know I'm looking at a lot of years in education and training," she said, "but I plan to attend either a private college or a school in the University of Minnesota system and then go on to the U of M medical school."

The daughter of Wallace "Pidgy" and Bonnie Bengtson of rural Middle River, Alexis is a senior at Greenbush-Middle River high school this year. In the second year of combined high school classes for Middle River and Greenbush, she continues her active participation in school and community activities.

She has been an active participant in the Future Leaders of America/Future Homemakers of America (FLA/FHA) since ninth grade when she was a regional officer. Last year she was a national committee member from Minnesota, peer education coordinator on the state level and was one of the top 12 candidates for national office in the organization. She is currently chapter vice president.

"Most of the speaking experience and leadership training I have received has been through the FLA/FHA," she said.

She is in her first year as a football cheerleader this fall and will be in her third year as a basketball cheerleader later this school year. She has been a member of the National Honor Society and the World Language Club (Spanish) since she was a sophomore.

Since seventh grade Alexis has participated in the spring musical either as a cast member or in the production crew. She is a member of the school concert choir and pops choir and also one of several piano accompanists for the choir. She took piano lessons for eight years until two years ago and has played flute in the school band for six years.

And she doesn't confine her activities to school. In the American Legion Junior Auxiliary she has held all the local unit and district offices and served in a department (state) office as sergeant-at-arms. This year she is serving as district historian.

She has been a member of the Cedar 4-H club in Marshall county, winning a state fair trip with a conservation poster and receiving a reserve championship on her citizenship project. She carried projects in the areas of needlework, cooking, child development and creative arts as well and served the club in the offices of treasurer and vice president.

At St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Middle River she is a member of the Catholic Youth Organization and assists as a substitute pianist on occasion.

Alexis likes to listen to music of all kinds as well as to make her own by playing popular songs on the piano for her own enjoyment. She likes the outdoors, including swimming and snowmobiling and also likes to watch movies and dance. And she still finds time to work part-time as a cook and waitress at the Rex Cafe in Middle River.

In addition to her parents, Alexis' family includes two younger brothers, Mike 15 and Christopher 4.

Her entry in the Miss Middle River scholarship pageant as one of seven girls out of 11 from Middle River in her senior class was looked on as a positive learning experience.

"I thought it would be a chance to meet new people and learn from them and from interviews and public participation," she said. "And I did it to represent the community which has been so supportive of me all along."

She said it was also something special to take part with a group of only Middle River girls again after being part of a larger class at school. "We feel welcome and that we belong in the school situation," she said, "but this was kind of special from the closeness of community."

Alexis won the evening gown and swimsuit divisions of the pageant and will compete in the Miss Marshall County Pageant in 1995. She expects the wait will be worthwhile as she gains more public experience and maturity and has time to plan and prepare for her future participation.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

Thief River Falls 56, Staples Area 36...

Prowlers out-score Cards

Scott Brekke had to be a little envious Friday watching Thief River Falls out-score Staples Area 56-36 in Section 8A high school football.

The Thief River Falls boys head basketball coach, Brekke joined the football staff this fall as an assistant under Jeff Mumm. His basketball teams scored fewer than 56 points 10 times last winter, averaging 54 points per game.

It's unlikely the football team will hit that figure for the year, but after being limited to single touchdowns in season-opening 41-6 and 39-6 losses to Detroit Lakes and Alexandria, respectively, the Prowlers have scored 97 points in their last two starts to even their record at 2-2.

The 92 points produced during the fast-break, run-and-gun style of football on display Friday was the highest combined point total ever recorded in history of the sport at Lincoln High School. The 56 points were the most scored by the Prowlers in a game since a 75-0 rout of Roseau in 1971.

It was a tough night defensively on both sides as the two teams combined for 891 yards worth of offense.

"I don't know what happened defensively," offered Mumm after the dust had settled and the exhausted officiating crew climbed back into their cars. "We'll have to look at the films and try to figure things out. It looked like we didn't do our assignments. Their quarterbacks hide the ball well. At times we didn't now where the ball was."

Actually, it should not have been all that difficult to locate the pigskin. Jeff Kobliska, a 6-0, 170-pound senior, was the Cardinals' main man, netting 232 yards on 26 rushing attempts, including first half off-tackle touchdown runs of 45 and 61 yards.

Staples defenders probably had a tougher time figuring out who the ball carriers were. Thief River Falls quarterback Jeff Twomey's deft ball handling had more than a little to do with a 457-yard ground game that included a 12-carry, 138-yard night for Tony Halsa, a 21-carry, 113-yard effort for Brian Howe, and a 3-carry, 99-yard performance by Steve Burslie. The only thing that stopped Burslie from giving the Prowlers three 100-yard runners was the end zone since he had 26 and 52-yard runs from scrimmage, along with a game-opening 80-yard kickoff return for a score.

"Our backs ran well, and Twomey does a nice job with the ball," said Mumm. "He does a good job carrying out the fakes. I'm sure Staples didn't always know where the ball was, either."

It looked like a blow-out at the start. Burslie's game-opening return; a 1-yard touchdown by Howe that capped a 10-play, 73-yard drive; and a 26-yard scoring scamper by Burslie following a blocked punt by Max Radniecki – his second in two games – provided the Prowlers with a 22-0 lead over the winless Cardinals at the end of the first quarter.

But Kobliska put some spark in the Staples attack with his long-range scoring runs on consecutive second quarter carries. Thief River Falls did answer Kobliska's 45-yard run with a 6-yard touchdown through the middle by Howe, but on the first play followed the ensuing kickoff, Kobliska once again went off left tackle virtually untouched on a 61-yard run that made it 28-12 at halftime.

It became really interesting when the Cardinals opened the second half with a 10-play, 65-yard touchdown drive that closed the gap to 28-20 when Jerry Kobliska ran through tacklers on a 16-yard touchdown run.

But the Prowlers' offense met the challenge with a 10-play scoring drive of its own that led to a 7-yard touchdown run by Howe.

The Cardinals again made it a one-touchdown spread when they used a midfield first down off a fake punt to set up a 52-yard touchdown run by Erik Kelly – again, untouched off tackle. A quarterback sneak by Ryan Hajek on the conversion made it 36-28 with 11:18 remaining.

It took the Prowlers all of 50 seconds to respond as Burslie took off behind a crushing lead block by pulling guard John Davis to duplicated Kelly's 52-yard touchdown run.

Halsa added a 24-yard touchdown run and linebacker Chris Ortloff took advantage of a rare ball-carrying opportunity in the offensive backfield to score on a 47-yard run to open up a 56-28 spread.

Staples added to the point parade with a final-drive passing attack that ended on a 10-yard Jeff Kobliska touchdown run with 34 seconds left.

"Maybe it came too easy at the start," wondered Mumm. "We got that touchdown right away, and I think the kids maybe thought it was going to be easy. It's hard to tell high school kids that it can still be a game, but you knew Staples wasn't going to quit. Their kids did a nice job coming back and making a game of it."

Svir leads NCC past Mesabi

A big day by a little quarterback lifted Northland to a 25-6 Saturday afternoon win over Mesabi 25-6 in a Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division football game at Virginia.

Svir, a 5-9, 160-pound freshman from Thief River Falls, carried 20 times for 128 yards and had a hand in all four Northland touchdowns as the Pioneers went to 2-0 in the MCCC and 2-1 overall. Svir used his speed to score on runs of 15 and 43 yards, caught an 80-yard pass from Greg Lien, and threw a 31-yard touchdown pass to Ronnie Anderson.

"We played our best football game of the year," pointed out Northland coach Gene Klinke. "Everything clicked. I figured we could win the game, but I was worried heading over there. Mesabi has a very, very big football team. I thought we were big until we saw them. They're big, but they're not very fast. And Jason used his speed to beat them. We got him outside, and he just outran people."

The Pioneers finished with a 401-98 advantage in offensive yards.

"Defensively we shut them down," said Klinke. "Our speed and quickness, especially at linebacker and at the ends, caused them all kinds of problems."

Northland had a 12-0 first quarter lead, maintained an 18-6 halftime advantage and opened up a 25-6 third quarter spread.

Paul Mason added 48 yards to the Northland ground game on 15 carries, while Kenny Barker netted 33 yards on six attempts.

Svir was 3-for-7 passing for 59 yards. Lien was 2-for-2.

"We played a real solid football game," said Klinke. "We've improved each week. Hopefully that will continue."

Northland will be on the road again Saturday with a 1:30 p.m. game at Itasca. The Vikings are coming off a 33-12 win over the University of Minnesota-Crookston.

Turnovers prove costly in Blue Devils' setback

Argyle turned Grygla/Goodridge mistakes into points Friday as the Eagles beat the Blue Devils 28-6 in Top of the State Conference Nine Man high school football at Goodridge.

A blocked punt, a fumbled snap and a fumbled punt on the part of the Blue Devils were all converted into Argyle touchdowns.

Grygla/Goodridge used the same formula to score the final points of the game, turning a dropped punt by the Eagles into an 8-yard Jamie Lunsetter touchdown run.

"It wasn't so good," noted Grygla/Goodridge coach Darwin Hagen. "It was a game of turnovers – they just didn't have as many as we did. They played a little more aggressively than we did, forcing some of the turnovers."

The Blue Devils were held to 147 yards of offense – 130 on 42 rushing attempts and a 4-for-10, 17-yard passing night. Jason Grandstrand, a 1,000-yard runner last fall, was limited to 68 yards on 17 carries.

Ryan Rivard scored on runs of 6, 6 and 7 yards for the Eagles.

Defensively, Eldon Quam was in on 14 tackles to lead the Blue Devils.

Grygla/Goodridge, 1-2, will be in East Grand Forks Friday for a 7:30 p.m. game against Sacred Heart.

An appearance at the eight-team Rocori Invitational high school volleyball tournament Saturday produced a 1-3 showing and sixth place finish for Thief River Falls.

The Prowlers beat Pierz, but lost to Rocori, Cretin-Derham Hall and Brainerd as their overall season record dipped to 6-6.

Host Rocori stopped Thief River Falls 15-12, 15-2 in Round 1.

"We didn't show up to play," said Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson.

The Prowlers rebounded with a 7-15, 15-4, 15-11 victory over Pierz.

"The first game was slow, a carry-over from the Rocori match," noted Anderson. "But the girls really started to play in the second and third games."

Cretin-Derham Hall swept Thief River Falls 15-8, 15-4 in Round 3.

"We played better than what the scores showed," explained Anderson. "We did a lot of good things when we weren't serving."

RLCC shut down in 28-0 loss at Hawley

Red Lake County Central didn't fare well against unbeaten Valley Plains Conference foe Hawley Friday, losing a first-ever high school football match-up against the Nuggets, 28-0.

The setback dropped the Mustangs to 1-3 in their first-year of Class C competition. But their two previous losses were both by one-touchdown margins.

"It was a combination of them playing very well, and us not playing very well," reported Red Lake County Central coach Gary Brantl. "First three games were good, close football games; we were competitive. Not this time."

The Mustangs produced just 54 yards worth of offense.

"Defensively we didn't play too bad," noted Brantl, "but we couldn't do a thing offensively. We wound up playing a lot of defense, and it showed in the second half. We got tired."

Shannon Willett led the Mustangs' defense with 11 tackles and a fumble recovery. Adam Lundeen was in on nine tackles, Chad Pahlen eight, Ryan Salberg and Chad Rosten seven each.

Willett also had a strong night as a kicker, averaging 42 yards on seven punts.

Nordics beat Bears 3-1

North Border Conference high school volleyball title contenders met in Baudette Saturday afternoon, where Marshall County Central remained unbeaten with a 15-6, 9-15, 15-9, 15-10 decision over host Lake of the Woods.

"Both teams played pretty well," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Mark Jorgenson. "You made a mistake and you paid for it. You had to play some good defense, and we were able to do that at critical times during the match."

The Nordics wrapped it up by overcoming a 10-5 deficit in Game 4.

Sara Lokstad turned in a strong all-around performance offensively and defensively, noted Jorgenson. Tricia Pederson had a strong showing at the net, he said, with Missy Lund coming off the bench to shore up the Nordics' back row defense.

Marshall County Central took a 10-0 record into a Tuesday match against Badger/Greenbush-Middle River. The Nordics will be at the Thief River Falls Invitational Saturday.

Tri-County over B/G-Middle River...

Gators lose 3-0 match

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River turned in a strong first-game effort, but when that failed to produce a win, the Gators' play faltered and they wound up dropping a 3-0 high school volleyball match to Tri-County in Karlstad Monday.

The Wildcats won 15-13, 15-7, 15-6, dropping the Gators to 4-7 for the year.

"We played with a lot of intensity in the first game," said Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Gwen Borgen.

Krissi Super had a strong match at outside hitter, noted Borgen, and Angie Berger turned in a solid effort on back-row defense.

The Gators, who had a Tuesday match at Marshall County Central, will be at the Thief River Falls Invitational Saturday.

Hit by a Staples defender, Thief River Falls quarterback Jeff Twomey tossed an option pitch to halfback Lee Lund on a two-point conversion attempt during the first quarter of Friday's high school football game at Prowler Field. The Cardinals stopped the play short of the goal line, but the Prowlers rolled to a 56-36 win.

Brainerd wins tennis tournament

Brainerd won 18 of 21 matches Saturday to win its own invitational girls high school tennis tournament.

The Warriors' tournament-best 18-3 record in 1-through-four singles and 1-through-3 doubles during the four-team format included wins over Champlin Park 7-0, Hastings 7-0 and Thief River Falls 4-3.

Hastings wound up second at 10-11, followed by Thief River Falls with a 9-12 showing and Champlin Park 5-16.

Individually, the Prowlers' had first place finishes at all three doubles.

"We tinkered with the doubles line-up and the results were good," reported Thief River Falls coach Jay Forney. "Singles played well, too. It was a good challenge for them. They played better than the scores would indicate."

Thief River Falls closes out its 1993 regular season this week, following a Tuesday appearance at the annual Northwest Tournament (this year held in East Grand Forks) with a Thursday home quadrangular featuring the Prowlers, East Grand Forks, Roseau, and Park Rapids.

Goose Hunting

Goose harvest regulations will be tightened in some areas of western Minnesota this year in order to protect the Eastern Prairie Population of Canada geese that breed in Manitoba and migrate through Manitoba, Minnesota, Iowa, and into Missouri.

Regulations in the rest of the Minnesota will remain relatively liberal, according to the Department of Natural Resources, in order to control giant Canada geese whose populations are thriving in Minnesota and other parts of the Midwest.

Breeding population of Eastern Prairie Population geese fell from 270,000 to 212,000 between 1992 and 1993, according to DNR Waterfowl Specialist Jeff Lawrence. As a result, goose hunting seasons in areas where these birds migrate will be tightened to reduce harvest and allow for population increase.

"The reason for the decline in the Eastern Prairie Population is two years of back-to-back, moderately poor production," Lawrence said. "These geese, which nest alone the coast of Hudson Bay, are more susceptible to late springs and reduced production than geese that nest, for example, in Minnesota."

While this year's Eastern Prairie Population was low to begin with, breeders had large clutch sizes and good nest success, meaning there will be many young birds in the fall flight, according to Lawrence. This should provide good hunting despite the more restrictive seasons, he said.

In the Lac qui parle Zone, a 30-day season and a one bird daily limit will be in effect, with a quota of 4,000 geese. In the West Central Zone, there will be a 30-day season and one-bird limit. The seasons will be split in the Lac qui parle and West Central zones. The new West and Northwest zones will have 40-day seasons and one-bird limits.

Meanwhile, geese originating in Minnesota and in Manitoba's Interlake Region are producing good numbers of birds, and will sustain more hunting pressure along their shorter migration routes. Hence, a 70-day season with a two-bird limit will be in effect for the Southeast Zone and a 50-day season with a two-bird limit will be available in the rest of the state.

Additionally, a number of localized special goose hunts will be held in September and December to prevent overpopulation and subsequent human-wildlife conflicts. The DNR continues to evaluate these hunts as an effective means of reducing the state's expanding flocks of resident giant Canada geese.

Whooping Crane Migration

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service expects about 145 endangered whooping cranes, including 15 to 20 young, to migrate south this September from their Canadian nesting grounds at Wood Buffalo National Park in the Northwest Territories. They will spend the winter at and near the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge (NWR) on the Texas Gulf Coast north of Corpus Christi. Fifteen to 20 chicks are expected to survive and arrive at the Texas wintering grounds.

Last fall 136 birds, including 15 young, made it to Aransas NWR and there were no losses during winter. In April the cranes migrated north to Canada, a 2,500-mile journey from the central Gulf Coast of Texas to their nesting grounds in the Northwest Territories. Habitat conditions were only fair this year, so chick survival may be similar to that of 1992, according to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Forty-three pairs nested in Canada and 34 young were present in June.

Canadian whoppers begin their journey to the Texas coast in September and October. The several-week journey takes them through Alberta and Saskatchewan and U.S. Midwest.

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources officials ask anyone seeing a whooping crane this fall to report the time, place, and other details of the sighting to local wildlife officials. Adult whooping cranes are white with black wingtips and a red forehead, according to DNR Nongame Wildlife Program Supervisor Carrol Henderson. In flight, the bird's long neck is held straight forward, and long black legs extend beyond the tail. The adult's wingspan may be more than 7 feet, and when standing the whooping crane may be as tall as 5 feet. Juveniles have white and rusty brown body feathers and black wingtips.

"The whooping crane is fully protected under the Endangered Species Act," Henderson said. "Hunters, photographers, farmers, and others are cautioned not to shoot or unduly disturb these birds. A whooper could easily be frightened into wires and other obstacles, or be disturbed from an important food and roosting site, especially critical during migration," Henderson said. "When there are only a few of the species left, each of us must make a sincere effort to ensure its survival."

Department of Natural Resources personnel from the Detroit Lakes area were in Thief River Falls last week to stock walleye fingerlings in the Thief Lake River. Marc Olson held the tube as partner Buck Cummings opened the hatch and flushed the fish out of the transporting tank at the boat landing near Chief Red Robe Park. They released some 1,350 fish – 150 pounds at nine fish per pound. The fish, raised in ponds near Hawley, are usually stocked the first part of September. It's estimated about half of the fish will survive their first year.

DNR presents tips for goose hunters

Canada goose hunting is the fastest growing hunting sport in Minnesota. The state's Canada goose harvest is up to 127,000 from 71,000 birds 10 years ago. Minnesota now harvests more geese than any state in the country.

Many hunters new to the sport are unaccustomed to firing at such a big bird. More familiar with shooting ducks, they often fire with too light a load at geese too far away. To improve hunters' effectiveness and reduce the crippling of geese caused by ill-placed shots, the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources has begun teaching hunters how to shoot more effectively. Through a new brochure, "Get Your Goose," and seminars held each fall throughout the state, hunters are learning how to improve their odds of bagging a honker.

Although it's a big bird, a goose has a relatively small vital zone. The total area in which pellets will kill a goose is just one-tenth the bird's total size. To ensure they hit the vital zone with enough power waterfowl hunters need to pattern their guns and find the correct loads.

Most experts say the best loads for geese are sizes 1, BB, BBB, or T steel shot. For most hunting situations, BB or BBB shot is the most effective shot size. Both have plenty of pellets, but still enough energy to bring down a goose. Guns are usually 10- or 12- gauge. Because steel shoots tighter patterns than lead does, the best chokes for geese are modified and improved modified. However, each shotgun choke is unique, which is why hunters should pattern their particular guns.

To test loads, place a 40- by 40-inch-square sheet of paper at the same distance as flying geese that will be shot at. (For most hunters and situations, that's about 30 to 50 yards). Fire at an aiming point you mark on the paper. Do this on five sheets. Then, on each sheet, draw a 30-inch diameter circle around the densest pattern area on each sheet and count the pellets that hit inside the circle. This is the "pattern density." Try different loads and chokes until one is found that puts enough pellets (from 35 for heavier loads up to 55 for lighter loads) into the circle, which ensures that enough will hit the goose's vital zone for a clean kill.

Another common mistake of beginning hunters is to shoot at geese flying out of range (skybusting). This can cripple birds, flare off approaching geese, and may cause approaching flocks to fly even higher. Some exceptional shooters have the skill to occasionally drop a bird from the stratosphere, but for most hunters, a kill at over 60 yards is just dumb luck and poor sportsmanship.

A good rule of thumb recommended by goose guides is this: If the end of your gun barrel covers more than half the bird, it is beyond 45 yards and too far away for a clean kill.

It takes practice to find the correct lead for geese. The big birds have slow wing beats that make them appear to be lumbering along. But actually, geese move as fast as a mallard. Lead accordingly.

What's New For 1993

Conservation officers urge Minnesota's 600,000 hunters to familiarize themselves with the hunting regulations before they set out for the field, the lake, or the woods.

There are several major changes in effect this season:

- Red will be phased out as a legal color during deer season beginning 1994 – only blaze orange or camo-blaze will be allowed.
- Minnesota youth under 16 years of age may take anterless deer without a permit this year.
- Archery bear hunters may carry a handgun legal for big game.
- Disability crossbow permits are now valid for bear.
- More options are available for how game birds may be legally transported.
- Ducks, geese and mergansers must be transported with fully feathered heads and a fully feathered wing attached.
- Five days before the season, hunters may possess and sight-in their deer firearms.

DNR Enforcement Division Director Leo Haseman said it is essential that hunters read the hunting regulations for more details on these changes and other regulations. The 1993 Hunting and Trapping Regulations are available wherever licenses are sold.

Safety issues continue to top the list of concerns as hunters head for their favorite spots. "Firearms safety training is required of all hunters born after 1979," Haseman noted. "Youth must meet all license and firearms safety requirements. Education, safety and ethics add up to an experience Minnesota hunters prize."

Deer Population

Deer counts and population goals are determined through computer modeling, a process the Department of Natural Resources began in the late 1970s. Until 1989, wildlife biologists also used deer pellet counts in forested areas as a trend indicator to validate the computer modeling results. The annual registered buck harvest has replaced pellet counts as the trend indicator.

For the firearms deer hunt, the state is divided into four zones, which are further subdivided into anterless permit areas. Goals are established for deer populations in each of the 113 permit areas in the state. Deer managers estimate deer numbers and set anterless deer permit quotas for each area based upon the established population goals. In addition, Minnesota has either-sex archery and muzzleloader hunts.

A very familiar sight in northwestern Minnesota this fall has been the burning of small grain crops to comply with government programs. This fire was burning Friday northwest of Thief River Falls. Burning is one of the accepted methods of destroying a crop under the 0-92 program. Extremely wet field conditions and infection of much of the wheat crop with scab have combined to reduce the value of the crop and the incentive to harvest it.

State suspends gambling permit at Rusty Nail in TRF

Minnesota Lawful Gambling Control Board has suspended for one year, the premises permit for lawful gambling at the Rusty Nail in Thief River Falls. The order by the board, which followed an administrative law hearing and a hearing before the board, was dated September 21, and prevents Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association (TRFAHA) from conducting legal gambling at the bar.

Kurt Marben, attorney for TRFAHA, said TRFAHA plans to appeal the decision to the Court of Appeals. It is TRFAHA's contention that the regulation the Lawful Gambling Control board relies on is unconstitutional because it was intended to punish the bar but instead penalizes the charity. Although the charity was unable to prevent the illegal gambling and had no knowledge of it, the law treats them the same as the bar.

Findings of Fact accumulated during the administrative hearing on June 17, 1993, indicate that special agents for the Gambling Enforcement Division department of public safety, entered the Rusty Nail on January 25, for the purpose of investigating whether an illegal lottery was being conducted. According to testimony given by one of the special agents, he was able to purchase a spot on a sports board at the bar. However, when he returned with a search warrant on January 29, at about 11:30 a.m., he and the other officers with him could not find a sports board and they left the bar without taking any evidence or making any arrests. The Rusty Nail was one of several bars being investigated in the area at that time.

One of the issues argued during the administrative law hearing and later at the hearing before the board was that there was an absence of evidence proving that an illegal game of chance had taken place at the bar. The board, however, found the special agent's testimony credible and that there was no testimony contrary to the statements made by the agent in the record.

Action taken by the board will have a significant impact on the TRFAHA as it is licensed to conduct lawful gambling at the Rusty Nail. According to the findings of fact, during the last hockey season, from approximately September 1992 through April 1993, TRFAHA spent approximately $87,000 on its youth hockey program. There are about 230 children in the program from ages 4 to 14 and the association provides them with equipment, coaches, ice time, games, tournaments, scheduling and everything necessary for a youth hockey program.

Pre-tax dollars collected through lawful gambling activity at the Rusty Nail from June of 1992 to April of 1993 totaled $94,493. Lawful gambling at the Rusty Nail produced 74.6 per cent of TRFAHA's after-tax profits of $57,457.

The administrative law judge concluded that a lottery is defined as stated in Minnesota Statute second 609.75, subdivision 1(a), in relevant part: "A lottery is a plan which provides for the distribution of money, property or other reward or benefit to persons selected by chance from among participants some or all of whom have given a consideration for the chance of being selected. . . ." The law judge found that the sports board described by the special agent met the three essential elements: a prize, selection of winners by chance, and consideration given by some or all of the participants for the chance to obtain a prize.

The administrative law judge also concluded that the discipline for a violation was suspension of a premises permit when the proposed site is a site where illegal gambling has occurred within the last 12 months.

As a result, the administrative law judge recommended to the Lawful Gambling Control Board that it suspend for one year the premises permit of TRFAHA.

In his memorandum to his findings of fact and conclusions, the administrative law judge states that "The Rusty Nail will be prohibited by the rules from having lawful gambling for one year and, correspondingly, Licensee (TRFAHA) cannot conduct lawful gambling there for a year. The loss to Licensee (TRFAHA) is the result of the Rusty Nail's illegal conduct."

With a few minor corrections to the record, the Lawful Gambling Control Board accepted and adopted the findings and conclusions of the administrative law judge. According to the order from the gambling board, the suspension is for a period of one year from the date of the order, which is September 21, 1993. As of the order, TRFAHA is unable to conduct lawful gambling at the bar. Marben said he has asked for a stay of the order because TRFAHA has decided to appeal the decision. If they don't get the stay, Marben said they will reevaluate whether to appeal the decision of the gambling control board because it will take about seven months for the appeal.

DARE program instruction dates set by board

Instruction of Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) will begin in January of 1994. Dates for the program, now entering its third year in Pennington county, were set at a meeting at the law enforcement center in Thief River Falls on Thursday.

DARE, a 17-week drug education and prevention course, was founded in 1983 by the Los Angeles Police department and the Los Angeles Unified School District. The program went nation-wide in 1987. Specially trained police officers teach the class which helps teach children to develop positive attitudes and behavior. It gives them the self-confidence, sense of self-worth and the will power they need to resist drugs and alcohol. The course being taught in schools in Pennington county is being taught to students who will be exiting elementary school and entering a middle or junior high school.

Prior to the implementation of DARE in Thief River Falls, a four-week course called Counteract was being taught to fifth grade students in Thief River Falls. Last year, DARE and Counteract board members began working together under one board.

Last year, the board for DARE and Counteract were faced with a difficult challenge. To bring the DARE program to students exiting elementary school, the program had to be taught to fifth graders. That mean the two instructors Police Officer Craig Mattson and Sheriff's Deputy Ray Kuznia, had to teach the program to fifth and sixth graders during the same period of time so that one class was not missed. This year, the program will focus on the 186 students in fifth grade classes at Knox, Washington, Northrup elementary schools and St. Bernard's. An additional 15 sixth grade students at Goodridge brings the total number of students receiving DARE instruction to 201.

A parents night for parents of students participating in the DARE program will be held sometime in the fourth or fifth week of instruction. Parents will be notified of the specific date and time for the meeting.

Counteract Teacher, Police Officer Scott Maslowski, is expected to begin his two week instruction in February. Last year, Maslowski taught the course in two weeks instead of four weeks. He accomplished this by packing two one-hour sessions into each week. Although teachers expressed their surprise and respect for Maslowski because he was able to keep the attention of Fourth graders focused on the Counteract program for a whole hour, they agreed that the shortened version was more effective. The only change they wanted to see for this year was to conduct the session any other time than between Thanksgiving and Christmas. They felt that period of time was too busy for students and teachers.

Board members learned Thursday that Minnesota had begun the process of expanding the DARE program. Some of the DARE officers in Minnesota are now being trained to conduct a junior high program that would affect seventh and eighth grade students. No decision was made as to whether the DARE program would be expanded to include seventh or eighth grade students in Pennington county. The issue, however, will be discussed at future meetings.

One of the board members suggested that officers conduct follow up sessions. She suggested that officer pick a time of year to visit classes of students who have already gone through the program to not only remind them of the goals of DARE but find out if they have encountered any of the pressures they talked about during the class.

Major contributions supporting Counteract and DARE this year have been made by Pennington County, Thief River Falls, the Elks club, Amoco 24, United Way, the Hartz Foundation and the VFW Club.

Whole Wheat BIBLE STUDY

We all must fulfill Scripture

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

All true disciples of Jesus Christ are called upon by God to fulfill the Scriptures that pertain to righteousness (Matt. 5:16; Col. 3:17). True disciples of Jesus Christ are performers of God's word. They act on it, keep it and do it until, as happy slaves of Jesus Christ, they are doing God's Will from the heart (Eph. 6:6). They know God's Will is anything they do that is pleasing to Him (1 John 3:22). They know studying the Bible is pleasing to God because it allows God to speak to them through His handbook of life.

Jesus Christ never says, "I command you to give a luncheon for the poor and the needy." But He does say, "When you give a luncheon, invite the poor and the needy and those who don't have the means to pay you back, and great will be your reward at the resurrection of the righteous" (Luke 14:13-14).

True disciples feel duty-bound to serve their Lord by serving others. Like Jesus Christ, their example, they feel they must be doing their Father's business daily, which is doing good (Acts 10:38; John 4:34; 10:37-38). They live to do only good.

True disciples are often persecuted for the sake of righteousness but they still continue to practice righteousness, even when it means suffering for it (Matt. 5:10). Abuse them, use them, do them harm, and they will continue to practice righteousness. Why? They are learning obedience to God by the things they suffer (Heb. 5:8-9). They know they'll only have to suffer a little in comparison to the joy coming in the future (1 Peter 5:10).

They love and serve the unlovable. They do good to their enemies. They turn the other cheek. You might be able to wear them down, but you cannot keep them down. That is because they do not operate on their own strength, but with the strength God gives them (1 Peter 4:11). They suffer for righteousness, as Jesus Christ suffered for righteousness, in order that they may be glorified with Him (Rom. 8:17; 1 Peter 4:1).

The truth is, everyone lives to fulfill Scripture. There are Scriptures for the wicked as well as for the righteous. Even those who turn away will be written down by the Lord (Jer. 17:13). Just as the wicked are rewarded with evil by God for the wrong they have done, how much more are the righteous rewarded with blessings for their good deeds (Prov. 11:31). If it is with difficulty that those who practice righteousness are saved, what will become of those who refuse to put their natures to death and overcome evil by doing good (Psalm 34:14; 37:1-2, 27; 1 Peter 3:10-11; 4:18; Rom. 12:21; Rev. 2:26)? Let's be sheep so we won't receive the reward of the goats and so we can experience the peace that surpasses all human comprehension (Matt. 25:33-46; Phil. 4:7).

They spent a couple of days at their home in Sumner and left on Friday for Pasco, WA. Friday evening they enjoyed a Pasta dinner at the home of Therese's brother, Lawrence and his wife, Mary Fortiers. On Saturday they attended a golden anniversary Mass at St. Edwards church, and a reception at the KC Hall in Pasco, in honor of Lawrence and Mary, hosted by their children, Tom Fortier and David and Ann Marie Fortier Burns and their children. Therese and Virgil enjoyed meeting many friends of her brother and sister-in-law and visited with the many relatives who attended. On Sunday they picnicked at Riverside Park, on the banks of the Columbia River with the many relatives who had come for the weekend. That evening they went to Yakima, WA, staying at the Jim and Carol Grothe home. The next day they were joined by Jim and Dora Polcich and Dorothy Fortier at the Gaylord Grothes home. Gaylord and his wife, Elva, raise Llamas and it was interesting to walk among them in the pens. The Llamas are very gentle animals so we were able to walk up to them and pet them. Gaylord has built a cart that he uses to have the Llamas pull his grandchildren around the area. It was very hot that day so it was more comfortable sitting in their air conditioned enclosed patio, where they all admired Elva's many plants. Their few acres are all on irrigated land which was very interesting to see. Later that afternoon Randy, Lori, Therese and Virgil went back to Sumner by way of White Pass, the mountains were beautiful and very lush as they have had ample rain this year. On Wednesday Lori, Therese and Virgil went on a Cruise of Puget Sound and it was very interesting to see the large docks and the ships being loaded. We watched a couple of tugs tow a large ocean going vessel, all loaded and bound for Korea, to leave the dock and get headed for open water - it is amazing that those small tugs can move such a large, loaded freighter. On Friday Randy, Virgil and Therese went through the "Northwest Trek," wildlife area where they had many species of wildlife native to the Northwest area, roaming in their natural habitat. They rode a tram through the area, coming very close to some of the animals. On Saturday they attended the wedding of Kelly Riesenaur (Therese's great-niece) and Scot Vidican at St. Mary Magdalene church, a small chapel located on Puget Sound that is used mostly for weddings and other special occasions. The reception was held at the Everet Yacht Club, a beautiful setting on the Sound. On Sunday they met the members of the Grothe family and some friends for breakfast before leaving Everet. On the way to Sumner they stopped at a Winery and a few garage sales in an area where new homes were being built. That evening Randy and Virgil attended the football game at the Kingdome between the LA Raiders and the Seattle Sea Hawks. On Monday they flew back to Minneapolis where their daughter, Deb Perreault, met them at the airport. They all spent the night at Penny and Dick Kalars home. Gen, Mitch and Myah Hale drove out that evening to visit with them. Virgil and Therese returned home on Tuesday on time to cover their garden before the frost that night.

On Wednesday Virgil and Therese Radniecki, Roxanne, Fred and Freddie Sorensen attended the kick-off potluck supper for St. Joseph's school in Red Lake Falls. After supper they toured the school stopping at their grandson, Freddy Sorensen's classroom. They also visited with Deb Amiot in her classroom.

After a week of nice weather everyone seems to have prospects of saving some of their crops and cleaning up their basements which have dried up. It is hard to believe that we got as much rain as we did after years of dry weather. If anyone had canned goods that got wet, remember rust keeps on working even when dried.

Clear The Smoke Screen

Don't get hooked on tobacco. Get hooked on health!

What is tobacco?

Tobacco is a plant whose leaves are dried and processed into cigarettes, cigars, pipe tobacco, chewing tobacco and snuff. Tobacco can be smoked, chewed, sucked or inhaled. Tobacco contains thousands of poisonous chemicals, probably the most dangerous is nicotine.

What is nicotine?

Nicotine is the addictive, stimulant drug found in tobacco. When a person smokes a cigarette, cigar or pipe, the nicotine contained in the smoke enters the lungs and passes through the cell lining into the bloodstream. When smokeless tobacco is chewed or sucked, the nicotine in the tobacco juice is absorbed through the membranes in the mouth. It also mixes with saliva and travels to the stomach and intestines and then enters the bloodstream. Once in the bloodstream, nicotine quickly reaches the brain.

What are the short-term effects of nicotine?

After only a few puffs of a cigarette, nicotine quickly reaches the brain and stimulates the nervous system. Nicotine causes the heart to beat faster and makes it more difficult for the lungs, stomach and kidneys to do their jobs efficiently.

What are the long-term effects of nicotine?

The damage begins with the first cigarette or use of smokeless tobacco. Continued use of tobacco can cause serious illness and death. Heart attacks, strokes, lung diseases (bronchitis, emphysema, lung cancer), oral cancer and many other cancers have been linked directly to tobacco. Serious lung diseases are 10 times more likely to occur in those who smoke. Smokeless tobacco causes fast-spreading cancers of the mouth, larynx and esophagus, which have killed people in their teens and twenties.

Nicotine harms more than just the smoker himself. Women who smoke during pregnancy increase the chances of low birth weights, premature births, and infant deaths. Even non-smokers can have health problems if exposed to the smoke of others.

How do people become addicted to nicotine?

People underestimate the addictive power of nicotine. The body can become "hooked" in a very short time. A person often craves nicotine and feels nervous if he stops using tobacco, making it difficult to quit. Once hooked, most people wish they had never used tobacco and had listened to the warnings. Fortunately, it is possible to quit using tobacco. Quitting isn't easy and it takes a strong commitment, but having a healthy body is worth the effort.

Why do young people use tobacco?

Young people often start using tobacco in middle or junior high to make them feel more grown-up or look "cool." Much feel pressured by their friends to use tobacco to "fit in" and be a part of the crowd. Some have parents who smoke and think it isn't risky.

Even though young people have heard about the dangers of tobacco, many think they will live forever and don't have to worry about illness or death. The fact is, smoking is one of the most preventable causes of cancer and other diseases that can result in an early death. Cigarettes, like alcohol, are gateway drugs that can lead to the abuse of other illegal substances.

Is nicotine illegal?

Nicotine is not illegal, but the purchase of tobacco products is illegal for young people in most states. Although legal, cigarettes, chewing tobacco and other tobacco products kill a significant number of the people who use them.

What can smart people do instead of using tobacco?

Running...hiking...sports...aerobics...chewing sugarless gum...eating healthy snacks...riding a bicycle...dancing...taking care of a pet...visiting sick people...calling your best friend for a long chat. Get hooked on health!

The Times' Editorial Opinion

The Times
Thief River Falls, Minnesota

John P. Mattson, publisher
Marvin Lundin, editor
David Hill, associate editor

Editorial opinion published on this page, whether locally written or re-printed from other sources is intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. Opinions expressed by the editor are his own and not necessarily those of other staff members. Opinions expressed in items from other publications may be contradictory to the editor's own views but are offered for their general interest.

Final Chapter Today On LHS No Hat Policy

Today's comments on the no hat policy at Lincoln high school will be the final ones on that subject published in The Times. With two weeks to think about the policy and formulate opinions and letters, the students and other members of the public should have had sufficient time to address the subject and make their thoughts known.

As we stated in last Wednesday's edition of The Times, the discussion will be closed with this issue and no more letters will be accepted on that subject. But we appreciated the flurry of discussion on a subject that apparently stirred some community interest and we certainly don't want to discourage letters on other topics of concern to our readers.

So keep those letters coming, but let the hat and bandana flap rest for awhile. Thanks for your cooperation.

It's Easy To Lose Interest In Saving

While President Clinton claims that low interest rates are a sign that his economic program is working, it is a fact that what may be good for some people can be economically disastrous for others. And in this case the "others" are mostly the elderly who have been judicious savers throughout their lives with the expectation that interest earnings would provide a substantial part of their subsistence in their declining years.

"The flip-side to declining rates has received scant, if any, attention from the government," writes Guy Murdoch, managing editor of "Consumers' Research" magazine. "But it has a direct impact on many people, such as retirees, who rely on interest to supplement their income.... When rates drop—whether by government fiat or market forces—earnings on interest-bearing investments also drop."

As Murdoch points out, low interest rates resulted in a 41 per cent drop in the average annual yield of a taxable money market fund in 1992. Interest rates on a three-month certificate of deposit dropped an average of 37 per cent last year.

"The net result of lower interest rates," states Lacy Hunt, chief economist for HSB Holdings, "is a redistribution of income, with borrowers benefitting at the expense of savers."

In his article, Murdoch uses as an example a retiree who sells a house for $100,000 and puts the proceeds in a three-month CD. In 1991 the interest annually would have been about $5,830. In 1992, the earnings would have been only $3,680—a drop of $2,150.

Murdoch points out that low returns on interest-bearing accounts present a risk to those who invest money there in the belief that such accounts are the safest place available. The risk comes from inflation. With rates so low, even a small increase in the inflation rate can wipe out most or all of the real savings, or even result in a loss.

The temptation is for savers to become investors, taking their money out of savings and putting it in stocks, mutual funds or other non-interest bearing investments in quest of a higher yield. Most regular investors are people who follow the market fairly closely, don't need cash on a ready basis and are willing to take the risk that stocks can go down as well as up. This profile doesn't fit many of the nation's elderly.

The Clinton package differs little from the Bush "deficit reduction" plan of 1990 which was to raise taxes to reduce the deficit, which would lower interest rates which would stimulate economic growth. The results of that plan were higher taxes, higher deficits and a stagnant economy. There is no reason to believe the same plan under a different President would produce different results.

In searching for a "magic bullet" to stimulate the economy, President Clinton and his economic advisors appear to have overlooked the negative effects of many of their policies. These negative aspects—such as lost income for elderly savers—will certainly offset some of the positive effects of lower interest rates.

Reorganizing city government

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Our city council is proposing to reshape the form of city government in Thief River Falls. The proposal could not only change the way the city does business but also how it is done. It could effect everyone from the mayor all the way through every department. Various suggestions have been made over the years and many have been set aside. With its citizens straining under tough economic problems, it appears that the city council is serious this time.

Thief River Falls city council has reluctantly accepted the early retirement requests of several dedicated public servants. These people have been leaders and with their departure it provides the city an excellent opportunity to reexamine the way government is conducted in Thief River Falls.

Reorganizing can have ominous undertones for city employees comfortably situated in a job they like. The feelings of loss of security in the face of change can disrupt work and attitudes of fellow employees. Their concerns should alert councilmen for the need to include the input of city employees and department leaders in the reorganization process. Inclusion in an open-minded process could help everyone set aside egos for the benefit of the community already straining under tough economic problems.

Reorganization within departments has been discussed for years. In the last few months a suggestion to consider including other governmental departments, such as extracurricular recreation programs from the school district in the park department should also be considered. Even though there are clear divisions between governmental units, voters and citizens generally see one unit of government. Maybe that's because they send their taxes to one source.

Let this be a request for cool heads and hard work to prevail.

To The Editor:

In regard to all the letters in the September 22 issue of The Times: No one seems to realize that this could, and in most likelihood will, lead to more than just hats. Next, everyone will lose their jackets in class, combat boots in school and sunglasses within a two-block radius of the school building. What will affect the Class of 2000? Everyone may think this is as far as it will go, but who knows?

We cannot do anything we choose to do. We can only do what we are allowed to do. May I ask, "Who controls us?" I see those who are in charge of our getting an education and lessons in social interaction taking these things away.

My brother will graduate in the Class of 2001. He is now going to school in Plummer, but never will I stop wondering, will he have any rights? We have to consider the future of other students soon to attend LHS or any other school, for that matter.

Times may change as well as trends, but people will always express themselves; that will never change.

In regard to Mrs. Howe's letter in the September 15 issue of The Times: How are we to judge ourselves if we are judged by others before we can do so?

You should really take into consideration that the way we dress may be choice and maybe we can't afford to pay the price for the way you figure kids should dress. Some of us have to buy our own clothes. Mommy and Daddy won't always buy our clothes.

I don't care if your kids are clones, but I do hope and pray that they will someday realize that they have to be themselves. Although I want everyone to notice that only those who are willing will fall into a fashion pattern.

Most Sincerely,
Erika Wilberg
LHS Senior

P.S. In no way am I trying to offend anyone. I have a great deal of respect for all previous letters written.

To The Editor....and the young ladies and men who responded:

Round 2.

In my public opinion letter I believe I stated that this was my opinion and I'm sure that there will be those who disagree. I guess I found out, didn't I?

I apologize for hurting your feelings and I certainly didn't mean it to reflect on all youth, however I do feel you completely missed my point. I simply meant that where ever you go in life there will be policies and rules for you to follow and if the school says take off your hats and bandanas, do it—it's common courtesy.

I'm not against hats. I'm not against teenagers. In fact, every one that I've met (except for six) I like—as I'm sure I'm not their favorite person either. But there is a place and time for headwear.

Now as for Mark Haugen's comments: Where did you go to school and when? In the 60's—1968 and 1969—there were no hippies and druggies there....at least I didn't see them. We looked pretty nice, I think. Hairdos were short and ratted up...

In fact, yes, I do remember one hippie. Wasn't he exiled from Thief River Falls, kicked out of Pennington county and kicked out of Lincoln at the ripe old age of 15 years. Wasn't he a friend of yours?

Also, you are a police officer. Are you telling us that you do as you please on the force and have your own policies? What message are you giving people, Mark?

As for whose opinion what is proper to wear, it is the opinion of your teacher, your principal or employer; they will decide what you can or can't wear.

I'm thankful that policy isn't mine—but I do agree with it.

I'm sorry, kids. I didn't make that rule—but I will say your discrimination case went out the door.

Guess who?
Holly Howe

The Times' Editorial Opinion

The Times
Thief River Falls, Minnesota

John P. Mattson, publisher
Marvin Lundin, editor
David Hill, associate editor

Editorial opinion published on this page, whether locally written or re-printed from other sources is intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. Opinions expressed by the editor are his own and not necessarily those of other staff members. Opinions expressed in items from other publications may be contradictory to the editor's own views but are offered for their general interest.

Final Chapter Today On LHS No Hat Policy

Today's comments on the no-hat policy at Lincoln high school will be the final ones on that subject published in The Times. With two weeks to think about the policy and formulate opinions and letters, the students and other members of the public should have had sufficient time to address the subject and make their thoughts known.

As we stated in last Wednesday's edition of The Times, the discussion will be closed with this issue and no more letters will be accepted on that subject. But we appreciated the flurry of discussion on a subject that apparently stirred some community interest and we certainly don't want to discourage letters on other topics of concern to our readers.

So keep those letters coming, but let the hat and bandana flap rest for awhile. Thanks for your cooperation.

It's Easy To Lose Interest In Saving

While President Clinton claims that low interest rates are a sign that his economic program is working, it is a fact that what may be good for some people can be economically disastrous for others. And in this case the "others" are mostly the elderly who have been judicious savers throughout their lives with the expectation that interest earnings would provide a substantial part of their subsistence in their declining years.

"The flip-side to declining rates has received scant, if any, attention from the government," writes Guy Murdoch, managing editor of "Consumers' Research" magazine. "But it has a direct impact on many people, such as retirees, who rely on interest to supplement their income.... When rates drop—whether by government fiat or market forces—earnings on interest-bearing investments also drop."

As Murdoch points out, low interest rates resulted in a 41 per cent drop in the average annual yield of a taxable money market fund in 1992. Interest rates on a three-month certificate of deposit dropped an average of 37 per cent last year.

"The net result of lower interest rates," states Lacy Hunt, chief economist for HSB Holdings, "is a redistribution of income, with borrowers benefitting at the expense of savers."

In his article, Murdoch uses as an example a retiree who sells a house for $100,000 and puts the proceeds in a three-month CD. In 1991 the interest annually would have been about $5,830. In 1992, the earnings would have been only $3,680—a drop of $2,150.

Murdoch points out that low returns on interest-bearing accounts present a risk to those who invest money there in the belief that such accounts are the safest place available. The risk comes from inflation. With rates so low, even a small increase in the inflation rate can wipe out most or all of the real savings, or even result in a loss.

The temptation is for savers to become investors, taking their money out of savings and putting it in stocks, mutual funds or other non-interest bearing investments in quest of a higher yield. Most regular investors are people who follow the market fairly closely, don't need cash on a ready basis and are willing to take the risk that stocks can go down as well as up. This profile doesn't fit many of the nation's elderly.

The Clinton package differs little from the Bush "deficit reduction" plan of 1990 which was to raise taxes to reduce the deficit, which would lower interest rates which would stimulate economic growth. The results of that plan were higher taxes, higher deficits and a stagnant economy. There is no reason to believe the same plan under a different President would produce different results.

In searching for a "magic bullet" to stimulate the economy, President Clinton and his economic advisors appear to have overlooked the negative effects of many of their policies. These negative aspects—such as lost income for elderly savers—will certainly offset some of the positive effects of lower interest rates.

Reorganizing city government

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Our city council is proposing to reshape the form of city government in Thief River Falls. The proposal could not only change the way the city does business but also how it is done. It could effect everyone from the mayor all the way through every department. Various suggestions have been made over the years and many have been set aside. With its citizens straining under tough economic problems, it appears that the city council is serious this time.

Thief River Falls city council has reluctantly accepted the early retirement requests of several dedicated public servants. These people have been leaders and with their departure it provides the city an excellent opportunity to reexamine the way government is conducted in Thief River Falls.

Reorganizing can have ominous undertones for city employees comfortably situated in a job they like. The feelings of loss of security in the face of change can disrupt work and attitudes of fellow employees. Their concerns should alert councilmen for the need to include the input of city employees and department leaders in the reorganization process. Inclusion in an open-minded process could help everyone set aside egos for the benefit of the community already straining under tough economic problems.

Reorganization within departments has been discussed for years. In the last few months a suggestion to consider including other governmental departments, such as extracurricular recreation programs from the school district in the park department should also be considered. Even though there are clear divisions between governmental units, voters and citizens generally see one unit of government. Maybe that's because they send their taxes to one source.

Let this be a request for cool heads and hard work to prevail.

To The Editor:

In regard to all the letters in the September 22 issue of The Times: No one seems to realize that this could, and in most likelihood will, lead to more than just hats. Next, everyone will lose their jackets in class, combat boots in school and sunglasses within a two-block radius of the school building. What will affect the Class of 2000? Everyone may think this is as far as it will go, but who knows?

We cannot do anything we choose to do. We can only do what we are allowed to do. May I ask, "Who controls us?" I see those who are in charge of our getting an education and lessons in social interaction taking these things away.

My brother will graduate in the Class of 2001. He is now going to school in Plummer, but never will I stop wondering, will he have any rights? We have to consider the future of other students soon to attend LHS or any other school, for that matter.

Times may change as well as trends, but people will always express themselves; that will never change.

In regard to Mrs. Howe's letter in the September 15 issue of The Times: How are we to judge ourselves if we are judged by others before we can do so?

You should really take into consideration that the way we dress may be choice and maybe we can't afford to pay the price for the way you figure kids should dress. Some of us have to buy our own clothes. Mommy and Daddy won't always buy our clothes.

I don't care if your kids are clones, but I do hope and pray that they will someday realize that they have to be themselves. Although I want everyone to notice that only those who are willing will fall into a fashion pattern.

Most Sincerely,
Erika Wilberg
LHS Senior

P.S. In no way am I trying to offend anyone. I have a great deal of respect for all previous letters written.

To The Editor....and the young ladies and men who responded:

Round 2.

In my public opinion letter I believe I stated that this was my opinion and I'm sure that there will be those who disagree. I guess I found out, didn't I?

I apologize for hurting your feelings and I certainly didn't mean it to reflect on all youth, however I do feel you completely missed my point. I simply meant that where ever you go in life there will be policies and rules for you to follow and if the school says take off your hats and bandanas, do it—it's common courtesy.

I'm not against hats. I'm not against teenagers. In fact, every one that I've met (except for six) I like—as I'm sure I'm not their favorite person either. But there is a place and time for headwear.

Now as for Mark Haugen's comments: Where did you go to school and when? In the 60's—1968 and 1969—there were no hippies and druggies there....at least I didn't see them. We looked pretty nice, I think. Hairdos were short and ratted up...

In fact, yes, I do remember one hippie. Wasn't he exiled from Thief River Falls, kicked out of Pennington county and kicked out of Lincoln at the ripe old age of 15 years. Wasn't he a friend of yours?

Also, you are a police officer. Are you telling us that you do as you please on the force and have your own policies? What message are you giving people, Mark?

As for whose opinion what is proper to wear, it is the opinion of your teacher, your principal or employer; they will decide what you can or can't wear.

I'm thankful that policy isn't mine—but I do agree with it.

I'm sorry, kids. I didn't make that rule—but I will say your discrimination case went out the door.

Guess who?
Holly Howe

Lincoln Pupils Get $2,324 for Picking Spuds

"A small army of approximately 120 Lincoln high school students, working as potato pickers in the fields northeast of East Grand Forks each afternoon since last Thursday, had picked no less than 26,004 bushels up to Tuesday evening, earning for themselves the impressive total of $2,323.24, Philip L. Fjelsted announced yesterday. Paid at the rate of eight cents per bushel, local boys and girls have picked as high as 60 bushels between the hours of 3 o'clock and 7:30, their earnings being at the rate of approximately $1 per hour."

Army Engineers Study Flooded Area

"In the city Wednesday in the course of making a first-hand inspection of the flooded area up Red Lake river were three representatives of the corps of army engineers in St. Paul, including Lieut. Col. L. C. Barnes, district engineer, G. E. Lyon, principal engineer and E. J. Christenson, senior engineer."

Bond Drive Photographic Studio Visits TRF

"A traveling photographic and engraving shop Wednesday visited Thief River Falls in the course of a tour of Minnesota during the third war loan drive. Operated by George Barton Jr. of Minneapolis and A. R. Cravens of Milaca, the equipment is the contribution of the Coca Cola company. While here, the vistors took several pictures from which cuts will be made for publication in the Times."

Temperature Rises to 80 Three Days of This Week

"Furnace fires have been out in this locality since last Sunday, when a belated warm spell brought the mercury reading up to 80 at the fire hall weather recording station. The same temperature was registered Monday and again Wednesday, with 79 on Tuesday. The low point for the week was 30 above last Saturday morning."

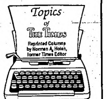
School Pupils to Attend Church School Wednesday

"Starting October 6, Grades 4 to 7 of the local schools will be dismissed Wednesday mornings at 10:45 to enable pupils to receive religious instruction at their respective churches, Supt Philip L. Fjelsted announced today, adding that pastors of the various churches will make the necessary arrangements for the instruction period."

Butter Will Cost 16 Ration Points

"Office of price administration announced Tuesday effective next Sunday butter will cost 16 ration points a pound. This represents the total allotment of red ration stamps for one person of one week. The increase of four points from the present value of 12 points per pound brings the ration coupon cost of butter up to twice the level it was when rationing started."



Topics of The Times
Reprinted Columns by Norman A. Holen, former Times Editor

—Those who are interested in astronomical matters will want to give a little reflection to the proposal to increase the federal debt limit to 300 billion dollars.

—If your story doesn't get as much space in the Times as you think it deserves, you might consider the fact that the Bible in the Book of Genesis tells the story of the creation of the world in 400 words.

—Another nice thing about a wild duck dinner is that it doesn't require any red stamps.

—A current survey discloses that sales of luxury items in war industry centers are as much as 300 per cent above last year's figures. That shouldn't be bad news for Herr Hitler.

—Those who emptied their bank accounts in September to buy war bonds can now start building up a reserve to meet real estate taxes due the end of October.

—Simile: As scarce as shotgun shells.

—It looks as though we are due for an early fall, says the Mahnomen Pioneer, adding that the same applies to Hitler.

—Love, says a commentator, starts when she sinks in your arms and ends with her arms in the sink.

—This column, it seems, is in good company. We learn that the august New York Times also has a Topics of the Times department.

—Random thought: Wonder how columnist Cedric Adams is getting along with that housemaid he obtained after running a 240-line classified ad.

—Overheard: Asked what M. P. stands for, a soldier replied, "An M. P. doesn't stand for anything."

—It is hinted that former Governor Stassen is willing to resign from the Navy to become a candidate for president in 1944. Tut, tut, Harold.

—You may have noticed that you no longer see a car advertised for sale with two spare tires.

—If a federal bureau is to set up to discourage unnecessary travel, we hasten to propose the name of Eleanor Roosevelt as the logical candidate for director.

Public Notices

PUBLIC NOTICE

The CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS Water Department announces that the maximum limit for Turbidity in drinking water was exceeded during the month of June and July 1993.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand, or organic matter in water. Turbidity can be a problem if it interferes with the Chloramine disinfection. However, the high turbidity level did not create a health hazard because the Water Department is able to maintain effective levels of chloramine for disinfection.

These Turbidity violations occurred during the process of changing over to the new treatment basins. The average turbidity for June was 0.51 Nephelometric Turbidity Units (NTU) with a high of 2.2 The regulatory limit in June was 1.0 NTU.

The average turbidity for July was 0.75 NTU. In July the regulatory limit was reduced from 1.0 NTU to 0.5 NTU. In order to meet compliance under the new regulation, 95 percent of the samples taken must be 0.5 or less. In July, the plant had 88 percent of samples below the 0.5 limit with a monthly average of 0.36 NTU. The highest turbidity for July was 0.7 NTU..

As of August, with all new systems on line, the plant performance meets the new regulation with 98 percent of samples below 0.5 NTU.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF CHAD ALAN HOMME
WHO PASSED AWAY SEPTEMBER 29, 1992

The sun still shines, though not as bright.
The tears still fall in the still of the night.
Faith and time slowly help heal, but the loss of our loved one is still very real.
Good-bye Chad, so painful to say, just remember we love you and we'll join you some day.

Sadly missed by,

NOTICE OF HEARING ON PROPOSED ASSESSMENT

To Whom It May Concern:

Notice is hereby given that the City Council of Thief River Falls, Minnesota, will meet at 7:00 p.m. on October 12, 1993, at the Heritage Community Center, 301 E. 4th Street, to pass upon the proposed assessment for the 1993 Utilities and Sidewalk Improvements Project, Project No. 35293.00. The properties proposed to be assessed are outlined on Exhibit A, Exhibit B and the SE1/4 SE1/4 Section 16, Township 153 North, Range 43 West, Pennington County, Minnesota.

The proposed assessment roll is on file for public inspection at the City Clerk's Office. The total amount of the proposed assessment is $470,000.00. Written or oral objections will be considered at the meeting. However, no appeal may be taken as to the amount of an assessment unless a signed, written objection is filed with the City Clerk prior to the hearing or presented to the presiding officer at the hearing. The Council may upon such notice consider any objection to the amount of a proposed individual assessment at an adjourned meeting upon such further notice to the affected property owners as it deems advisable.

If an assessment is contested or there is an adjourned hearing, the following procedure will be followed:

1. The City will present its case first by calling witnesses who may testify by narrative or by examination, and by the introduction of exhibits. After each witness has testified, the contesting party will be allowed to ask questions. This procedure will be repeated with each witness until neither side has further questions.
2. After the City has presented all its evidence, the objector may call witnesses or present such testimony as the objector desires. The same procedure for questioning of the City's witnesses will be followed with the objector's witnesses.
3. The objector may be represented by counsel.
4. Minnesota rules of evidence will not be strictly applied; however, they may be considered and argued to the Council as to the weight of items of evidence or testimony presented to the Council.
5. The entire proceedings will be tape recorded.
6. At the close of presentation of evidence, the objector may make a final presentation to the Council based on the evidence and the law. No new evidence may be presented at this point.

An owner may appeal an assessment to District Court pursuant to Minnesota Statutes Section 429.081 by serving notice of the appeal upon the Mayor or Clerk of the City within 30 days after the adoption of the assessment and filing such notice with the District Court within ten days after service upon the Mayor or Clerk. The City has not adopted any deferment ordinance or resolution.

Public Notices

PUBLIC NOTICE

The CITY OF THIEF RIVER FALLS Water Department announces that the maximum limit for Turbidity in drinking water was exceeded during the month of June and July 1993.

Turbidity is caused by the presence of finely suspended particles such as clay, sand, or organic matter in water. Turbidity can be a problem if it interferes with the Chloramine disinfection. However, the high turbidity level did not create a health hazard because the Water Department is able to maintain effective levels of chloramine for disinfection.

These Turbidity violations occurred during the process of changing over to the new treatment basins. The average turbidity for June was 0.51 Nephelometric Turbidity Units (NTU) with a high of 2.2 The regulatory limit in June was 1.0 NTU.

The average turbidity for July was 0.75 NTU. In July the regulatory limit was reduced from 1.0 NTU to 0.5 NTU. In order to meet compliance under the new regulation, 95 percent of the samples taken must be 0.5 or less. In July, the plant had 88 percent of samples below the 0.5 limit with a monthly average of 0.36 NTU. The highest turbidity for July was 0.7 NTU.

As of August, with all new systems on line, the plant performance meets the new regulation with 98 percent of samples below 0.5 NTU.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

Don Laidley

Don Laidley retires from utilities dept.

Don Laidley, line superintendent for the Thief River Falls utilities department has notified the city of his intent to retire. Laidley has worked for the city since 1966 and recently as acting superintendent.

Laidley, who is retiring under the Rule of 90, began his employment with the city as a meter reader in 1966. In 1969, he became a member of the line crew and sometime in the 1970s he became line foreman, a job which eventually came to be called line superintendent. Over the years he has been witness to many changes. Between March of 1988 and 1989, he even became acting superintendent.

"At times it has been a challenge, but it has been good," said Laidley of his job with the utilities department.

On September 14, the city council reluctantly accepted Laidley's letter of resignation and retirement. His retirement becomes effective on January 29, 1994.

Laidley said he decided that he wanted to retire while he still had good health. Don and his wife Melba have three children — Brenda, Gary and Barb — who are all married. They have three grandchildren with a fourth on the way.

Kenny Beauchane, custodian at Northrop elementary school in Thief River Falls, served cake to members of Susan Olson's kindergarten class last Tuesday. Northrop faculty members said Beauchane is "more than a custodian" and that he not only takes good care of the facility but he takes good care of the staff and students who work and attend there. Students and staff recognized his friendship and dedication to excellence by celebrating his birthday Tuesday. The cake, served by Kenny to the students in each of the classes at Northrop, was provided by the staff to honor him on the occasion.

Florida prize promotion targets MN

Better Business Bureau of Minnesota has reported that a Florida prize promotion company is luring Minnesotans into its promotion with the promise of a new car or cash.

Ashton Schnitz & Sons of Hialeah, FL, is sending Minnesota consumers a letter which states that the company has arranged for the consumer to receive "Absolutely Free, Without Obligation, and with No Purchase Necessary, a Brand New 1993 Cadillac Fleetwood or Cash."

Consumers are asked to fill out a form at the bottom of the letter indicating their preference for a car or cash, then return the form to the company in an enclosed envelope. Even though the letter states that the consumer is under no obligation, an optional $47 check or money order is requested.

The letter is sent by Francis Joseph Wells, III, who writes that if consumers don't respond immediately, they will be throwing away a 1993 Cadillac Fleetwood or cash and "will receive nothing." A copy of the letter and response is supposedly sent to C. Horatio Bushfield, chairman Cadillac Selection committee.

The Better Business Bureau of Miami has sent two requests for information to Ashton Schnitz & Sons but has not received a reply. The company has an unsatisfactory record with the Miami BBB because of no response to a customer complaint. The Bureau has been able to determine that the company's address in Hialeah is actually a private mail drop and all mail is forwarded to New York.

Based on calls to the Bureau, the Bureau believes hundreds of mailings have been sent to consumers throughout Minnesota. The Bureau has alerted postal authorities to this promotion and urges Minnesotans to be wary of this Florida car/cash promotion. Alerts to consumers are made possible when timely reports to the Bureau are received.

City grants conditional permit to local church

Thief River Falls City Council granted a conditional use permit to Church on the Move, a relatively new church in the community which is planning to open a church in the former Red Owl Supermarket building on Highway 59.

In other business Tuesday night, the council, approved a taxi permit for Casino Express and approved a motion to put the cost of removing privately owned trees affected by Dutch elm disease on the tax rolls.

In the end, it was clear the council had no other option but to approve a conditional use permit for Church on the Move. City Attorney Paul Ihle explained that if a request meets all eight of the criteria for awarding a conditional use permit there was no other option but to grant the permit. The matter didn't even appear to attract any controversy Tuesday night. Council members only had a few questions for Rev. Cameron Stratton before approving the request.

The request received a lengthy hearing before the Planning Commission September 20. According to comments from Community Development Director Don Stewart, most of the members of the Planning Commission expressed concern during the discussion about the removal from the tax rolls of highway commercial property for use by churches. The property was also developed for commercial purposes and thus is equipped with larger sewer and water lines, for example.

Based on comments by legal counsel, if the request meets criteria for granting a conditional use permit, there isn't a great deal of latitude. "In the judgement of the Planning Commission, they met all eight criteria," said Stewart. He also noted that churches are a conditional use in the C-2, general business district, as well as most of the other zoning districts.

The eight criteria followed in making such decisions by the Planning Commission include the following:

1) The establishment, maintenance, or operation of a conditional use will not be detrimental to or endanger the public health, safety, morals or general welfare.

2) The conditional use will not create an excessive burden on existing parks, schools, streets, and other public facilities and services which serve or are proposed to serve the area.

3) The conditional use will be sufficiently compatible with or separated by distance or screening from adjacent agriculture or residential zoned or used land.

4) The structure and site shall have an appearance that will not have an adverse affect upon adjacent agricultural or residential zoned or used land.

5) The conditional use is related to the overall needs of the city and to existing land use.

6) The conditional use is consistent with the purpose of the zoning ordinance and requirements of the zoning district.

7) The conditional use is not in conflict with the comprehensive plan.

8) Adjacent businesses will not be adversely affected because of curtailment of customer trade brought on by the intrusion of noise, glare, or general unsightliness.

Church on the Move plans to make several improvements to the building and lot. Tuesday night, Rev. Stratton said they have planned the improvements in five phases. Because of the lateness of the season a temporary patch will be put on the parking lot this year. Eventually, it will be resurfaced. They plan to make enough improvements to the building to be able to use it by mid December. The floor plan would be developed in a number of stages to eventually provide seating for 420 persons in the sanctuary.

■ The expense of removing trees from private property will be put on the tax rolls.

On September 14, the council held a hearing regarding citizens who have failed to remove trees

Chad Glenn Erickson, 23, Thief River Falls, was killed in a moose and car accident Saturday, October 2.

Minnesota state patrol responded to a report of an accident two and one-half miles north of State Aid 3 in Pennington county at about 2 a.m. According to the accident report, Erickson was driving a 1982 Chevrolet Monte Carlo north on County road 12 when the vehicle struck a moose. The moose went through the passenger compartment and struck the driver. Erickson was dead at the scene. Joseph Adam Lesmeister, 21, Thief River Falls, a passenger in the vehicle was taken to Northwest Medical Center in Thief River Falls and treated and released.

The accident is still under investigation by the Minnesota State Patrol and the Pennington County Sheriff's department.

Aerobics with Alicia an uplifting challenge

Lincoln high school cross-country team spent its first week of the season in the gym, as did the Fine Line dance team and others. It wasn't because of rain, but because they were in an aerobics class taught by Alicia Haviland.

Cross-country Coach Lynn Dyer laments the fact that members of his team return each year so out of shape. He realizes that without some conditioning prior to stressful training, injuries happen more frequently. He has tried various conditioning regimens but for the past three years, however, he has had students register for Aerobics with Alicia.

"By the end of the week, they're begging to get out on the road," Dyer said.

Who is this person who can wear teenagers out?

"Low impact, high impact, we don't care because we're just interested in sucking air," said Alicia Haviland as she began her workout.

As she turned up the music she said, "we meet five nights a week from 5:45 to 6:45 p.m. On Tuesday and Thursday we use steps. Monday, Wednesday and Friday are just aerobics," she said. Stretching, she added that the aerobics classes are for all ages not just youngsters.

Soon she was marching in place and encouraging the young members of the cross-country team to pick it up and smile if the photographer points his camera at them.

"We push hard," she said, "but we don't expect everyone to do everything. We do expect them to follow at their own pace, whether with low impact or high impact aerobics. The important thing to remember is to get exercise."

Alicia Haviland challenges everyone to strengthen their body through exercise. The 45-year-old mother of seven teaches an aerobics class through the School District 564 Community Education department five nights a week at the Northrop elementary gym.

Florida prize promotion targets MN

Better Business Bureau of Minnesota has reported that a Florida prize promotion company is luring Minnesotans into its promotion with the promise of a new car or cash.

Ashton Schnitz & Sons of Hialeah, FL, is sending Minnesota consumers a letter which states that the company has arranged for the consumer to receive "Absolutely Free, Without Obligation, and with No Purchase Necessary, a Brand New 1993 Cadillac Fleetwood or Cash."

Consumers are asked to fill out a form at the bottom of the letter indicating their preference for a car or cash, then return the form to the company in an enclosed envelope. Even though the letter states that the consumer is under no obligation, an optional $47 check or money order is requested.

The letter is sent by Francis Joseph Wells, III, who writes that if consumers don't respond immediately, they will be throwing away a 1993 Cadillac Fleetwood or cash and "will receive nothing." A copy of the letter and response is supposedly sent to C. Horatio Bushfield, chairman Cadillac Selection committee.

The Better Business Bureau of Miami has sent two requests for information to Ashton Schnitz & Sons but has not received a reply. The company has an unsatisfactory record with the Miami BBB because of no response to a customer complaint. The Bureau has been able to determine that the company's address in Hialeah is actually a private mail drop and all mail is forwarded to New York.

Based on calls to the Bureau, the Bureau believes hundreds of mailings have been sent to consumers throughout Minnesota. The Bureau has alerted postal authorities to this promotion and urges Minnesotans to be wary of this Florida car/cash promotion. Alerts to consumers are made possible when timely reports to the Bureau are received.

City grants conditional permit to local church

Thief River Falls City Council granted a conditional use permit to Church on the Move, a relatively new church in the community which is planning to open a church in the former Red Owl Supermarket building on Highway 59.

In other business Tuesday night, the council approved a taxi permit for Casino Express and approved a motion to put the cost of removing privately owned trees affected by Dutch elm disease on the tax rolls.

In the end, it was clear the council had no other option but to approve a conditional use permit for Church on the Move. City Attorney Paul Ihle explained that if a request meets all eight of the criteria for awarding a conditional use permit there was no other option but to grant the permit. The matter didn't even appear to attract any controversy Tuesday night. Council members only had a few questions for Rev. Cameron Stratton before approving the request.

The request received a lengthy hearing before the Planning Commission September 20. According to comments from Community Development Director Don Stewart, most of the members of the Planning Commission expressed concern during the discussion about the removal from the tax rolls of highway commercial property for use by churches. The property was also developed for commercial purposes and thus is equipped with larger sewer and water lines, for example.

Based on comments by legal counsel, if the request meets criteria for granting a conditional use permit, there isn't a great deal of latitude. "In the judgement of the Planning Commission, they met all eight criteria," said Stewart. He also noted that churches are a conditional use in the C-2, general business district, as well as most of the other zoning districts.

The eight criteria followed in making such decisions by the Planning Commission include the following:

1) The establishment, maintenance, or operation of a conditional use will not be detrimental to or endanger the public health, safety, morals or general welfare.

2) The conditional use will not create an excessive burden on existing parks, schools, streets, and other public facilities and services which serve or are proposed to serve the area.

3) The conditional use will be sufficiently compatible with or separated by distance or screening from adjacent agriculture or residential zoned or used land.

4) The structure and site shall have an appearance that will not have an adverse affect upon adjacent agricultural or residential zoned or used land.

5) The conditional use is related to the overall needs of the city and to existing land use.

6) The conditional use is consistent with the purpose of the zoning ordinance and requirements of the zoning district.

7) The conditional use is not in conflict with the comprehensive plan.

8) Adjacent businesses will not be adversely affected because of curtailment of customer trade brought on by the intrusion of noise, glare, or general unsightliness.

Church on the Move plans to make several improvements to the building and lot. Tuesday night, Rev. Stratton said they have planned the improvements in five phases. Because of the lateness of the season a temporary patch will be put on the parking lot this year. Eventually, it will be resurfaced. They plan to make enough improvements to the building to be able to use it by mid December. The floor plan would be developed in a number of stages to eventually provide seating for 420 persons in the sanctuary.

■ The expense of removing trees from private property will be put on the tax rolls.

On September 14, the council held a hearing regarding citizens who have failed to remove trees

Aerobics with Alicia an uplifting challenge

Lincoln high school cross-country team spent its first week of the season in the gym, as did the Fine Line dance team and others. It wasn't because of rain, but because they were in an aerobics class taught by Alicia Haviland.

Cross-country Coach Lynn Dyer laments the fact that members of his team return each year so out of shape. He realizes that without some conditioning prior to stressful training, injuries happen more frequently. He has tried various conditioning regimens but for the past three years, however, he has had students register for Aerobics with Alicia.

"By the end of the week, they're begging to get out on the road," Dyer said.

Who is this person who can wear teenagers out?

"Low impact, high impact, we don't care because we're just interested in sucking air," said Alicia Haviland as she began her workout.

As she turned up the music she said, "we meet five nights a week from 5:45 to 6:45 p.m. On Tuesday and Thursday we use steps. Monday, Wednesday and Friday are just aerobics," she said. Stretching, she added that the aerobics classes are for all ages not just youngsters.

Soon she was marching in place and encouraging the young members of the cross-country team to pick it up and smile if the photographer points his camera at them.

"We push hard," she said, "but we don't expect everyone to do everything. We do expect them to follow at their own pace, whether with low impact or high impact aerobics. The important thing to remember is to get exercise."

Lyla Lund and Todd Broadwell Wed August 28 at St. Francis Xavier, Oklee

Lyla Terease Lund and Todd George Broadwell were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony Saturday, Aug. 28 at 4 p.m. at St. Francis Xavier Catholic church in Oklee, with Rev. Joe Richards officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Lyle and Sharon Lund of Trail. Parents of the groom are George and Audrey Broadwell, Thief River Falls.

Music was provided by Kim Wiertzema and Sara Agnes, cousins of the bride, who sang, "Wedding Song," "The Rose," "God, A Woman and A Man" and "O Perfect Love." Charity Wicks, friend of the couple, served as pianist, playing "Trumpet Voluntary" as processional and "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" as recessional.

The church was decorated with candelabra with white satin bows.

For her wedding, the bride chose a white satin gown with exquisite pearling adorning the bodice and v-shaped neckline. Gathered Gibson sleeves featured beaded cutouts. The full skirt was trimmed with large, heavily beaded motifs. Cascading pearls centered the heart-shaped keyhole back and a satin bow topped the cathedral train, separated by rows of hand-beaded lace. The bride complemented her gown with a crown headpiece with beaded fingertip, full-length veil.

She carried a cascading bouquet of white, purple and pink roses interspersed with pearls, sparkling babies' breath, ivy and greenery.

Barbara Sellers of Gully served her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Heidi Vinje, Gonvick, cousin of the bride, and Corinne Habedank, Thief River Falls, friend of the couple. The bride's niece, Kelly Bushelle, Plummer, was junior bridesmaid. The matron of honor and bridesmaids wore iris satin floor-length gowns with decorative bows and strings of pearls adorning the open backs. The gowns were complimented by pearl drop necklaces and pearl bracelets. They carried bouquets of pink, white and purple roses, sparkling babies' breath and greenery.

Flower girl was Katie Broadwell, Marshall, niece of the groom. She wore a white tea-length gown with bow in the back, accented with a pearl necklace and fingertip veil, and carried a satin basket with lace overlay containing purple, white and pink roses and greenery.

Karen Weber, cousin of the bride, and Jennifer Eck, friend of the couple, served the bride as personal attendants.

The groom was attired in a white tuxedo with tails, white shirt and white bow tie and vest. His boutonniere was made up of three purple roses with pearls and sparkling babies' breath.

Mark Broadwell, Sartell, brother of the groom, served as best man. Groomsmen were Chad and Brian Broadwell, brothers of the groom, from Thief River Falls and Marshall, respectively, and junior groomsman was the bride's brother, Ryan Lund, Trail. Gentlemen of the party wore charcoal grey tuxedoes with light pin stripes and ocean floral vests and ties with white shirts. They wore boutonnieres of white roses nestled in babies' breath and greenery.

Ring bearer was Shawn Bushelle, Plummer, nephew of the bride. He wore a white tuxedo with tails and white vest, shirt and tie, with a boutonniere of a white rose, babies' breath and greenery.

Ushering the guests were Richard Finseth, Trail, cousin of the bride, and Tom Pederson, Thief River Falls, friend of the couple. They wore charcoal grey tuxedos with ocean floral cummerbunds and ties with white shirts. Their boutonnieres were white roses with sparkling babies' breath and greenery.

For her daughter's wedding, the mother of the bride chose a black and white tea length gown. The groom's mother wore a light pink tea length gown. Each had a corsage of pink roses, sparkling babies' breath and greenery. The fathers of the couple wore charcoal grey tuxedoes with ocean floral vests and ties and white shirts. Their boutonnieres were white roses in sparkling babies' breath and greenery.

Honored guest was Barbara Pladsen, grandmother of the bride.

Edie Dukek, friend of the couple, and Pam Broadwell, sister-in-law of the groom, were flower hostesses. Bev Anderson acted as wedding coordinator and Mark Vinje videotaped the event.

A reception was held for the couple following the ceremony. Host couples were Anthony and Virginia Weber, godparents of the bride, and Elton and Ginger Kleindl, godparents of the groom. Connie Agnes and Lynn Vergal, both cousins of the bride, presided at the guest book.

Highlighting the serving table was the three tiered wedding cake which was topped with Precious Moments figurines. It featured four separate heart cakes at the base, and the bottom tier of the cake was decorated with purple and pink roses. The wedding cake was cut by Pat Finseth, aunt of the bride, and Adeline Schonhardt, aunt of the groom. Coffee was served by Marian Weber, aunt of the bride, and Irene Lindfors, aunt of the groom. Geraldine Agnes, aunt of the bride, and Carol Broadwell, aunt of the groom, were in charge of the punch bowl.

Public comment on plan for area aging invited

Interested individuals are invited to comment on the Northwest Area Agency on Aging 1994 area plan amendments on November 3 at the NWRDC offices in Thief River Falls. The hearing will begin at 10 a.m. in the board room.

Program development and coordination funds in the amount of $35,887 will be used for assisting with the development of new services where needed, coordination activities such as the Senior Coordinating Committee and work with the County Committees on Aging, training for service providers and seniors including the Fall Conference on Aging, and for providing advocacy, information and assistance for seniors and caregivers.

Copies of the proposed Area Plan Amendments will be available for review the week of October 11. A copy may be obtained by contacting Faith Rud, Director, NWRDC Area Agency on Aging, 525 Brooks Ave. S., Thief River Falls. Written comments will be accepted until 12 noon on November 3. Entire Month of October will be Breast Cancer Awareness Month

You may be hearing lots of facts and figures about breast cancer during the month of October, which is National Breast Cancer Awareness month. Some of the facts are alarming; others are encouraging. Yet the basic message for October is simple: breast cancer, when detected early, can often be completely cured and you can help detect this disease.

The bad news is that breast cancer is sobering. The incidence of breast cancer is going up, and scientists do not know exactly why. This year, 180,000 American women will develop cancer of the breast. Most will have no known risk factor for the disease - meaning all women are at risk.

The good news is that despite increasing incidence rates, the death rate from breast cancer has been fairly stable for many years. Improvements in early detection of breast cancer and in treatments for the disease help account for this trend. Also, earlier diagnosis now gives women more options for treatment: approximately 56 percent of women who develop breast cancer do not have a breast removed.

Early diagnosis is the key to treating breast cancer. After treatment for early breast cancer, a woman's survival rate is as high as 90 percent. Every woman should take an active role in protecting her health by practicing monthly breast self-examination, having a yearly breast exam by a physician, and getting regular mammograms after age 40.

Many women become so afraid of what they might find that they avoid examining their breasts. It is vitally important not to be ruled by fear. Even if you or your physician find a lump, the chances of it being cancer are small - one in five. However, if there is a problem, early detection not only improves your survival chances, it may also improve your chances of avoiding a mastectomy.

There is some confusion over the statistic that one in eight women will develop breast cancer during their lifetime. This figure refers to women who live to age 95, at which time their chances of developing the disease jump to one in eight. The risk of breast cancer increases with age: at age 30, women have a one in 2,525 chance of developing the disease; at age 40, a one in 217 chance, and at age 50 the rate jumps significantly to one in 50.

Whatever your age, remember that taking care of your breasts is not something to be put off until tomorrow, but an essential and life-long project.

In our mobile society, many persons move to new locations for employment, health, or retirement. Others may have both summer and winter residences miles apart. If they have definite ideas about burial location and details of the funeral service, this can be formalized by a pre-arrangement. We invite you to inquire about funeral pre-arrangement.
...Respectfully,

Academic Boosters will meet Thursday, Oct. 7, at 12 noon at Evergreen Eating Emporium (formerly Lon's). New members are welcome.

Myles Olson of the city park and recreation department waters grass around the foundation of a new picnic shelter being built in Centennial Park. The picnic shelter was donated to the city by the local chapter of the Lion's Club. Weather permitting, it could be completed this fall. Several trees also have been planted at the park.

Entire Month of October will be Breast Cancer Awareness Month

You may be hearing lots of facts and figures about breast cancer during the month of October, which is National Breast Cancer Awareness month. Some of the facts are alarming; others are encouraging. Yet the basic message for October is simple: breast cancer, when detected early, can often be completely cured and you can help detect this disease.

The bad news about breast cancer is sobering. The incidence of breast cancer is going up, and scientists do not know exactly why. This year, 180,000 American women will develop cancer of the breast. Most will have no known risk factor for the disease - meaning all women are at risk.

The good news is that despite increasing incidence rates, the death rate from breast cancer has been fairly stable for many years. Improvements in early detection of breast cancer and in treatments for the disease help account for this trend. Also, earlier diagnosis now gives women more options for treatment: approximately 36 percent of women who develop breast cancer do not have a breast removed.

Early diagnosis is the key to treating breast cancer. After treatment for early breast cancer, a woman's survival rate is as high as 90 percent. Every woman should take an active role in protecting her health by practicing monthly breast self-examination, having a yearly breast exam by a physician, and getting regular mammograms after age 40.

Many women become so afraid of what they might find that they avoid examining their breasts. It is vitally important not to be ruled by fear. Even if you or your physician find a lump, the chances of it being cancer are small - one in five. However, if there is a problem, early detection not only improves your survival chances, it may also improve your chances of avoiding a mastectomy.

There is some confusion over the statistic that one in eight women will develop breast cancer during their lifetime. This figure refers to women who live to age 95, at which time their chances of developing the disease jump to one in eight. The risk of breast cancer increases with age: at age 30, women have a one in 2,525 chance of developing the disease; at age 40, a one in 217 chance, and at age 50 the rate jumps significantly to one in 50.

Whatever your age, remember that taking care of your breasts is not something to be put off until tomorrow, but an essential and lifelong project.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

Steve Soiney gives electric cart a test on St. Hilaire trip

For some time Steve Soiney has been wondering what the real range of his electric cart would be. On September 18 he found out it had at least a little more energy than he did.

Soiney, who has multiple sclerosis and uses the cart to get around the community, had been invited to attend an engagement party for friends Steve Mosbeck and Karen Griffin west of St. Hilaire. He was determined to try using his battery powered cart to get there.

He left his apartment at Skylite Apartments at 415 South Arnold early in the afternoon, setting his watch when he hit the middle of the parking lot by Valley Home, ready to start out on highway 32 toward St. Hilaire. He was wearing a leather jacket and no cap.

September 18 was a warm, calm, mosquito-infested Saturday. With a maximum speed of less than 10 miles per hour (a straight full power run wouldn't even register on law enforcement radar during a previous test), the cart didn't provide Steve with any breeze from movement and the heat and mosquitoes were miserable.

When he reached St. Hilaire, Karen Griffin caught up with him and provided some insect repellent. After a brief stop for a Times photo, he headed west on CSAH 3. After about four miles fatigue caught up with him and he accepted a ride the rest of the way to the Mosbeck farm from Pennington county sheriff's deputies Rick Olson and Jim Jesme.

The approximately 10 to 11-mile cart ride took three hours, 39 minutes and 6.95 seconds, according to Steve's stop watch. The cart batteries still had plenty of power remaining and the deputies set the cart in the truck of their car when taking Soiney to the Mosbeck farm.

As the guests arrived for the engagement party, they filed into the loft of the barn. Steve greeted many he knew as they arrived, and after most of the guests had gone to the loft Steve Mosbeck and Lee Roland hoisted Soiney from his cart and carried him upstairs to a waiting chair. Then they brought his cart to the loft so he could mingle with the rest of the guests.

Lance Tollefson and Mosbeck carried Steve and then the cart back down as the guests began leaving and Bryan Steiger and Jeff Knutson gave him a ride back to his apartment.

Soiney found that his cart had an ample power supply to make the trip but also has some shortcomings. When he pulled onto the shoulder of the road west of St. Hilaire to allow some truck traffic to pass, one of the three-inch diameter wheels of his cart dropped into a gopher hole. He was stuck there until a passing motorist stopped and gave him a push.

"The sun was too hot and I just got too fatigued," Soiney said. "But I got even with all those mosquitoes. They thought they had an easy meal but they don't know they all got MS."

And the experience encouraged him rather than discouraged him. "I think I could make it to Warren on a good day," he said. "At least I'm still thinking about it."

Steve Soiney gave his electric cart and his own resolve a test recently when he set out from his residence at Skylite Apartments on a Saturday afternoon to attend an engagement party for friends west of St. Hilaire. It took him a little over three and one-half hours (3:39:06.95) to travel about 11 miles before a hot sun, hordes of mosquitoes and fatigue caused him to accept a ride the rest of the way.

SPEAKING OF

Sherry LaCoursiere

. . . Hunting, Especially Deer

Dare I write a column about hunting? I've seen two columnists get blasted for writing about hunting.

Last year in The Times, Ms. Ortloff dared to write a tongue-in-cheek column about her opinion of her brother's deer hunting, comparing it to hunting "Bambi." She was blasted right and left by angry deer hunters and rifle owners.

This year a Grand Forks Herald columnist, Marcia Harris, dared write a column, also tongue-in-cheek, about what makes men hunters and why she does not understand them.

Whoops—she was blasted, too. In Letters to the Editor the next week, a Grand Forks gentleman (?) said the column was "one of the most irrelevant, uninteresting, narrow-minded pieces of news reporting (he had) ever seen in any newspaper," and that Ms. Harris needed more training in informative news reporting.

Well, I'm sorry if you're all spoiling for a fight, but I'm not going to write against hunting. I'm all for it. In fact, I have even done it—kind of—well, mostly walked around the woods picking up weeds—but I was out there with the guys and their guns and I've shot one once or twice myself. Both of my daughters are hunters, too.

I grew up in a houseful of hunters. As soon as fall rolled around, long before the actual season, out would come the shotguns to be spit polished. The first day of bird season, out went my grandfather and my uncles. They would disappear for a whole day and reappear late at night carrying bags filled with grouse or ducks, depending on the season.

This disappearance and reappearance happened for many weekends. Thanks to their hunting prowess, we would have grouse and ducks to eat for the entire winter. But the bird hunting would end and then would come the most important hunting—deer hunting.

For weeks before deer hunting the house would be filled with the smell of gun cleaning oil. Rifles would be lovingly handled, cleaned and polished and carefully replaced in cases. This would happen over and over, nearly every night. Red woolen clothing was washed and hung by the stove to dry so it would be ready for the big day. The smell of gun cleaning oil and wet wool bring back memories of deer hunting to this very day.

The stories would begin about the time I first smelled the gun cleaning oil. Oh, the tales that were told of other hunts, of that "big one" that got away, or that "big one" that didn't, of the abundance (or not) of deer this year, of where to go, who would drive, who would post, which of the young cousins would get to go along for the first time this year.

(My family was very sexist - girl cousins were never allowed to go, only the boys got to go deer hunting. That's just the way it was. I didn't even question it.)

Nevertheless, I would lay in bed Saturday morning and hear the hunters getting ready to leave. I could smell the coffee and the bacon and eggs and knew that all of the uncles had come to have breakfast before leaving for the hunt. It would be pitch dark outside, long before sunrise. I knew that they were all downstairs, dressed in red and unshaven, looking like strangers. I could hear them talking and laughing, loud, excited, anxious to leave and be on their way.

The door would slam and the house would be quiet, very quiet, too quiet. The hunters, the strangers, had gone.

During the day my mother and grandmother would clean and cook. My mother would dust and scrub and polish the house. My grandmother would bake buns and beans and fill roasters with ducks stuffed with onions and covered with bacon strips, ready to roast before the hunters came home. I didn't know why they did this until I had hunters of my own.

Now my sons and daughters are the hunters. My house is filled with shining shotguns and rifles and the smell of gun cleaning oil and wet wool. When the door bangs behind my hunters I, too, find that I am cooking and cleaning for them when they return.

We clean and cook because we worry about them. It is our way of verifying that they will come home, safe and sound, loud and boisterous and filled with tales of a happy hunt, and hungry.

I know that now, you see, because there was one deer hunting day my uncles returned that was not happy. They came home without my grandfather because he had a heart attack and died one day out deer hunting.

But I still like deer hunting time, despite the sadness I remember each year. But I know now why I cook and clean when they have gone and the house is quiet—so I can be sure they will come home safe and sound.

Teleconference on healthy food

Creating an awareness that every member of the child nutrition team has an important role to play in promoting and teaching healthy food practices will be the subject of a live teleconference on October 7. "Personnel Who Make a Difference" will be broadcast via satellite to many technical colleges in Minnesota.

"Effective learning depends on students being well-nourished -- that's why we're inviting all child nutrition directors, supervisors, managers and assistants to attend the teleconference and learn about the importance of the role of each team member in teaching students to make good, healthy food choices," said Carolyn Brown, Food and Nutrition Services, Minnesota Department of Education.

Some technical colleges will be broadcasting live and others will tape the event for viewing at a later date. For more information, contact Jan Hoff, Thief River Falls Campus, 1301 Highway One East, Thief River Falls, MN 56701-2599, telephone 218-681-5424, ext 34, 800-222-2884, FAX 218-681-5519. This is the fifth of six teleconferences offered by the United States Department of Agriculture in cooperation with MDE and local technical colleges.

Manufacturers' Week will be Noted Oct. 18-22

Mayor Bob Reeve of Thief River Falls has proclaimed October 18-22 to be Manufacturer's Week in this city as part of a state-wide effort to raise public awareness about the contributions that manufacturing businesses make to the community.

"Thief River Falls does hereby publicly declare its thanks and appreciation to all area manufacturers and their employees for the contributions they make to our community and state," the mayor's proclamation states.

It also points out that manufacturing employs one out of every five off-farm workers in the state, has the largest total payroll and second highest average wage of any sector in Minnesota and produces $19.8 billion for Minnesota's economy, the largest single share of our gross state product. Manufacturing exports brought nearly $6.7 billion into the state in 1992, far outstripping any of Minnesota's other sectors.

"We often take for granted the extraordinary impact a healthy manufacturing economy plays on our quality of life in Minnesota," notes John Tofte, president of the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce. "Our local manufacturing companies are good examples of the businesses which play such an important role in our community."

In state corporate income taxes alone, manufacturing contributed nearly $68 million more than any other sector—enough to pay for all the judges, clerks and operating costs for the entire state judicial system last year.

From 1982 until 1990, total non-farm employment in Minnesota increased 24 per cent and the number of jobs in Minnesota's manufacturing industries increased 15 per cent. Meanwhile, farming and mining, two traditionally strong components of the state economy, experienced significant declines during the 1980s.

Between 1975 and 1990 the percentage of Minnesotans working on farms decreased from 9.3 per cent of total employment to 6.3 per cent. In 1989 farming accounted for 3.7 per cent of the gross state product and mining employment totaled about 8,100 workers.

Jerry Nelson is raffle winner

Winner of the Thief River Falls Quilters guild raffle was Jerry Nelson of St. Hilaire. Jerry was very surprised at his good fortune, since his mother had purchased the winning ticket in his name without informing him. Proceeds for the raffle will be used to fund the TRF Quilters guild's many activities and the guild wishes to thank all who participated in the raffle.

LHS Class of 1940 holds its get-together

Special guests attending were two former teachers, Blanche (Greenland) Larson and Ruth Legvold.

Following an afternoon of reminiscing and a 5 p.m. dinner, a program was held with Arthur Buringrud as master of ceremonies. Classmates introduced themselves and their spouses and told a little bit about themselves and their activities. A moment of silence was observed in memory of departed classmates.

Table favors were provided by Tress Noel and Tillie Gebhardt. Door prizes, provided by Lois Jordahl Dahlen, were won by Fran Stromberg, Olive Rondorf, Gay Warnecke, Tillie and Butch Gebhardt.

September 30, 1994 was set as the date for the next annual get-together, at which plans will be made for the 55th class reunion to be held Sept. 29, 1995.

INSURANCE CAN PROTECT YOU

Insurance plays a vital role in helping people recover from the severe financial effects of a tornado. Sufficient protection against this type of financial disaster is possible.

The homeowners policy covers both the structure and contents for the peril of windstorm and tornado. If the amount of your homeowners policy is kept in line with the cost to rebuild your home today, the loss will be fully paid in the event of its total or partial destruction, including an inflation guard endorsement will help your homeowners coverage keep pace with increasing replacement costs.

Homeowners policies automatically provide contents coverage equal to at least 50% of the amount on the dwelling. Additional contents coverage can be purchased, and is advisable for especially valuable property such as coin collections, fine arts, and antiques—just to name a few.

Your car is covered for tornado damage under the Comprehensive, or Loss By Other Than Collision, portion of the auto insurance policy. For a comparatively few premium dollars, it protects you against a financially crippling loss.

"We think she does an absolutely spectacular job," said Adult Participants Darlene Wiseth and Lucy Stancyk in a letter to The Times recently. Wiseth said she has been participating in the classes for five years. She isn't sure how long Lucy has been in the classes.

They write in their letter that, "Sometimes it's difficult to get to class, whether it be a busy day at work or family obligation, she appreciates our effort and compliments us daily. Her smile and dynamic personality get us fired up to exercise."

Alicia says that exercise has always been important to her sense of well being. "The classes I teach are both physically and psychologically therapeutic. I feel that everyone can benefit from 'burning off the uglies!' Life looks better after exercising."

Alicia varies her routine, using steps on Tuesdays and Thursdays, getting out to run around Northrop school where the class is held occasionally, and uses jump ropes and balls sometimes. "We talk a little nutrition and weights too," said Alicia.

Alicia has been described as vivacious and always energetic. The first thoughts of Alicia and her husband Jim, president at Northland Community College, usually involve the fact that they have seven children — Wade, age 12, Adam, age 11, Chelsea, age 9, Brittany, age 8, Reid, age 6, Blake, age 4, and Chase, age 3.

Alicia doesn't look like someone who has had seven kids. People with that many kids are expected to look like they're at the end of their rope and always tired. But no, she's lean, fit and full of enough energy to outlast teenagers.

Although aerobics is a hobby to her, Alicia says she has always been involved in aerobics — even while pregnant. She continued to teach her aerobics class right up to one week before having each child. One week after having the child she was back in the gym teaching her aerobics class.

"It took a great deal of confidence to teach exercise classes before a large group while wearing a very snug leotard and tights over a growing baby belly," she said. It worked for her pregnancy. The pregnancy was easy, labor worked, she said, and she has had seven healthy babies.

In the past, going to exercise classes required only throwing on the appropriate attire and then off to class. Add seven children going through infancy to toddler and it becomes something else. Each time she went out to teach classes she had to clothe everyone in summer/winter apparel, make toilet breaks, feed babies, organize treats take toys, change diapers, get them into car seats, set up a safe care area and then teach the class. "Believe me," she said, "exercise classes were the easy part."

At 45-years of age, flexibility, endurance, stamina, and energy levels are questionable at best. With consistent, challenging exercise, life can remain active and rewarding, she said. Alicia encourages everyone to get out the appropriate shoes, and find the exercise program for you. "Make the commitment to maintaining/improving your good health. Without it, nothing else works."

Alicia is a qualified instructor under IDEA and has an RN degree, a Masters in Nursing, and a Masters in Chemistry. For someone her age, she says she has done a lot. She has been around the world eight or nine times, served as the Critical Care Coordinator at a major hospital in Miami, taught chemistry at New York University and has been a nurse on a Norwegian cruise liner.

Anyone interested in joining Alicia for aerobics can register by mail or in person with the Community Education department located in the School District Services Center at 230 South LaBree. Purchase of a $25 punch card allows the user to attend 15 sessions.

Russ and Thelma Culkins of Thief River Falls were honored for their achievement as Shaklee sales leaders at the annual leadership convention held September 16-19 at the Crown Center in Kansas City, MO.

Their travel, accommodations, food and entertainment were provided by the company as part of the benefits awarded to top sales performers.

It was noted at the event that more than $30,000 worth of products from the company have been donated to help midwest flood recovery and clean-up efforts.

New products introduced at the conference were a post workout beverage to aid muscle recovery, a line of personal care products containing a complex of fruit acid extracts and a gift collection.

Lincoln high school cross-country team began its season in the gym training with Alicia Haviland. Other high school groups also use the class to help condition the young athletes for harder training. Alicia Haviland teaches the aerobics class five nights a week from 5:45 to 6:45 p.m. at the Northrop elementary school gym.

Small group protests DARE

Small group opposed to the DARE program protested outside the Union Depot in St. Paul Tuesday.

Dan Vachek, a representative of a group called "Parents Against DARE" said the anti-drug program does not teach children about staying off drugs but how to turn in their parents to authorities.

DARE is a drug education program taught to fifth and sixth grade students. The 17-week program is taught to fifth grade students in Goodridge and Thief River Falls.

DARE takes the "just say no" message a step further and focuses special attention on developing self-management and resistance skills as well as building a strong self-esteem, so that the lessons kids learn now will help them as they get older.

Local DARE officer Craig Mattson, Thief River Falls, said the program stands on its own. There is nothing, he said, in the curriculum that teaches students to turn in their parents. He added that the police officers to do teach the program gain students' trust as role models.

Readers tell experiences in classes with Alicia

Dear Editor:

We'd like to tell you about someone who has become very special to us. Two to five nights a week, we attend her one-hour aerobic class from 5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. Her name is Alicia Haviland. She is our inspiration to exercise! What a motivator!

We think she does an absolutely spectacular job. She has been a constant positive influence on her class participants. Sometimes it's difficult to get to class, whether it be a busy day at work or family obligation, she appreciates our effort and compliments us daily. Her smile and dynamic personality get us fired up to exercise. Her enthusiastic attitude, high energy music and love for exercise make the class fun. Don't get us wrong, it's an hour of hard work but she has the ability to provide the kind of encouragement and support that makes us want to put forth our best effort. She often compliments the class on what a good job we're doing or tells us how proud she is of us.

When new members start, Alicia voices her concern that they be careful and take things slow. We've heard many times "Listen to your body," and "Don't be a hero," meaning only do what feels good and what you can tolerate. There is no pressure to do high impact aerobics as low impact aerobics can be just as beneficial.

Her genuine concern for all her participants is amazing. She takes time to get to know us on a personal basis, by visiting after class, answering questions or lending an ear. No wonder her class has a family-type atmosphere. Her warm, friendly and funny personality keeps us coming back.

Regular exercise has many benefits. It strengthens bones, slows the aging process, eases stress and anxiety, enhances self image, just to name a few. Getting to class is the first step to achieve any of these. Alicia gets us there!

So, guys and gals, find a friend and come join us. It's an hour well worth the effort! For more information call Community Ed at 681-8740.

Alicia, we know we can speak for the whole group, we think you're the greatest! Keep up the good work! We're with you all the way, kicking, jumping and running.

Sincerely,
Darlene Wiseth
Lucy Stancyk

A few months ago, our local fire department had a practice burn. This particular practice burn was in my neighborhood. There was an old house a few blocks away which the fire department decided to use for a practice burn. So, on a selected evening, the fire department burned this house. I read later that they did various practice things that firemen must know about houses on fire. Then, they watched and waited while the house burned.

They, of course, were not the only ones watching this fire. It seemed as if the entire town converged on our neighborhood. We discovered the fire through our window. We had noticed that there was smoke in the air, and at first we grumbled as we thought that someone was certainly not obeying the no burning law, but then our grumbles turned to excitement as we saw through our windows that a house was on fire in our neighborhood. We dropped all that we were doing and went running in the direction of the fire—as did several of our neighbors. We wondered if we should call the fire department, but decided that they must already know something about this fire because it was so large when we first noticed it. Those living closer, we assumed, had to have already sounded an alarm. Our relief to discover that this was simply a practice burn was great.

But, as I wandered our neighborhood that evening and chatted with neighbors who were also wondering about this fire in our neighborhood, I looked at our houses. Most of our homes in our neighborhood, and most of the homes in our town, are very much like that old house that burned so quickly and intensely that spring evening. Most of our homes are old wooden structures. Watching that "practice burn" I realized how quickly our home could be destroyed. That time the fire was for practice. Next time will it be for real? Will it be your home?—or mine?

It's once again the week in which we are aware of fire prevention. What would you do if your house was on fire and it was during the night when all of your household was sleeping? Would you have a good chance of awakening and thus be able to escape? Do you have escape routes? Do you have a planned meeting place for your household in the case of a fire? Is your fire safety plan in need of help, or can you rest relatively confidently knowing that you and your household could escape a fire?

First and probably most important, do you have smoke detectors in your home? If you do, do you have them by each of your sleeping areas? Do you have them on each level of your home as well? When is the last time you tested them to see if they were in working order? Do yours need batteries to operate? When did you last change the batteries? At our home, we recently had a smoke alarm decide that it no longer wanted to work. How we noted this was that it beeped, every now and then, no matter if the battery was new or not. So, we took down this alarm which has been in many houses with us and bought ourselves a new alarm—and we installed this new alarm. If you have been on vacation, did you check your alarms when you returned to make sure the batteries did not run down while you were away? Maybe it would be a good idea to right now get up from your easy chair and go check out your smoke detectors. Your family's lives may depend on your action now.

Does everyone in your household know the escape routes from your house? Do the little ones in your home know what to do if a doorway is blocked by fire? Do you have alternative escape routes? Do you have windows that you could use as exits? If you have several levels to your home, can people in the upper levels escape? Do you have a ladder to hang out of a window in an emergency? Do you know how to use it? If you have a basement that is used for anything—the washing, as a workshop, as a family room, as bedrooms—can those in the basement escape some way other than the stairs? Do the windows open? Can people fit through the window?

After everyone has escaped, does your family know where to meet outside of your home? Does your household know that once they get outside of a burning building they should stay out?

I've asked many questions. Only you know the answers. Be sure your household is as safe as you can plan for it to be. A fire can engulf a home more quickly than any of us really realize. Plan now so that if the unthinkable fire ever happens, you and your household will be prepared to safely escape.

"We think she does an absolutely spectacular job," said Adult Participants Darlene Wiseth and Lucy Stancyk in a letter to The Times recently. Wiseth said she has been participating in the classes for five years. She isn't sure how long Lucy has been in the classes.

They write in their letter that: "Sometimes it's difficult to get to class, whether it be a busy day at work or family obligation, she appreciates our effort and compliments us daily. Her smile and dynamic personality get us fired up to exercise."

Alicia says that exercise has always been important to her sense of well being. "The classes I teach are both physically and psychologically therapeutic. I feel that everyone can benefit from 'burning off the uglies!' Life looks better after exercising."

Alicia varies her routine, using steps on Tuesdays and Thursdays, getting out to run around Northrop school where the class is held occasionally, and uses jump ropes and balls sometimes. "We talk a little nutrition and weights too," said Alicia.

Alicia has been described as vivacious and always energetic. The first thoughts of Alicia and her husband Jim, president at Northland Community College, usually involve the fact that they have seven children — Wade, age 12, Adam, age 11, Chelsea, age 9, Brittany, age 8, Reid, age 6, Blake, age 4, and Chase, age 3.

Alicia doesn't look like someone who has had seven kids. People with that many kids are expected to look like they're at the end of their rope and always tired. But no, she's lean, fit and full of enough energy to outlast teenagers.

Although aerobics is a hobby to her, Alicia says she has always been involved in aerobics — even while pregnant. She continued to teach her aerobics class right up to one week before having each child. One week after having the child she was back in the gym teaching her aerobics class.

"It took a great deal of confidence to teach exercise classes before a large group while wearing a very snug leotard and tights over a growing baby belly," she said. It worked for her pregnancy. The pregnancy was easy, labor worked, she said, and she has had seven healthy babies.

In the past, going to exercise classes required only throwing on the appropriate attire and then off to class. Add seven children going through infancy to toddler and i becomes something else. Eac time she went out to teach classe she had to clothe everyone in summer/winter apparel, make toile breaks, feed babies, organize treats take toys, change diapers, get them into car seats, set up a safe care area and then teach the class. "Believe me," she said, "exercise classes were the easy part."

At 45-years of age, flexibility, endurance, stamina, and energy levels are questionable at best. With consistent, challenging exercise, life can remain active and rewarding, she said. Alicia encourages everyone to get out the appropriate shoes, and find the exercise program for you. "Make the commitment to maintaining/improving your good health. Without it, nothing else works."

Alicia is a qualified instructor under IDEA and has an RN degree, a Masters in Nursing, and a Masters in Chemistry. For someone her age, she says she has done a lot. She has been around the world eight or nine times, served as the Critical Care Coordinator at a major hospital in Miami, taught chemistry at New York University and has been a nurse on a Norwegian cruise liner.

Anyone interested in joining Alicia for aerobics can register by mail or in person with the Community Education department located in the School District Services Center at 230 South LaBree. Purchase of a $25 punch card allows the user to attend 15 sessions.

Lincoln high school cross-country team began its season in the gym training with Alicia Haviland. Other high school groups also use the class to help condition the young athletes for harder training. Alicia Haviland teaches the aerobics class five nights a week from 5:45 to 6:45 p.m. at the Northrop elementary school gym.

Culkins honored for leadership in Shaklee sales

Russ and Thelma Culkins of Thief River Falls were honored for their achievement as Shaklee sales leaders at the annual leadership convention held September 16-19 at the Crown Center in Kansas City, MO.

Their travel, accommodations, food and entertainment were provided by the company as part of the benefits awarded to top sales performers.

It was noted at the event that more than $30,000 worth of products from the company have been donated to help midwest flood recovery and clean-up efforts.

New products introduced at the conference were a post workout beverage to aid muscle recovery, a line of personal care products containing a complex of fruit acid extracts and a gift collection.

Small group protests DARE

Small group opposed to the DARE program protested outside the Union Depot in St. Paul Tuesday.

Dan Vachek, a representative of a group called "Parents Against DARE" said the anti-drug program does not teach children about staying off drugs but how to turn in their parents to authorities.

DARE is a drug education program taught to fifth and sixth grade students. The 17-week program is taught to fifth grade students in Goodridge and Thief River Falls.

DARE takes the "just say no" message a step further and focuses special attention on developing self-management and resistance skills as well as building a strong self-esteem, so that the lessons kids learn now will help them as they get older.

Local DARE officer Crai Mattson, Thief River Falls, said th program stands on its own. There is nothing, he said, in the curriculum that teaches students to turn i their parents. He added that th police officers to do teach the program gain students' trust as rol models.

LETTERS

Dear Editor:

We'd like to tell you about someone who has become very special to us. Two to five nights a week, we attend her one-hour aerobic class from 5:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. Her name is Alicia Haviland. She is our inspiration to exercise! What a motivator!

We think she does an absolutely spectacular job. She has been a constant positive influence on her class participants. Sometimes it's difficult to get to class, whether it be a busy day at work or family obligation, she appreciates our effort and compliments us daily. Her smile and dynamic personality get us fired up to exercise. Her enthusiastic attitude, high energy music and love for exercise make the class fun. Don't get us wrong, it's an hour of hard work but she has the ability to provide the kind of encouragement and support that makes us want to put forth our best effort. She often compliments the class on what a good job we're doing or tells us how proud she is of us.

When new members start, Alicia voices her concern that they be careful and take things slow. We've heard many times "Listen to your body," and "Don't be a hero," meaning only do what feels good and what you can tolerate. There is no pressure to do high impact aerobics as low impact aerobics can be just as beneficial.

Her genuine concern for all her participants is amazing. She takes time to get to know us on a personal basis, by visiting after class, answering questions or lending an ear. No wonder her class has a family-type atmosphere. Her warm, friendly and funny personality keeps us coming back.

Regular exercise has many benefits. It strengthens bones, slows the aging process, eases stress and anxiety, enhances self image, just to name a few. Getting to class is the first step to achieve any of these. Alicia gets us there!

So, guys and gals, find a friend and come join us. It's an hour well worth the effort! For more information call Community Ed at 681-8740.

Alicia, we know we can speak for the whole group, we think you're the greatest! Keep up the good work! We're with you all the way, kicking, jumping and running.

Sincerely,
Darlene Wiseth
Lucy Stancyk

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

TIMES FOR TODDLERS

Foil Paintings

Do your children love to paint, but get a little tired of the "old" way of doing things? Well, let's try something new.

You will need tempera paint and aluminum foil. Simply tear off a section of foil, smooth it out on the table and paint your favorite picture. Let the foil dry completely before you hang this beauty up for all to enjoy.

SCAVENGER HUNT

For next week's Activities feature, you will need paper, tempera paints or water colors and cotton swabs.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

The Thief River Falls public library invites you to browse through its new selection of children's books including the following:

Spohn, David. Home Field. This is a delightful story of a boy and his dad and the dream of a grand-slam home run with some very unusual fans to cheer them on.

Fisher, Leonard E. David and Goliath. The majestic illustrations bring this well-known Bible story to life as David finds the strength he needs to slay Goliath.

VIDEO VARIETY

Dumbo. This animated classic about a courageous baby elephant born with oversized ears remains one of the most popular films for children.

"Difficult" Times With Children

Research has shown that children are more frequently frustrated in the late morning and late afternoon. This has been associated with hunger, tiredness and illness. If your child becomes "difficult" at the same time each day, you may wish to rearrange the family schedule to eliminate or reduce the fussy period. Schedules can be rearranged in many ways:

- Changing meal times;
- Providing snacks;
- Changing sleeping or napping times;
- Instituting a quiet time;
- Omitting, rescheduling or reducing house cleaning and cooking simpler meals and freezing them, etc. (and then spending more time with your child).

When you are looking for ways to restructure time, determine what the underlying needs are for you and your family, and then generate as many ways as possible to meet these needs.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk to your child about what will happen next, giving him/her a warning and some idea of what to expect.

In conjunction with the installation of new street lights on Centennial Drive, and in conjunction with Public Power week, the city utilities department provided funds for planting 24 trees in Centennial park recently.

affected by Dutch elm disease. At the time there were 22 trees on a list of trees that needed to be removed. The property owners had been notified twice and had failed to remove the trees within a specified time period. During the hearing, approval was given to hire a contractor to remove the trees. As a result of that action, the cost of removing those trees would be placed on the property owners taxes.

John Johnson, city forester, explained that by the time the contractor arrived in the community, there were only 16 trees left on the list that needed to be removed. By discussing the proposed tree removal with property owners, many of the property owners opted to pay the contractor instead of having the cost put on tax rolls. Tuesday night, Johnson said the city was only being billed for four trees. The $693.88 bill will be assessed to property owners on the tax rolls.

Johnson said he was pleased with the work of the contractor. He said he thought he did a very professional job.

■ The council discussed plans for construction of a bridge on Greenwood street.

The council suggested that the Building, Engineering, Street and Sanitation (BESS) committee discuss steps to take regarding very preliminary plans to construct a bridge on Greenwood street. Ron Lindberg, director of the engineering and technical services department, began discussing steps to take if the city eventually plans to construct a bridge on Greenwood street. One of the steps would be for the city council to identify the project as a priority for the city and direct the BESS committee to pursue the project. But the council wasn't ready to take that step. They did suggest discussing preliminary plans in the BESS committee. Items for discussion might include what options are available for funding.

Lindberg said he was talking about $3,000 to $4,000 in local money up front to get the city to a point where it has documentation that will allow it to put the project on a Transportation Improvement Plan. That would then allow the city to apply for federal funds or apply for MSA funds.

In other business, the council: approved a taxi license application from Marv Carlson and Steve Seglem of Thief River Falls Casino Express; adopted amendments to the land use regulation (zoning) of the city code related to the flood plain; approved zoning amendments requests made by Vince Miramontes, Pan-O-Gold Realty, Gary L. Thompson and Jack Milender; approved a recommendation to hire three volunteer firefighters after 20 applications were received, and eight interviewed; approved dance permits for Matt Perkins on October 8 and 9, and Brent Glass on October 14; approved the hiring of a part-time billing clerk after receiving 34 applicants; extended the hours for Chad Klienvachter; and approved a recommendation to proclaim the week of October 3 through 9 as Public Power week.

School Dist. considering outdoor lab

School District 564 is exploring the possibility of developing an outdoor environmental learning laboratory, according to Dr. Robert Duncan, superintendent of schools.

The laboratory would provide students, faculty, local citizens and community-based organizations with an opportunity to learn more about the environment though observation and actual involvement in its development, care and use.

A committee is presently being formed to study the feasibility of developing such an outdoor laboratory. Any citizen of the school district who is interested in the possible establishment of the laboratory is invited to become a part of the committee.

"If you have an interest and would like to serve on the committee or support the development of an environmental learning lab in any other way, please contact me," Supt. Duncan said. He can be contacted at the school district service center, 230 LaBree Avenue South, or by calling 681-8711.

Weight Loss Puzzles Researcher!

WASHINGTON -- A researcher at National Dietary Research was puzzled at how successful a natural food tablet had become in helping overweight people lose weight. Dr. William Morris was puzzled because the original chewable tablet formula was developed to help feed the world's undernourished people.

Some may say the weight loss is due to the natural plant colloids that Finnish scientists say interferes with the intestinal absorption of calories and Swedish scientists found to cause weight loss in spite of patients being instructed not to alter normal eating patterns. Others may say its the patented ingredient developed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture that burns the fat. But not all scientists agree with these theories so they must be considered speculation pending further study.

According to Dr. Morris, the improved formula's weight loss potential is no longer a mystery. The formula called Food Source II (FS-II) contains a powerful appetite blocker that decreases calorie absorption.

FS-II comes with a revolutionary diet plan that allows you to lose weight without giving up your favorite foods. With the FS-II Plan there are no forbidden foods and the special appetite control ingredient is one of the most effective available without a prescription.

Berkeley-Brown Labs has obtained exclusive distribution rights to FS-II. FS-II is available through pharmacies and other health care professionals.

RANDOM THOUGHTS

Sara Tyler
Lincoln High School

I made an observation the last time I visited a retirement home. Noses don't wrinkle. I first noticed this when I was talking to a woman over eighty years old. Her face and hands were wrinkled, all except for her nose. What is so special about the skin on our noses that makes it able to resist gravity? If a special oil is excreted from nose pores, the oil could be marketed and sold as a scientific breakthrough in wrinkle-prevention. I'm not sure what the reasoning behind it is, but noses don't wrinkle.

I suppose it would look strange to have flaps of skin hanging over the edge of a nose, and those flaps of skin could get in the way when a person sneezes. It is much more convenient to not have to worry about noses wrinkling. Yet, if the nose is so intelligent that it knows not to wrinkle, why isn't the rest of the human body that smart? What is so special about a nose?

Noses are actually quite amazing things. It is a simple bridge of skin, cartilage, and nerves but it enables us to breathe and smell. If people had developed without noses, who would have ever dreamed of such an amazing contraption? What would people do without noses? So many joys of life would be missed. Smelling fresh cut grass and flowers in the garden, fresh baked cookies and simmering stew, even the unpleasant odors such as skunk and manure would be experiences missed. And what would happen when we swallowed? There would be no way to breathe. People would not be able to guzzle their way through a whole can of pop without stopping. If they tried, they would surely choke or suffocate themselves.

What about people with glasses? Without a nose how would they stay up? I'm sure a new form of glasses could be invented, but would they be able to be held up just by ears? Maybe a screw would have to be driven into a person's forehead to keep the glasses on. Maybe a rope would be tacked into the top of a person's head to tie the glasses onto. Maybe everyone would have to wear the elastic bands that go around the back of a person's head to keep their glasses on. Poor people with eye troubles. What would they do without their noses?

I'll admit at times I've wanted to cut my nose off. I'd never actually do it, but when I have a really bad cold there is nothing I want to do more than to cut off that stupid projection. At times I do believe that life would be easier without noses, nothing to sneeze with, nothing to wipe, nothing to get stuffed up; but people talk funny enough when their noses are stuffed, how stupid would they sound if they had no nose at all?

So I'm grateful for my nose. I love all it gives to me. I love to breathe through it. I love to smell with it. I love it even when I'm completely stuffed up. But maybe what I love most of all is knowing there is at least one part of my body I don't have to worry about wrinkling.

The wind blew and the roof of the shoe flew from this float entered in the Middle River Goose Festival parade Saturday afternoon. The shoe had a roof when the parade began but a gust of wind removed it seconds before this Times photo was taken. Entered by Arlene Ness Day Care, the float won first place in the commercial division.

NESS LOVE NEST

YOUNGS STORE

Young's General Store entered this float in the annual Middle River Goose Festival parade Saturday. The float included a scattering of merchandise available at the store and the store's slogan: "If we don't have it, you don't need it."

Some of the line dancers who performed later in the afternoon rode a float in the Middle River Goose Festival parade Saturday. The performance was on the roped-off main street.

"Hillbilly Heaven" was the title of this float in the Middle River Goose Festival parade Saturday afternoon. The entry drew applause from parade watchers and approval from the judges who gave the float and the Brandon family first place overall in the competition.

Host families sought for foreign youth

International Student Exchange of Iowa is seeking host families for boys or girls, ages 14-18, for four weeks during the summer of 1994 or for the 1994-95 school year.

Students are available from Argentina, Brazil, Colombia, Czechoslovakia, France, Germany, Hungary, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Spain or Turkey. All come to improve their knowledge of English and to learn about American family lifestyle and culture.

Imre Takacs, founder and president of the non-profit corporation, was in Thief River Falls Thursday to discuss the program with local high school officials. Takacs said his organization has a student from Spain attending school in Grygla this year.

Host families provide room and board and may deduct $50 per month on their income tax return. They are encouraged to include exchange students in their normal family activities. Information about hosting a foreign student is available by calling toll-free 1-800-356-9365.

Pennington DHIA led by Hanson Herd

Mark Hanson dairy herd led the Pennington County Dairy herd Improvement Association for the combined months of July and August, according to Randy and Marge Rasmussen, supervisors for the Pennington DHIA.

The Hanson herd of 53 cows, 79 per cent of which were in milk, averaged daily production per animal of 63.4 pounds of milk, and 2.26 pounds of butterfat. Among the top 10 herds, the Hanson herd was tied for the lowest percentage of the herd in milk.

Percentage of herd in milk is important in the report because production is averaged over the entire herd, including dry cows. This method of computation is used to give the dairy producer a record of the herd's earning power for the month.

Second place went to the 69-cow herd of Mylo Carlson, 86 per cent of which was in milk, with average production of 62.6 pounds of milk and 2.19 pounds of butterfat.

Lyle Swanson herd of 42 cows was third with 83 per cent of the herd in milk. The cows averaged 61.5 pounds of milk and 2.02 pounds of butterfat.

Other cows in the top 10 include the following with number of cows, percentage in milk, average pounds of milk and average pounds of butterfat listed respectively:

Walter Bros. Farm, 134, 79%, 57.3 and 1.90; Kelly & Gary Lundeen, 43, 93%, 55.2 and 1.67; Hamrick Farms, Inc., 80, 91%, 55.1 and 1.94; Dale & Sherri Rupprecht, 19, 100%, 54.5 and 2.05; Bob Schindler, 44, 86%, 52.4 and 1.93; Ben Kleinwachter, 44, 86%, 49.8 and 1.80; and Arden Lundeen, 29, 97%, 49.6 and 1.80.

There were 23 official DHIA herds on test with the Pennington association during July and August and three owner-sampler herds as well.

ABATE supports motorcyclists

Northwest Chapter of American Bikers for Awareness, Training and Education (ABATE) recently donated 10 soft cuddly bears called "Buddy Bears" to the police department in Thief River Falls.

The Buddy Bears will be given by officers to children involved in traumatic situations. It is hoped that the Buddy Bears will help take their minds off the situation. But donating Buddy Bears to the police department is just one of the many activities that ABATE participates in each year.

ABATE is a political watchdog, working to insure that motorcyclists have a voice in the political process. ABATE also promotes safe motorcycling with rider awareness, rider skills programs and with the "Dial-A-Ride" program dealing with impaired riders. ABATE is also working to improve the image of the motorcyclist/biker. The organization believes that the perception of the motorcyclists as an outlaw or social outcast is totally unjustified and is working hard to improve that image problem.

There are over 80 members in the Northwest Chapter. In addition to donating Buddy Bears to local law enforcement officials, the organization recently held a Food and Toy run in which donations for the Salvation Army and Food Shelf were collected.

For more information about the activities of the local chapter, contact Kevin Reynolds of Red Lake Falls at 253-4464. Reynolds is the chapter president.

DURING FIRE PREVENTION WEEK WE THANK OUR THIEF RIVER FALLS FIREFIGHTERS

GET OUT! STAY OUT! Advice From Your Firefighters

Get Out! Stay Out! Your Fire Safe Response.

Thirty-five hundred Americans died in home fires in 1991. Others were injured or killed in fires where they worked or visited. It could happen to you or your family. If fire strikes your home or your business, the way to survive is to get out quickly and stay out. "Get out! Stay out!" It's a simple strategy that does save lives. To make the most of it, however, you need to plan ahead, starting today.

Install Smoke Detectors So You'll Have Time To Get Out.

The majority of fatal home fires happen while people are sleeping. Many fire victims die without ever waking up. If fire breaks out in your home, you may have only a very few minutes to escape safely. You need smoke detectors outside each sleeping area and on each additional level of your home, including the basement. Smoke detectors are inexpensive, and they can save your family's lives! Follow the installation instructions carefully. To keep your smoke detectors on the job, test them every month, following the manufacturer's directions.

Know Two Ways Out.

Draw a diagram of your home. Plan two ways out of every room, especially bedrooms. If one of your escape routes must go out a second story window, be sure you have a safe way to reach the ground. Make special arrangements for small children and people with disabilities.

Get Out Fast! In case of a fire, don't stop for anything. Don't try to take possessions or pets. Just get out. Call the fire department from a neighbor's phone after you are out.

Crawl Low Under Smoke.

Smoke contains deadly gases and is hot, so it will rise to fill the room from the top town. If you encounter smoke or flames on your way out, turn around and use your alternate exit. If you must escape through an area filled with smoke, the best air will be 12 to 24 inches (30 to 60 cm) off the floor. Get down on your hands and knees and crawl quickly to the exit.

Make An Escape Plan.

With a fire burning in your home, there is no time to waste. You may have to contend with fear, darkness, confusion, even blinding smoke and searing heat. If you plan and practice now, you and your family will know what to do in a real emergency. Sit down with your family today and plan how to escape in case of fire.

Practice Your Plan.

At least twice a year, have a fire drill in you home. Appoint someone as the monitor, to sound the alarm and make sure everyone participates. Because the majority of fatal fires occur when people are sleeping, start the drill by going to your bedroom, closing the door, and waiting for the monitor to sound the alarm. Remember a fire drill is not a race. Get out quickly but carefully!

Choose A Meeting Place.

Everyone should gather at one meeting place outside, preferably at the front, where the fire department will arrive. Each family member should know how to call the fire department from a neighbor's home. Designate one person in the family to make the call, while the others wait at the meeting place.

Expect The Unexpected.

Once everyone knows the basic plan, practice it in the dark. Pretend that the smoke is blocking one escape route and make sure your family knows how to use their alternate routes. Make sure everyone can unlock all locks and open all windows and doors quickly, even in the dark.

Test Every Door. Before opening a door, make sure there's no fire on the other side. Kneeling or crouching at the door, reach up high and use the back of your hand to touch the door, the door knob, and the space between the door and the frame. If any of these feels hot, use your second way out. If everything feels cool, brace your shoulder against the door and open it carefully. Be ready to slam it shut if heat or smoke rushes in. As you leave, close all doors behind you. They can slow down the spread of fire and smoke.

Don't Go Back, No Matter What. Make sure everyone in your family knows that once they are out, they must not go back for any reason. If people are trapped, fire fighters have the best chance of rescuing them.

If You Are Trapped...

Close doors between you and the fire. Stuff the cracks around doors and cover vents to keep smoke out. Wait at a window and signal for help with a flashlight, if you have one, or by waving a sheet or other light-colored cloth. If there's a phone in the room where you're trapped, call the fire department and tell them exactly where you are..

DURING FIRE PREVENTION WEEK WE THANK OUR THIEF RIVER FALLS FIREFIGHTERS

Get Out! Stay Out! Your Fire Safe Response.

Thirty-five hundred Americans died in home fires in 1991. Others were injured or killed in fires where they worked or visited. It could happen to you or your family. If fire strikes your home or your business, the way to survive is to get out quickly and stay out. "Get out! Stay out!" It's a simple strategy that does save lives. To make the most of it, however, you need to plan ahead, starting today.

Install Smoke Detectors So You'll Have Time To Get Out.

The majority of fatal home fires happen while people are sleeping. Many fire victims die without ever waking up. If fire breaks out in your home, you may have only a very few minutes to escape safely. You need smoke detectors outside each sleeping area and on each additional level of your home, including the basement. Smoke detectors are inexpensive, and they can save your family's lives! Follow the installation instructions carefully. To keep your smoke detectors on the job, test them every month, following the manufacturer's directions.

If you must escape through an area filled with smoke, the best air will be 12 to 24 inches (30 to 60 cm) off the floor. Get down on your hands and knees and crawl quickly to the exit.

Make An Escape Plan.

With a fire burning in your home, there is no time to waste. You may have to contend with fear, darkness, confusion, even blinding smoke and searing heat. If you plan and practice now, you and your family will know what to do in a real emergency. Sit down with your family today and plan how to escape in case of fire.

Practice Your Plan.

At least twice a year, have a fire drill in you home. Appoint someone as the monitor, to sound the alarm and make sure everyone participates. Test Every Door. Before opening a door, make sure there's no fire on the other side. Kneeling or crouching at the door, reach up high and use the back of your hand to touch the door, the door knob, and the space between the door and the frame. If any of these feels hot, use your second way out. If everything feels cool, brace your shoulder against the door and open it carefully. Be ready to slam it shut if heat or smoke rushes in. If You Are Trapped...

Close doors between you and the fire. Stuff the cracks around doors and cover vents to keep smoke out. Wait at a window and signal for help with a flashlight, if you have one, or by waving a sheet or other light-colored cloth. If there's a phone in the room where you're trapped, call the fire department and tell them exactly where you are..

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

Park Rapids Area ball carrier Cory Bowman was hit by Thief River Falls linebacker John Davis after catching a short pass as the Prowlers' Robby Bakken (21), Nick Chiodo (10), Brent Kleinvachter (56) and Tony Halsa (47) all closed in during Friday's Section 8A high school football game. The Prowlers celebrated homecoming with a 31-6 win over the Panthers.

Defense comes through for Prowlers

■ Thief River Falls 31-6 winner over Park Rapids Area

Defense finally got some of the credit Friday as Thief River Falls won its third straight game, a 31-6 Section 8A high school football win over Park Rapids Area at chilly Prowler Field.

The Prowlers gave up an average of 34 points per game in their first four starts, and even in back-to-back wins over Wadena-Deer Creek and Staples Area, the defense gave up points and yardage with concern-producing regularity.

Park Rapids' ground game did manage to net 201 yards, but outside of speedy Cory Bowman, the Panthers' offense was held in check by the Thief River Falls defense. Bowman, a 5-9, 170-pound junior broke away on runs of 36, 34 and 41 yards during a 179-yard rushing performance that included the Panthers' lone touchdown. But the rest of the Park Rapids Area runners mustered just 22 yards.

Included in the defensive effort was a goal line stand at the end of the second quarter that preserved a 12-0 halftime lead.

"The goal line stand was a key," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm. "The defense has been giving up big plays, but tonight it was our turn to come up with the big play on defense. They bent, but they didn't break. We worked hard on defense all week – did a lot of teaching in practice. Tonight it paid off. The defense did a great job."

And for the third time in the three-game win streak the offense produced big numbers. The Prowlers racked up 334 yards on 55 running plays. Quarterback Jeff Twomey threw just one pass, but it was good for a 30-yard touchdown to Steve Burslie, who also scored on a 90-yard kickoff return and on a 1-yard run. Lee Lund scored twice, including a 75-yarder that hiked his game total to a team-high 152 yards for the night.

A lot of the offensive credit goes to the line, said Mumm. "Our hogs (linemen) have been doing a great job getting off the ball. Our backs run hard, and when they hit the line, all they see are yellow (the Prowlers' gold pants) butts. They're through the line before anyone lays a hand on them."

For the second week in a row the Prowlers scored on a game-opening kick return by Burslie. He had an 80-yard touchdown return against Staples Area, and Friday he warmed the homecoming crowd by taking the kick 90 yards through the middle to make it a quick 6-0 with just 13 seconds elapsed.

Then after forcing a Park Rapids Area punt, the Prowlers made it 12-0 on their first offensive series – a 10-play, 70-yard drive that featured a 30-yard tackle-breaking run by Brian Howe and 1-yard off-tackle touchdown effort by Burslie with 3:16 remaining in the first quarter.

Only other first half scoring threat for either side came late in the second quarter when runs of 36 and 34 yards by Bowman gave the Panthers a first down at the Thief River Falls 9-yard line. They gave up the ball on downs at the 4 with 1:16 left.

First play of the second half was a Park Rapids Area fumble recovered by the Prowlers at the Panthers' 43. Seven plays later Twomey's lone pass of the night was right on the money as Burslie ran under the ball in the end zone.

It became 24-0 on the Prowlers' next possession following a 21-yard Park Rapids Area punt to midfield. The 10-play march included runs of 12 and 17 yards by Tony Halsa and ended on a 2-yard dive by Lund with 2:11 left in the third quarter.

The Panthers were quickly back on defense when they lost a fumble on the ensuing kickoff, but Thief River Falls gave it back on a fumble at the Park Rapids Area 4.

That set the stage for a 13-play, 96-yard scoring drive by the Panthers. Most of it came from Bowman, including a 41-yard sprint around the end with a quick pitch. He scored on a pitch from four yards out with 7:31 remaining in the game.

A diving interception by Halsa on a tipped pass at the Thief River Falls 25 was promptly converted into a one-play offensive series when Lund turned the corner on the right side and reached the end zone with 3:01 to play. After failing to produce on four earlier two-point conversion attempts, the Prowlers went with an extra-point kick this time – and got it as Justin Kempert split the uprights.

"I think we kind of wore them down in the second half," explained Mumm. "Our size and strength takes a toll on people as games wear on."

Howe, the Prowlers' leading ball carrying through the first month of the season, left the game with an injury on the first series of the second half and did not return. He still finished with 56 yards on 9 carries. Halsa had 41 yards on 8 tries as the Prowlers employed 10 different ball carriers.

Park Rapids Area quarterback Daniel May was 7-for-12 passing for 58 yards, with the seven receptions going to seven different receivers.

NCC offense shut down in 16-0 loss

Heading into Saturday's match-up against Itasca in Grand Rapids, Northland coach Gene Klinke said the key to the Pioneers' success would be their ability to contain the Vikings' ground-gobbling running game. They accomplished that goal, limiting Itasca to just 156 yards on the ground. However, the Pioneers rushed for only 122 yards themselves and wound up losing a 16-0 Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division decision.

"We did what we wanted to do defensively – we shut down their running game," explained Klinke. "But we didn't anticipate getting only 122 yards ourselves. We played well enough to win defensively, but didn't get it done offensively."

All the scoring occurred in the second quarter, with Northland punting coming into play on two occasions.

First, a 3-yard Northland punt set up a 3-yard Todd Christianson touchdown run.

After getting the ball back, the Vikings moved Christianson out of the backfield to flanker, and when he was left uncovered, quarterback Lowell Streit hit him with a 35-yard touchdown pass.

Moments later, forced to punt out of their own end zone, the Northland kicker caromed a shot off the back of his blockers on a play that wound up as a two-point safety for the winners.

"We lost a football game we should have won," said Klinke. "If we play as well as we're capable of playing, we win the game. But we didn't play up to our potential."

Unable to open up holes for the Northland runners, the Pioneers' offense went to the air. But 8-for-27 passing produced only 38 yards.

Christianson netted 99 yards on 20 carries to lead the Vikings. Sheldon Hinton had 42 yards on 13 attempts for the Pioneers, with quarterback Jason Svir picking up 39 yards on 14 tries.

"Defensively, one of our goals to to hold teams under 21 points," noted Klinke. If we do that, we should be in every ball game. Defensively we did the job. Offensively, the line just didn't play very well. But they're still young and inexperienced. As a head coach, I have to shoulder the blame for not having them ready to play."

Northland, 2-2 overall and 2-1 in the MCCC tackles defending state champion Vermilion Saturday in a 2 p.m. game at Prowler Field. The unbeaten Ironmen crushed the University of Minnesota-Crookston 58-0 Saturday.

Prowlers to finish year with three road games

Having completed its 1993 regular season home schedule, Thief River Falls will finish the high school football season on the road, beginning Friday with a 7:30 p.m. contest at Crookston.

That will be the last the of the traditional Friday night games for the Prowlers, who will wrap things up with match-ups Thursday, Oct. 14, at Fergus Falls and Wednesday, Oct. 20, at East Grand Forks.

Only way Thief River Falls will make another appearance at Prowler Field this year is to be one of the top two seeds in the Section 8A playoffs.

The ten sectional teams are competing for six available post-season spots – based upon regular season points standings. Top two finishers will receive first round byes in the Oct. 26 quarterfinals. The Oct. 30 semifinals will be played at the sites of the No. 1 and No. 2 seeds. Championship game will be played Nov. 5, at the Dakota Dome in Fargo.

Thief River Falls, a 31-6 winner over Park Rapids Area Friday, will take a 3-2 record to Crookston, which includes a current three-game win streak. The Pirates are also 3-2, with season-opening wins over Park Rapids Area 26-6 and Holdingford 15-12, followed by back-to-back losses to Detroit Lakes 41-12 and Fergus Falls 14-0. They got by East Grand Forks 12-7 last week.

In other Section 8A action Friday, Detroit Lakes beat Fergus Falls 35-14, while Perham fell to Agassiz Valley 21-7, Wadena-Deer Creek lost to Crosby-Ironton 23-20, Staples Area was beaten by Aitkin 20-6, and Long Prairie-Grey Eagle absorbed a 41-12 pounding from Sauk Centre.

MCC wins TRF tournament

Marshall County Central lost just one game all day en route to a championship performance at the Thief River Falls Northern Lights Invitational high school volleyball tournament Saturday.

The Nordics' overall season record climbed to 15-0 with round-robin pool play wins over East Grand Forks 15-10, 10-15, 15-6; Roseau 15-11, 15-13; and Badger/Greenbush-Middle River 15-8, 15-8; along with a 15-12, 15-1 championship match decision over Warroad.

"Defensively we played pretty well all day – that was the key," explained Marshall County Central coach Mark Jorgenson. "We were digging up balls that we haven't reached all year. Against Warroad, I don't think we let the ball hit the floor."

Sara Lokstad led the Marshall County Central hitters, Jill Fosholm did the setting, and Shanon Magner sparked the back row defense, while also providing some front row offense.

"They did a nice job for us, but everybody contributed," noted Jorgenson. "It was a good team effort."

Warroad reached the finals with pool play wins over Red Lake County Central 15-9, 15-9; Thief River Falls 17-15, 5-15, 15-5; and Bemidji 15-7, 15-10.

Roseau held off Thief River Falls 15-5, 13-15, 15-10 in the third place match; East Grand Forks swept Red Lake County Central 15-12, 15-6 in the fifth place match; and Badger/Greenbush-Middle River got by Bemidji 15-7, 12-15, 15-6 in the seventh place match.

"It was a good tournament," offered Jorgenson. "We faced some tough competition. They made us play."

All-Tournament Team

Thief River Falls - Toni Chiodo, Kelly Skeim; Marshall County Central - Jill Fosholm, Sara Lokstad; East Grand Forks - Jessi Hadden, Nicci Cariveau, Jessica Loer; Roseau - Erin Habstritt, Jenny Hayes; Warroad – Angie Ulwelling, Kendrah Corneliusen; Red Lake County Central - Angel Mickelson; Badger/Greenbush-Middle River - Krissi Super, Jessica Borgen.

In addition to the loss to Warroad, the Prowlers' pool play effort included wins over Bemidji 15-4, 15-5 and Red Lake County Central 15-12, 15-13.

The long tournament day followed a busy week for the Prowlers, and the schedule took its toll, according to Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson. "I give our girls credit for playing four matches (a total of 10 games) after a busy week of homecoming and two regular season matches," she said.

Consistency wasn't Thief River Falls' strength. "We played very well as a team against Bemidji," noted Anderson. "Everyone contributed. The first game against Warroad was a battle. A few mental errors cost us. It was all-Thief River Falls in Game 2 – we had a strong performance by everyone. But Game 3 was a different story – it was all Warroad. The Red Lake County Central match wasn't pretty, but we played well enough to win."

Thief River Falls played short-handed against Roseau with hitter Carrie Lawrence sidelined by a shoulder injury and setter Kendra Dimich seeing only spot duty because of knee problems. Kelly Skeim and Toni Chiodo were both employed as setters, and it took a while for the Prowlers to adjust as Roseau rolled 15-5.

But the Prowlers battled back gamely, tying the match with a 15-13 win that ended on back-to-back point-producing blocks by Jamie Martell.

Roseau, however, won it when Megan Taylor collected three aces during a stint at the service line that broke open a 9-8 game. A kill by Kylee Johnson ended the 15-10 contest.

"It took a while to get organized without Carrie and Kendra," acknowledged Anderson, "but it was fun to watch the girls block and hit in the second game. It was an all-out team effort. We had some costly serve reception errors in the third game, forcing us to send over free balls, which allowed Roseau to set up their offense."

The results put the Prowlers at 8-10 for the year.

Offensive production has been slow this fall at Red Lake County Central. The Mustangs were shut out for the second straight game and dropped their third in a row Friday – a 6-0 Central Plains Conference high school football loss to Lake Park/ Audubon at Plummer.

Only once this year have the Mustangs scored more than one touchdown. As a result, they're looking at a 1-4 record. And with a Friday trip to Warren-Alvarado coming up, reaching the end zone isn't likely to become any easier.

"Offensively we just didn't do a real good job up front," said Marshall County Central coach Gary Brantl after the latest outing. "Defensively we played well enough to win, as the score indicates. We pretty much dominated the second quarter, but we still couldn't score."

A short Red Lake County Central punt out of the Mustangs' end zone set up the game's only touchdown, a 2-yard V.J. Larson run on the Raiders' second offensive possession.

Best Red Lake County Central scoring chance also occurred in the second quarter when the Mustangs fumbled away the snap exchange on a fourth-and-goal at the Lake Park/ Audubon 1-yard line.

Shannon Willett gained 67 yards on 10 carries to lead a Red Lake County Central ground game that netted only 134 yards. The Mustangs added just 32 yards on 6-for-17 passing, with quarterback Scott Lorenson throwing three interceptions in the face of a strong pass rush.

Defensively, Adam Lundeen was in on 12 tackles for the Mustangs, while Aaron Rosten and Lon Vettleson both had 8 tackles and Ryan Salberg was credited with 7.

Blue Devils struggle on defense in 38-20 loss

There wasn't a whole lot of analyzing done by Grygla/Goodridge coach Darwin Hagen after his Blue Devils lost a 38-20 Top of the State Conference high school football game at East Grand Forks Friday.

"Our defense gave up too many points," offered Hagen. "This time of the year we should be able to hold teams to two touchdowns. We just didn't get it done."

Sacred Heart running back Chris Meyer is racking up big numbers this fall, including a 25-carry, 218-yard night against the Blue Devils. He scored on runs of 1, 12 and 4 yards, while teammate Brad Beauchamp matched his three-touchdown effort on runs of 6, 16 and 16 yards.

Grygla/Goodridge, down 19-6 at halftime, got a 23-carry, 122-yard night out of Jason Grandstrand. The Blue Devils produced 229 yards worth of offense, but gave up 333.

Offensively we did okay," said Hagen, "but our defense is allowing the other teams to control the ball on us. Our defense has been on the field way too much. They have to get the ball back into the hands of our offense."

Tackle Eldon Quam and linebacker Kevin Warne did play well defensively, noted Hagen.

The 1-3 Blue Devils will face Kittson County North Friday at 4 p.m. in Grygla.

Spartans sweep Pioneers

Fergus Falls defeated host Northland 15-8, 15-13, 15-4 Friday in Minnesota Community College College Northwest Division volleyball.

The loss dropped the Pioneers to 4-14 for the year, 0-2 in the Northwest Division.

"We're competitive," offered Northland coach Deb Jacobson, "but we're in a tough conference. We're not that far away from beating these people. I hope they (Pioneers) don't get too frustrated with the losses."

Northland's Holly Gram, who ranks No. 2 in blocks in the latest NJCAA Region 13 statistics, picked up only one against the Spartans, but Ranada Erickson had six and Kathy collected five.

Gram did lead the Pioneers with eight digs Friday. Brenda Kiecker had seven.

Northland will play 6:30 p.m. Northwest Division matches tonight (Wednesday) at the University of Minnesota-Crookston and Friday in Fergus Falls.

Wolverines lose 3-1 match

Grygla/Goodridge came close, but still wound up empty-handed in the win column Monday as the Wolverines lost a 3-1 high school volleyball match to Kittson County North in Grygla.

The visitors won 10-15, 16-14, 15-10, 15-10.

"The second game was pivotal," pointed out Grygla/Goodridge coach Tim Mostrom. "It was pretty frustrating."

Sara Newton came though with a solid job at the service line in relief of injured Jamie Berndt, said Mostrom.

The loss sent the Wolverines into a Tuesday match against Marshall County Central with a 1-12 mark. They will meet Badger/Greenbush-Middle River Thursday night in Greenbush.

DNR News

Moose Population

Odds in the Minnesota moose license lottery this year average about 1-in-13 for each party of four hunters who submitted valid applications. But the odds of lottery winners seeing moose are very good.

Minnesota's estimated moose population has returned to about average after some heavy winter loses attributed to a severe moose-tick infestation that occurred between 1988 and 1991. As a result of these losses, all of the northeast zones were closed to hunting in 1991, and permit numbers were cut by about one-third in the northwest.

A total of 760 licenses have been issued for the 1993 season: 425 permits for 13 of 14 zones open in the northwest for the Oct. 9-24 season; 20 permits for the Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge, Zone 2 in the northwest, for the Dec. 4-12 season; and 315 permits for 27 open zones in the northeast. The northeast season was originally scheduled for Oct. 9-17, but may open earlier, depending on when the Fond du Lac Band's moose hunting season begins.

Moose populations are now estimated at 4,300 moose in the northeast, and 3.500 in the northwest. Recruitment levels (the ratio of calves-per-100 cows observed during the survey) have rebounded in the northeast—from a low of 29 calves per 100 cows two years ago, to 51 calves per 100 cows last winter. Recruitment levels in the northwest remained strong during the same period, increasing from 62 calves per 100 cows two years ago, to 78 calves per 100 cows in the 1992-93 survey.

Major changes are also in the works for future seasons. As of the 1991 season, Minnesota moose hunting became a once-in-a lifetime opportunity. Successful license recipients from the 1991 and 1993 seasons will no longer be eligible for future moose lotteries. For other former moose hunters, the requirement for a five-season waiting period remains in effect—meaning that successful permit holders from the 1989, 1987 and 1983 seasons may apply again, after sitting out five seasons, but will only be allowed one more hunt in their lifetime.

Beginning in 1994, Minnesota will hold a moose hunting season every year. The northwest will have seasons in 1994 and 1995, while the northeast area may remain closed until 1995. After that, the DNR plans to have an annual season in both regions if population levels warrant an annual hunt.

According to Tim Webb, DNR regional forest wildlife specialist for northwest Minnesota, there are several advantages to an annual season. "Population levels could be more precisely managed with an annual hunt," said Webb. "This would be especially advantageous in the northwest region, where damage to crop lands is a major issue.

"And in both regions," explained Webb, "an annual hunt would allow us to react faster to changes in herd health or habitat conditions. We could maintain more even population levels by adjusting harvest levels more frequently."

If permit numbers do decrease, compared to every-other-year hunts, there would be a corresponding decrease in hunter competition during the season—so success rates, already running from 80- to 99- percent, should remain high. The once-in-a-lifetime factor will remove several hundred hunters from the lottery pool each year, but that will likely be more than compensated by recruitment of new hunters into the pool.

Basler Aviation Enterprises of Oshkosh, WI, interviewed 10 students at the Northwest Technical College—Thief River Falls aviation program Friday for possible employment with the company. Michael J. Dudley (left), director of human resources for Basler, said that the company has several large contracts pending which will require the addition of about 50 employees. Also representing Basler were Randy Myers (second from left), production manager and James F. Schroeder II (right). Area families are playing host to teenagers from Spain

The fifth "Spanish invasion" of northwest Minnesota ended the morning of September 10 in Grand Forks, ND, as the 15 teens from Galicia, Spain, along with their guardian, Mr. Celso Rey, boarded the airplane for their flight home at 6 a.m.

The group of young people arrived August 21 and were met by host families from Karlstad, Greenbush; Middle River, Badger, Lake Bronson and Lancaster.

For the next three weeks, the families gave the Spanish youngsters a glimpse and taste of American family life, culture and food, and helped them practice and improve their English language skills.

The group participated in three formal excursions. They visited Bonanzaville and West Acres in Fargo, Itasca state park and the Winnipeg zoo. In addition, each host family provided its guest with a variety of interesting experiences, some travelling to the state fair and the Mall of America, some to the lakes for fishing, swimming and canoeing, others to a rodeo, a wedding, family reunions, birthday parties, movies and flying in an airplane. Mr. Rey experienced a hot air balloon ride near Duluth and, of course, all of the visitors enjoyed shopping.

Students also spent two days in school observing what an American school day is like, and all were treated to a farewell potluck supper in the Greenbush high school cafeteria.

Plans are being made for some area students to make a return visit to the homes of the Spanish students next summer.

Area coordinator for the visits is Georgine Lutz, Spanish teacher at Tri-County high school in Karlstad. If you are interested in learning more about the program, contact Lutz at 218-436-2436.

Brush pickup up began Oct. 1

Thief River Falls Park and Sanitation departments have instituted a new program which provides residents with a brush pick up service.

The departments began the new service Friday, October 1, on the west half of the city. On Friday, October 8, they will provide the same service to the east half of the community and then continue with the same rotation of pick up on alternating Fridays.

The sanitation department asks that residents pile hedge, tree and shrub trimmings by your garbage so the cut end faces the roadway. On every Friday beginning October 1, the city will pick up the brush with its shredder.

The service is intended for minor trimming that the homeowner will do and is free of charge. Brush from tree removal for Dutch elm disease, for example, will not be included in this service. If a resident hires a contractor to trim or remove trees, hedges or shrubs, the contractor will be responsible for the disposal of the brush.

Anyone with questions is asked to contact the Park and Recreation department at 681-2519 or the Sanitation department at 681-4603.

Pearl Laniel received an early Christmas gift when she received and accompanied her son-in-law and daughter Linus, and Ruth Carriere and granddaughter, Debbie Carrier, on a holiday to Branson, MO. Enroute to Branson they visited the Precious Moments Chapel in Carthage, MO, enjoyed the performance of Tony Orlando in the Yellow Ribbon Music Theatre, with the Glenn Miller Orchestra and Bobby Vinton show in the Blue Velvet Theatre and Eddie Rabbitt, the Boldkobbers, and the Shaji Tobeeche show which is really famous for their outstanding men's and ladies' rooms. The Pump Boys show, Ray Stevens Show, John Davidson Theatre, The Moe Bandy Theatre, the Wayne Newton Theatre and the Passion Play in Eureka Springs, AR. They visited the Shepherd of the Hills, Thorncrown Chapel in Eureka Springs, AK. Each and everyone was super, the scenery in the Ozark Hills was beautiful. Branson, MO, is built in the hills and rocks, a two-street city of about the population of 3500 people separated from the Music City, many bus loads of people from all over the country come in, and they do have special attention from everyone. After September 5th, there is a special price for Senior Citizens with a discount. It is unbelievable of all the motels, so many they face each other, and are real close, with many more being built and also more musical theatres being built. The food is super! The people we found were very polite and caring, as the entertainment they put on is by loving, caring, spiritual people and families and Christians. The entertainment was clean, no naked people or bad mouthing as you hear and see all around us, it is not allowed in Branson, MO. In our travels we saw some flood areas and poor corn crops etc. This is a trip I shall never forget.

Monday guests of Mrs Lillian Hince were Kevin Gruhot of Plummer, Sherlin and Evangeline Grove, Diane Plante and Mabel Sabourin.

Mrs. Cindy Determan and sister, Mrs. Mike DeMars, left on Monday to visit their sister, Mrs. Candy Barent of Elk River, who went under surgery on Tuesday afternoon. They returned on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Martha Gagner and Sister Aquena of Crookston, returned from their trip to Fulda, where they visited an uncle and twin sister aunt, who are 91 years of age on Tuesday.

On Tuesday Mrs. Lillian Hince celebrated her 85th birthday with Mrs. Dorothy Myhre, Veronica Boucher, Mable Sabourin, Pearl Laniel, Mrs. George Burthwick and Tracy of Oklee, Sherlin and Evangeline Grove, Russell and Cheryl Hince and Shawn, Willard and Shirley Hince of Thief River Falls, who brought the pretty cake and ice cream. Lillian received may cards, gifts and phone calls from Lucille Ostgaard of Red Lake Falls, and her brother, Elmer Riel of Oregon. "Happy 85th Birthday, Lillian"!

On Wednesday Charlie and Nancy Striddle of Old Hickory, TN, arrived on Wednesday to visit with her brothers, Aurel and Gloria Parenteau, Marc and Connie Parenteau and Joanne Grammer of Crookston.

Wednesday forenoon guests of Mrs. Dorothy Myhre were Mary Jane Paradis, Pearl Laniel, Martha Gagner, Vi Gagner, Myrtle Hamrum, Maime Riendeau, Debbie Ophdahl and Breanna Determan.

BIBLE STUDY

We all must fulfill Scripture

After you read through this Bible study, go back and look up the Scriptures and highlight them in your Bible.

All true disciples of Jesus Christ are called upon by God to fulfill the Scriptures that pertain to righteousness (Matt. 5:16; Col. 3:17). True disciples of Jesus Christ are performers of God's word. They act on it, keep it and do it until, as happy slaves of Jesus Christ, they are doing God's Will from the heart (Eph. 6:6). They know God's Will is anything they do that is pleasing to Him (1 John 3:22). They know studying the Bible is pleasing to God because it allows God to speak to them through His handbook of life.

Jesus Christ never says, "I command you to give a luncheon for the poor and the needy." But He does say, "When you give a luncheon, invite the poor and the needy and those who don't have the means to pay you back, and great will be your reward at the resurrection of the righteous" (Luke 14:13-14).

True disciples feel duty-bound to serve their Lord by serving others. Like Jesus Christ, their example, they feel they must be doing their Father's business daily, which is doing good (Acts 10:38; John 4:34; 10:37-38). They live to do only good.

True disciples are often persecuted for the sake of righteousness but they still continue to practice righteousness, even when it means suffering for it (Matt. 5:10). Abuse them, use them, do them harm, and they will continue to practice righteousness. Why? They are learning obedience to God by the things they suffer (Heb. 5:8-9). They know they'll only have to suffer a little in comparison to the joy coming in the future (1 Peter 5:10).

They love and serve the unlovable. They do good to their enemies. They turn the other cheek. You might be able to wear them down, but you cannot keep them down. That is because they do not operate on their own strength, but with the strength God gives them (1 Peter 4:11). They suffer for righteousness, as Jesus Christ suffered for righteousness, in order that they may be glorified with Him (Rom. 8:17; 1 Peter 4:1).

The truth is, everyone lives to fulfill Scripture. There are Scriptures for the wicked as well as for the righteous. Even those who turn away will be written down by the Lord (Jer. 17:13). Just as the wicked are rewarded with evil by God for the wrong they have done, how much more are the righteous rewarded with blessings for their good deeds (Prov. 11:31). If it is with difficulty that those who practice righteousness are saved, what will become of those who refuse to put their natures to death and overcome evil by doing good (Psalm 34:14; 37:1-2, 27; 1 Peter 3:10-11; 4:18; Rom. 12:21; Rev. 2:26)? Let's be sheep so we won't receive the reward of the goats and so we can experience the peace that surpasses all human comprehension (Matt. 25:33-46; Phil. 4:7).

Mr. and Mrs. Vern Carpenter from Madrid, IA, were houseguests at the Wallace Hanson home a week ago from Sunday until Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Sustad accompanied other Red Lake Electric Cooperative members September 15-16 on a tour with Kevin Reich, R.L.E. representative as tour host and Don Wetenkamp with Carpenter Charter service furnishing transportation. After leaving Red Lake Falls the first stop was Minnkota Power Plant in Grand Forks, ND, where we toured the facilities after which they continued on to Carrington, ND, for a noon luncheon at the Chieftan Cafe. By mid-afternoon they arrived at Riverdale, ND, and the Garrison Dam for a tour of the Hydro Plant. They continued on to Mandan where they were overnight guests at the Seven Seas Motel, attended a banquet and slide presentation sponsored by the Minnkota Power Co-operatives. On Thursday they arrived at the Milton R. Young Power Plant for refreshments and a video presentation, then donning safety helmets and glasses, they toured the power plant. With excellent tour guides at each stop we were provided with up-to-date information and modern technology on these wholesale power supplies. Also included in the tour was one of the open pit lignite coal mines where huge equipment was being used to mine, load and haul the coal to its destination at the power plant. The weather was good so spectators could view the operation at close range. They returned to the power plant auditorium where dinner was served and then departed for highway 94, Bismarck and Fargo, enroute home with a final stop at Village Inn for supper in Grand Forks. This trip included old friends, new friends and neighbors who all helped make it a most memorable trip. Red Lake Electric has sponsored these tours for members for several years and we do appreciate and want to "Thank you." There were 34 on the trip. Thanks for listening.

Fall food show sponsored by Hartz Foods of Thief River Falls was held Wednesday, September 29, at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center in Thief River Falls. Displays of a wide variety of food and other items handled by Hartz Foods retailers were arranged by representatives and brokers who wrote orders from retailers at the show. Most of the dealing had been done when this photo was taken early Wednesday afternoon.

Among Hartz store owners who attended the fall food show Wednesday at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center in Thief River Falls were Mr. and Mrs. John Krolak of Stephen. The food show is sponsored twice a year by Hartz Foods to permit its retailers to find out what's new in food retailing items and place orders for the coming months.

Al Walseth (left), interim chairman of the board of Hartz Foods, gets some friendly advice for success from Tom Lucca, store owner and board member from International Falls. Lucca won the $500 savings bond offered by the company in a drawing among its retail members at the fall food show Wednesday at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center. Many store owners attended the show to place merchandise orders with representatives of product lines handled by Hartz Foods.

Fall food show sponsored by Hartz Foods of Thief River Falls was held Wednesday, September 29, at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center in Thief River Falls. Displays of a wide variety of food and other items handled by Hartz Foods retailers were arranged by representatives and brokers who wrote orders from retailers at the show. Most of the dealing had been done when this photo was taken early Wednesday afternoon.

Among Hartz store owners who attended the fall food show Wednesday at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center in Thief River Falls were Mr. and Mrs. John Krolak of Stephen. The food show is sponsored twice a year by Hartz Foods to permit its retailers to find out what's new in food retailing items and place orders for the coming months.

Al Walseth (left), interim chairman of the board of Hartz Foods, gets some friendly advice for success from Tom Lucca, store owner and board member from International Falls. Lucca won the $500 savings bond offered by the company in a drawing among its retail members at the fall food show Wednesday at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center. Many store owners attended the show to place merchandise orders with representatives of product lines handled by Hartz Foods.

The chapter provided money for a member to purchase seed for experimenting with a number of different crops which might be used instead of corn or sunflowers for deer food plots. Rutabagas, turnips, winter radish, oyster plant, New Zealand spinach, pumpkins, squash and about 20 other species were planted to see what deer preferred and which would grow well in this area.

Here's Another Law We Don't Agree With

It seems like whichever way we turn lately we run into some law or regulation that seems a little out of touch with reality or common sense. The forthcoming School District 564 election puts us smack dab in the middle of another one....or actually another two.

In filing for one of two positions open on the school board at the beginning of 1994, Cheryl Lee felt she would like to serve the community in one of her interest areas. She has been a school volunteer for several years, has children who will be going through the local school system and believes board service would be a good learning experience as well as giving her an opportunity to contribute.

After the filing period closed she discovered that she could find herself involved in a conflict of interest under Minnesota law. The law states that "a public officer who is authorized to take part in any manner in making an sale, lease or contract in his official capacity shall not voluntarily have a personal financial interest in that sale, lease or contract or personally benefit financially therefrom. Every public officer who violates this provision is guilty of a gross misdemeanor."

Apparently since her husband is the owner of a business (Lee Plumbing and Heating) which might be expected to bid on and/or contract for work with the school district, she could be expected to "personally benefit financially therefrom" and be in violation of the law.

Subdivision 5 of the law, however, makes the provision that the governing body "by unanimous vote, may contract for goods or services with an interested officer of the governmental unit...(in the case where) "a contract for which competitive bids are not required by law and where the amount does not exceed $5,000 when the commodity or service contracted for is not otherwise available in the affected governmental unit."

Here is where the law seems backward. The case in which an interested government officer has the least influence is in the case of competitive bids. All bidders have open access to the specifications and the bids are sealed until opened at the specified opening date.

When Cheryl found out about the potential conflict of interest law, she thought it best to withdraw from the race. Enter another law. This one prevents candidates who file for office from withdrawing their names after 24 hours have elapsed from the closing time of filing.

As a result, Cheryl's name will be on the School District 564 ballot November 2 along with the other three candidates who filed for the school board positions.

From a practical standpoint, any potential conflict of interest for Cheryl could be merely a matter of timing. The last major school building project likely to come about for a number of years in District 564 is the current $18 million construction and remodeling project. The last construction phase of that overall project (except for remodeling of Washington elementary into the school district service center) is to be the Franklin middle school additions. Contracts on that project are scheduled to be let in February, 1994, shortly after new school board members will have taken office. Lee Plumbing and Heating plans to bid on the project. If Cheryl is elected in November and takes office in January, she could likely serve for a number of years after the February bid opening with little likelihood of any future conflict of interest question.

What to do?

Cheryl has said that since she can't have her name removed from the ballot that she plans to not campaign for the office. If she would be elected, however, and her husband's company still had competitive bids pending, she would consider it necessary under the law to resign to avoid the conflict of interest question. Since it is entirely possible that Lee Plumbing & Heating will not get the contract under the competitive bidding system, that resignation seems especially unfair.

As long as she continues to have the same interest in board service that she did when she first filed, we would encourage her to be an active candidate. It doesn't seem right to have the potential for lengthy, high interest board service usurped by one relatively irrelevant action a few weeks after taking office.

One other possibility comes to mind, and it could satisfy the law as well as provide a long-term solution. That would be for Cheryl to resign prior to the opening of bids for the Franklin project in February and for the board to appoint her to the position after contracts have been awarded.

Wouldn't that be circumventing the intent of the law? Probably? But it would also be complying with the letter of a law which makes no sense in the first place. And Cheryl would first have to be elected by voters who should be aware of the situation. If they are satisfied enough with the situation to elect her, that should be a fair test of the conflict of interest concern.
